RELIEF FUNDS FOR CAMPAIGN FODDER RAKED

VOTERS INFLUENCED BY DEMOCRATIC TACTICS

BY CECIL B. DICKSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—Arguing that President Roosevelt should "take notice" of how campaigning Democrats are using figures on relief fund disbursements, Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican national committee today said "it calls for some action."

Although disclaiming at a press conference that he was making charges against Mr. Roosevelt, the G. O. P. chieftain said Democratic candidates were stressing relief fund outlays in their appeal for votes in "violation" of the president's pledge to a governors' meeting last year that the "national government is not trying to gain political advantage one way or the other out of the needs of human beings for relief."

Obviously agitated, Fletcher emphasized that the president "could not be ignorant of what has been done by the Democrats in the use of public funds to get votes for the Democratic party in this election."

Influencing Voters

Distributing to newspapermen extracts from speeches by Chairman Farley of the Democratic national committee and others reciting recovery outlays to various states, Fletcher said Democrats "by their own words" were using the figures to "influence" voters to support new deal candidates for congress and governorships.

Meanwhile, Farley gave no indication that he would discontinue reciting in his political speeches the various allotments made to states for recovery purposes. The Democratic national committee has invited congressional candidates to obtain the amounts of disbursements in the various states for campaign purposes.

Fletcher insisted many Democratic leaders besides Farley had inferred to the voters that unless they elected Democrats, relief funds would not continue to come from the federal treasury.

"Something ought to be done," Fletcher said. "I doubt whether anything the president did could stop it now.

"I don't mean to insinuate that the Democrats are buying the votes with public funds, but that they are influencing them.

"The Republican party is not opposed to relief. It is opposed to this method of use of relief expenditures. The inference of the Democratic candidates is that relief may not be continued unless the voters vote for the Democratic party."

Copper Consumers Buying Metal Again

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Large consumers of copper who have pursued a hand to mouth buying policy for several months, some hoping that prices would come down and others fearing that it would, apparently have abandoned such ideas and started to buy.

Authoritative estimates place sales during the current week at 3,200 tons, the largest in some time, and fully 1,000 tons ahead of the week preceding. Inasmuch as most of the orders specified December and January delivery, it was taken in producing quarters to mean that consumers have virtually exhausted their supplies and are in urgent need of the red metal.

Byrd Returns To His Base In Antarctic

Little America, Antarctica, Oct. 12. (Via MacKay Radio)—(Delayed) (AP)—Admiral Richard E. Byrd, his uncut hair a little grayer, returns to his base today after a stay of almost seven months at the Bolling advance weather base, 123 miles closer to the South Pole.

The commander of the expedition to the South polar regions was brought back by a plane piloted by Bill Bowlin.

Admiral Byrd seemed to have recovered almost completely from his illness in June, an indisposition which caused a tractor party commanded by Dr. Thomas C. Pulter to go to the admiral's rescue. For about three months Byrd had been at the advance weather base alone, making meterological observations and keeping in uncertain radio communication with his headquarters.

JAPAN ATTACKS NAVAL TREATY

Abrogation of Pact Will Be Sought at London Conference

BY HAROLD P. BRAMAN
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

London, Oct. 13. (AP)—Japan will serve advance notice that it intends to denounce the Washington treaty later this year and will reveal its proposals for a new agreement, to replace that treaty, when tri-power naval conversations between American, British, and Japanese representatives open here probably next Thursday.

Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaira and Rear Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto are expected to announce that Japan wishes the Washington pact to end Dec. 31, 1936, and will propose a new scheme for naval regulation drawn on the following basis;

Parity in principle among the three main powers;

A global tonnage arrangement to replace the 5-5-3 ratio now in force, and abolition of the principle of ratio;

Reduction, looking toward eventual abolition, of "offensive" ships, meaning big battleships and aircraft carriers; with Great Britain and the United States making the chief sacrifices.

Unlimited authority for each of the three powers to build additional "defense ships" each may need, including cruisers and submarines.

Seek Tonnage Cut

Britain and the United States want to continue the basis of the Washington treaty of 1922 and the London treaty of 1930, these being a 5-5-3 ratio for battleships and regulation of cruisers, aircraft carriers and submarines.

Both Britain and the United States are expected to suggest the continuance of the battleship building holiday.

In addition, it is anticipated that the Americans will make an offer to cut all tonnages at least 20 per cent, as has been hinted several times in the last few months. This is regarded as a possible counter move to Japanese proposals.

Britain likely will seek to act as an umpire in any dispute which may arise between the Americans and Japanese. It has been the continental policy of this government since the war to try to reconcile opposing viewpoints, and there have been plain indications that the British mean to assume that attitude in naval affairs of the big powers as well.

Some of the lesser powers want to be included in the 1935 conference, and these desires will have to be considered. It is possible that a general conference in 1935 may be approved.

Great Britain and the United States differ on one important matter. The British stick to their traditional idea that no battleship of more than 27,500 tons is necessary, while the United States maintains that 35,000-ton ships will remain.

On this point the Japanese and British see alike.

The British and Americans maintain in air of optimism and believe there is still a hope for another mutually satisfactory naval treaty.

Chicago Overwhelms Michigan, 27-0

MAROONS RIP WIDE HOLES IN KIPKE'S TEAM

GAIETY ON MIDWAY AFTER DECISIVE VICTORY

BY CHARLES W. DUNKLEY

Stagg Field, Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP)—There was gaiety on the midway tonight, for the University of Chicago football team rose up in all its might this afternoon and knocked the toppling Wolverines of Michigan off the peak of the Big Ten where they have been perched through four gridiron seasons. The score was 27 to 0.

There was nothing halfway about the Chicago triumph. Michigan went down beneath four touchdowns, two by Jay Berwanger and two by Ned Bartlett, and three placekicks for extra points by Berwanger.

It was the largest margin by which Chicago ever has defeated Michigan, the largest score by which Michigan has lost since 1919. The Maroons counted their first Big Ten Victory since 1932, and Michigan was forced to accept its first defeat by a western conference team since 1931. When Berwanger crashed through center for a touchdown in the second period he scored Chicago's first points against Michigan since the Maroons won from the Maize and Blue in 1919.

Superior Football

Berwanger, Chicago's sparkling little left-halfback, punter and passer, exploded the dynamite in Coach Clark Shaughnessey's well drilled machine that virtually blew the Wolverines out of any chance for a fifth straight title.

Chicago won because it played superior football, blocked better, ran back the Wolverines punts, while the Wolverines let their opponents kicks roll. The Maroons dashed off tackle, smashed at the ends and swept around them, and knocked over the Michigan secondary defense as they smashed over their four touchdowns. The Maroons plays clicked and the line charged harder and faster than the Wolverines.

The Wolverines offered a flash of football in the first period, then folded up before an offensive onslaught that was threatening to add a fifth touchdown as the game ended. Michigan threatened to score only twice, and never got beyond Chicago's 20-yard line. Willis Ward, Michigan's great negro athlete, who started at half-back and then was switched to end, had a scoring chance in the second period, when he caught a long pass from Russell Oliver, substitute quarterback on Chicago's 20-yard line, but the play was ruled illegal because of interference before the pass was made.

Chicago started on the way to its rampant victory just at the end of the first period, when Bartlett tossed a long pass to Baker, who stepped out of bounds barely a yard out from Michigan's goal. On the first play of the second period Berwanger cracked straight over center for the touchdown, but missed the try for the extra point.

Berwanger Runs 46 Yards

In the third period Berwanger thrilled the crowd with a 46-yard gallop to register his second touchdown. Regeczi, the Wolverine punted backed up to his own goal, punted to Flin Maroon quarterback, who was downed on Michigan's 46-yard line. On the first play, Berwanger took the ball, started toward the edge of the field, and behind a wall of Maroon blockers, cut loose for a dash down the sidelines, without a Wolverine hand being laid on

Borah Goes to Bat For Code Violator

Boise, Idaho, Oct. 13 (AP)—For a second time, Senator William E. Borah (R. Idaho) volunteered today to battle a code authority threatening, he said, to drive a small operator "out of business."

Advanced by Sam Bailey of Lapway, a small North Idaho town, that he had been ordered to comply with the code authority on prices and hours of operation for his trucking business, Senator Borah urged him to go ahead in his usual way and predicted the truck authorities would not attempt to enforce the code against him.

The action was similar to a proffer made by the senator to E. W. Nestor, Glenns Ferry baker, two months ago.

Agents of Terror Gang Confess Plot To Slay Alexander

BY RICHARD G. MASSOCK
(Copyright 1934, By The Associated Press)

Paris, Oct. 13—A Balkan terror band called the Ustashi, whose agents included a beautiful Slavic "gun girl" and a mysterious "doctor" now being tracked into the obscure corners of Europe, was revealed by French police today as the sinister power that sent its suicide squad to assassinate King Alexander at Marseille.

Two of the band's agents have confessed, police said, they came to France on a mission which "the doctor" told them at Lausanne was to slay the Yugoslav monarch.

That bullets from the deadly weapon supplied by the "gun-girl" also slew Foreign Minister Louis Barthou, tore apart the cabinet of France and sent a boy king flying from his school books to the throne of Yugoslavia, combined to make the hunt for missing links in the plot the most sensational Europe has known in a generation.

Each Got New Suit

A drastic cabinet shakeup was in progress in Paris following upon the resignations of two high ministers. International complications brought about the double assassination, together with charges that Hungary had been harboring members of the Ustashi, caused hints that the whole affair might be dumped into the lap of the League of Nations.

From an obscure clue in the clothing of the slain assassin, Petrus Kalemen, the French cabete swiftly ferreted out an amazing series of complications involving a nightmare of names and aliases used by the terrorists.

A label in Kalemen's new suit was traced to a clothing house. Companions of Kalemen's were located and arrested. They talked, involving others.

The long arms of the police of eight countries were reaching out to uncover the whole story of the group of gunmen who gathered at a Hungary refugee haunt, "Jankaruszta" near the Yugoslav border and went from there to spread death and destruction, getting their final instructions near the scene of action.

Every member of the "suicide squad," it was disclosed, was outfitted with new clothing for his funeral, as was Kalemen, for they went prepared to die while they killed.

Hungary, denying at first there was any fugitive haunt within its borders, now is investigating what the French police disclosed—that the men in custody said they had held target

LAMSON GIVEN ANOTHER TRIAL

Jurists Believe He Is Guilty But Entitled To Rehearing

San Francisco, Oct. 13 (AP)—Although a majority of the justices of the state supreme court were described by Chief Justice William H. Waste as believing David A. Lamson guilty, the high tribunal today granted the Stanford university press executive a new trial on charges of blundgeoning his attractive wife to death in a campus cottage.

The extraordinary statement was made by Justice Waste to assembled newsmen as the court handed down a decision saying the evidence upon which Lamson was sentenced to death last fall was "no stronger than mere suspicion."

"A reading of the various opinions of the justices," said Justice Waste, "shows a majority of them feel Lamson is guilty, but all of them believe him entitled to a retrial."

"It is better that a guilty man escape than to condemn to death one who may be innocent," said the majority opinion.

Aviatrix Shooting At Turner's Mark

Los Angeles, Oct. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Maxine Howard, 22-year-old aviatrix who has been flying less than a year said today she would take off early tomorrow from Burbank on an attempted non-stop flight to New York. She is the wife of Ben Howard, United Air Lines pilot.

"I'm shooting for Col. Roscoe Turner's transcontinental mark of 10 hours, two minutes," she said.

LEGAL DELAYS IN HAUPTMANN CASE OPPOSED

DEFENSE STALLING, SAYS NEW JERSEY OFFICIAL

BY SAMUEL G. BLACKMAN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 13 (AP)—New Jersey charged today that Bruno Richard Hauptmann's defense was "stalling" in its moves to balk extradition, and pledged every possible legal means would be used to speed the Bronx alien's removal to this state for trial on the charge he murdered the kidnaped Charles A. Lindbergh, jr.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz, in announcing New Jersey would fight any legal maneuvers designed to hold up the extradition for months, pointed out the state's deliberate progress in the case had given the defense ample time.

"New Jersey has been proceeding slowly so as not to rush the defendant," he said.

"We now feel, however, that all of his present moves are dilatory, and, to prevent any undue delay, we will make every effort to expedite the extradition proceedings as far as legally possible."

This was New Jersey's first comment on the defense's avowed intention of carrying the fight against extradition to the highest courts, if need be. James M. Fawcett, Hauptmann's attorney, has said he will appeal immediately if his client loses in the habeas corpus proceedings on which hearings start Monday.

Plan Few Witnesses

Wilentz, chief of the legal staff that will prosecute Hauptmann if he is tried in this state, declined to discuss what legal weapons the state would use to speed the extradition. He was equally noncommital on his plans for the habeas corpus hearings.

From a source close to Wilentz it was learned, however, that only a half dozen or so prosecution witnesses were considered necessary to present the case against Hauptmann Monday. The witnesses will be those whose testimony will tend to contradict defense evidence that the former machine gunner was not in the state at the time of the crime.

While no witnesses were specifically named, it was indicated Millard Whited, Lambertville logger; Frank Rossiter of Maplewood, Captain John J. Lamb of the state police, and a few others would be called. Rossiter and Whited have allegedly placed Hauptmann near the scene of the crime, and Lamb is expected to swear Hauptmann is a fugitive.

That the state's strategy for the hearing has been settled was seen in Wilentz' statement, "We have decided on everything." The payment of the ransom money and the ransom note phases of the case were not expected to figure in New Jersey's part in the proceedings.

While Jersey's legal forces were preparing for Monday's habeas corpus hearing, the defense was also busy. A private detective employed in Hauptmann's behalf, stated the defense would present at the hearing seven or eight witnesses from Hopewell, N. J., to refute the testimony of prosecuiton witnesses who have identified Hauptmann in connection with the fatal kidnaping. Defense Counsel Fawcett, discussing the hearing, said he had not definitely decided to place his client on the stand in the proceedings.

Meanwhile department of justice agents were continuing their active participation in the case, despite rumors that they had been withdrawn.

Farley Approves Donahey Candidacy

Columbus, O., Oct. 13 (AP)—Postmaster General James A. Farley tonight threw the weight of the national administration behind the candidacy of Vic Donahey for United States senator.

The Democratic candidate, three tims governor of Ohio, in turn gave Farley a message to the president saying that if elected to the senate "I will be a free man without pledge or promise that will in any way embarrass him or his administration."

The postmaster general called upon Ohio Democrats to support the "new deal" by defeating Senator Simeon D. Fess, bitter critic of the president's policies, and Donahey's Republican opponent

Funeral Services Held for Captain

Cleveland, Oct. 13 (AP)—Funeral services for Capt. George H. Banker, 66, who was cited twice for rescue work on the Great Lakes, were being completed here today.

Captain Banker, for the last 33 years master of ships in the Pittsburgh Steamship Co. fleet, died at his home in suburban Lakewood late Friday. He was born at Harbor Beach, Mich., and began his sailing career at 17 with the coast guard at Points Aux Barques, Lake Huron.

On Lake Michigan June 28, 1919, Captain Banker and the crew of his ship, the Trimble, helped rescue the crew of the City of Holland, which was caught in a severe storm. On November 6, 1925, he fastened a line to the passenger steamer Harmonic, helpless on Lake Superior, and towed her to the Soo river.

FLOYD SLIPS TROUGH NET

Widespread Hunt Fails To Turn Any Clues Regarding Killer

Kansas City, Oct. 13. (AP)—Belief that Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, killer and bank robber, had slipped through a police net drawn about central Missouri and fled to Iowa or some other hide-out was expressed by authorities today.

A widespread manhunt which began when the outlaw was reported sighted in the central part of the state yesterday morning failed to turn up any clues to him in this vicinity, but department of justice agents at Little Rock were informed that two men, one of them wounded and resembling Floyd, had purchased gasoline at Biscoe, Ark., this afternoon and had then taken a highway toward Little Rock, 45 miles away. R. E. Farris, proprietor of the filling station said the man resembling Floyd bore a head wound.

Search Not Abandoned

Almost at the same time, Oklahoma officers, tipped that Floyd and two companions, one a woman, had been seen in Pawhuska in a sedan bearing a Kentucky license, located two men and a woman at a tourist camp near Bartlesville. One man, the officers said, bore a close resemblance to Floyd. Fingerprints were taken. The men told officers they were salesmen.

Missouri troopers, who had patrolled the highways during the night, were ordered today to return to their regular duties.

Col. B. Marvin Casteel, superintendent of the Missouri highway patrol, said however, the order did not mean his men were giving up the search.

A national guard airplane, equipped with a machine gun, was held in readiness to take off in event of any developments in the hunt. County and city authorities also remained on the alert.

Casteel said he believed Floyd and his two companions had fled to Iowa.

A possibility the man identified as Floyd was Louis Lustig, sought for questioning in connection with the slaying last week of a Kansas City policeman, was pointed out today by Thomas J. Higgins, Kansas City chief of police.

Higgins said Floyd and Lustig bore a marked resemblance, and expressed doubt Floyd would be traveling in this section just a few days after the department of justice had named him as one of the three men who killed four officers and a convict at the Kansas City Union station in June 1933.

Nudists Shiver At Akron Convention

Akron, O., Oct. 13 (AP)—Shivering and almost blue with the cold, delegates to the International Nudists conference which began near here today, emerged from a brook and hastily donned their clothing before opening a business session.

Devotion to their cause overcame the delegates' love of warmth in the middle of the afternoon. As the sun began to remove traces of last night's frost, the first of the 40 men and women delegates hesitantly removed their clothing for the brief dip in the brook.

Guards with rifles patroled the boundaries of the "only nudist country club in the world," where the convention is being held, to keep out the curious.

FRANTIC PLEA IS BROADCAST TO ABDUCTOR

WOODS COMBED BY FEDERAL AGENTS IN KENTUCKY

BY DILLARD STOKES
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 13. (AP)—What appeared to be bloodstains on a nearby boathouse pier and a mysteriously torn telephone book were found late today shortly after Berry V. Stoll had broadcast another frantic plea to his wife's kidnaper.

The spots on the pier were noticed by three youths while police and federal agents combed the brush and woods near the handsome 16-acre Stoll estate. That sudden move which began this morning had been interpreted by at least one police participant as indicating the family feared Mrs. Stoll had met death from the kidnaper. The husband's latest appeal indicated the same feeling.

"In her present weakened condition, even a day may be too long," he declared. The 26-year-old society woman was ill with a cold when slugged and forced from home last Wednesday.

Black Finger Prints

Efforts were made immediately by investigators to determine whether the stains on the pier and those found on a blanket inside the broken-open boat house might be blood. They also worked to determine whether there was any connection with the abduction in these latest clues that have entered into the baffling case.

The telephone directory had 65 pages torn out. The last page missing was opposite the one containing the names of the Stoll family. The Harrods Creek section of the book showed some score of names marked by a line drawn across them. Black finger prints were on the directory.

The youths, K. J. Schwabenton, Cliff Langley and Dan Grey, Jr., said that several times in the last two weeks they had seen an old, canopied boat at the seldom-used pier. The boathouse is on the Ohio river a short distance from the Stoll estate. Investigators immediately began efforts to determine whether the spots were bloodstains and to try to learn the significance of the youths' find.

"We are not in any way trying to catch or trap the party who carried my wife off, but, not having received any word from Alice, we fear that she may have been abandoned and we have consented that she be looked for, as she is ill, and in her present weakened condition, even a day may be too long. We pray that she will be released in a safe, warm place and we be notified immediately how to reach her. We have complied with everything requested.

(Signed)
"Berry V. Stoll."

$50,000 Ransom Paid

The reiteration that all the kidnaper's requests had been complied with were not elaborated upon by any member of the family or officials, but it was evident that the $50,000 in cash had been sent as demanded. There was no indication, however, that the kidnaper himself had actually received it. It became known authoritatively that there had been no contact with the kidnaper since yesterday's plea by Stoll and it ap-

Miners Threaten Suicide If Wages Are Not Raised

Pecs, Hungary, Oct. 13 (AP)—More than 1,000 coal miners here sent up from their workings tonight an ultimatum that they will kill themselves by shutting off air if their demands for higher wages are not met.

The miners had been underground more than 48 hours, refusing food. Six of their numbers stood at the entrance with axes permitting no one to go down.

"Rather than suffer the slow pangs of death by starvation we will commit suicide by smothering ourselves unless you grant our demands within twelve hours," the ultimatum read.

But the Danube Steam Navigation company, which owns the mine, refused stoutly to order a wage increase. The miners are receiving about $2 weekly. They ask $3.50.

GAIETY ON MIDWAY AFTER DECISIVE VICTORY

BY CHARLES W. DUNKLEY

Stagg Field, Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP)—There was gaiety on the midway tonight, for the University of Chicago football team rose up in all its might this afternoon and knocked the toppling Wolverines of Michigan off the peak of the Big Ten where they have been perched through four gridiron seasons. The score was 27 to 0.

There was nothing halfway about the Chicago triumph. Michigan went down beneath four touchdowns, two by Jay Berwanger and two by Ned Bartlett, and three placekicks for extra points by Berwanger.

It was the largest margin by which Chicago ever has defeated Michigan, the largest score by which Michigan has lost since 1919. The Maroons counted their first Big Ten Victory since 1932, and Michigan was forced to accept its first defeat by a western conference team since 1931. When Berwanger crashed through center for a touchdown in the second period he scored Chicago's first points against Michigan since the Maroons won from the Maize and Blue in 1919.

Superior Football

Berwanger, Chicago's sparkling little left-halfback, punter and passer, exploded the dynamite in Coach Clark Shaughnessey's well drilled machine that virtually blew the Wolverines out of any chance for a fith straight title.

Chicago won because it played superior football, blocked better, ran back the Wolverines punts, while the Wolverines let their opponents kicks roll. The Maroons dashed off tackle, smashed at the ends and swept around them, and knocked over the Michigan secondary defense as they smashed over their four touchdowns. The Maroons plays clicked and the line charged harder and faster than the Wolverines.

The Wolverines offered a flash of football in the first period, then folded up before an offensive onslaught that was threatening to add a fifth touchdown as the game ended. Michigan threatened to score only twice, and never got beyond Chicago's 20-yard line. Willis Ward, Michigan's great negro athlete, who started at half-back and then was switched to end, had a scoring chance in the second period, when he caught a long pass from Russell Oliver, substitute quarterback on Chicago's 20-yard line, but the play was ruled illegal because of interference before the pass was made.

Chicago started on the way to its rampant victory just at the end of the first period, when Bartlett tossed a long pass to Baker, who stepped out of bounds barely a yard out from Michigan's goal. On the first play of the second period Berwanger cracked straight over center for the touchdown, but missed the try for the extra point.

Berwanger Runs 46 Yards

In the third period Berwanger thrilled the crowd with a 46-yard gallop to register his second touchdown. Regeczi, the Wolverine punted backed up to his own goal, punted to Flin Maroon quarterback, who was downed on Michigan's 46-yard line. On the first play, Berwanger took the ball, started toward the edge of the field, and behind a wall of Maroon blockers, cut loose for a dash down the sidelines, without a Wolverine hand being laid on

Borah Goes to Bat For Code Violator

Boise, Idaho, Oct. 13 (AP)—For a second time, Senator William E. Borah (R. Idaho) volunteered today to battle a code authority threatening, he said, to drive a small operator "out of business."

Advanced by Sam Bailey of Lapway, a small North Idaho town, that he had been ordered to comply with the code authority on prices and hours of operation for his trucking business, Senator Borah urged him to go ahead in his usual way and predicted the truck authorities would not attempt to enforce the code against him.

The action was similar to a proffer made by the senator to E. W. Nestor, Glenns Ferry baker, two months ago.

Outlaw Trailed Over Wide Area

Posses in several midwest states were believed hot on the trail of Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, notorious Oklahoma outlaw, who with two companions was reported sighted in many communities as officers spread the net they hoped would trap him. Agents of Terror Gang Confess Plot To Slay Alexander

BY RICHARD G. MASSOCK

Paris, Oct. 13—A Balkan terror band called the Ustashi, whose agents included a beautiful Slavic "gun girl" and a mysterious "doctor" now being tracked into the obscure corners of Europe, was revealed by French police today as the sinister power that sent its suicide squad to assassinate King Alexander at Marseille.

Two of the band's agents have confessed, police said, they came to France on a mission which "the doctor" told them at Lausanne was to slay the Yugoslav monarch.

That bullets from the deadly weapon supplied by the "gun-girl" also slew Foreign Minister Louis Barthou, tore apart the cabinet of France and sent a boy king flying from his school books to the throne of Yugoslavia, combined to make the hunt for missing links in the plot the most sensational Europe has known in a generation.

Each Got New Suit

A drastic cabinet shakeup was in progress in Paris following upon the resignations of two high ministers. International complications brought about the double assassination, together with charges that Hungary had been harboring members of the Ustashi, caused hints that the whole affair might be dumped into the lap of the League of Nations.

From an obscure clue in the clothing of the slain assassin, Petrus Kalemen, the French cabete swiftly ferreted out an amazing series of complications involving a nightmare of names and aliases used by the terrorists.

A label in Kalemen's new suit was traced to a clothing house. Companions of Kalemen's were located and arrested. They talked, involving others.

The long arms of the police of eight countries were reaching out to uncover the whole story of the group of gunmen who gathered at a Hungary refugee haunt, "Jankaruszta" near the Yugoslav border and went from there to spread death and destruction, getting their final instructions near the scene of action.

Every member of the "suicide squad," it was disclosed, was outfitted with new clothing for his funeral, as was Kalemen, for they went prepared to die while they killed.

Hungary, denying at first there was any fugitive haunt within its borders, now is investigating what the French police disclosed—that the men in custody said they had held target

LAMSON GIVEN ANOTHER TRIAL

Jurists Believe He Is Guilty But Entitled To Rehearing

San Francisco, Oct. 13 (AP)—Although a majority of the justices of the state supreme court were described by Chief Justice William H. Waste as believing David A. Lamson guilty, the high tribunal today granted the Stanford university press executive a new trial on charges of blundgeoning his attractive wife to death in a campus cottage.

The extraordinary statement was made by Justice Waste to assembled newsmen as the court handed down a decision saying the evidence upon which Lamson was sentenced to death last fall was "no stronger than mere suspicion."

"A reading of the various opinions of the justices," said Justice Waste, "shows a majority of them feel Lamson is guilty, but all of them believe him entitled to a retrial."

"It is better that a guilty man escape than to condemn to death one who may be innocent," said the majority opinion.

Prosecuting officials were noncommittal on arrangements for trial of Lamson agai

Los Angeles, Oct. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Maxine Howard, 22-year-old aviatrix who has been flying less than a year said today she would take off early tomorrow from Burbank on an attempted non-stop flight to New York. She is the wife of Ben Howard, United Air Lines pilot.

"I'm shooting for Col. Roscoe Turner's transcontinental mark of 10 hours, two minutes," she said.

LEGAL DELAYS IN HAUPTMANN CASE OPPOSED

BY SAMUEL G. BLACKMAN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 13 (AP)—New Jersey charged today that Bruno Richard Hauptmann's defense was "stalling" in its moves to balk extradition, and pledged every possible legal means would be used to speed the Bronx alien's removal to this state for trial on the charge he murdered the kidnaped Charles A. Lindbergh, jr.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz, in announcing New Jersey would fight any legal maneuvers designed to hold up the extradition for months, pointed out the state's deliberate progress in the case had given the defense ample time.

"New Jersey has been proceeding slowly so as not to rush the defendant," he said.

"We now feel, however, that all of his present moves are dilatory, and, to prevent any undue delay, we will make every effort to expedite the extradition proceedings as far as legally possible."

This was New Jersey's first comment on the defense's avowed intention of carrying the fight against extradition to the highest courts, if need be. James M. Fawcett, Hauptmann's attorney, has said he will appeal immediately if his client loses in the habeas corpus proceedings on which hearings start Monday.

Plan Few Witnesses

Wilentz, chief of the legal staff that will prosecute Hauptmann if he is tried in this state, declined to discuss what legal weapons the state would use to speed the extradition. He was equally noncommital on his plans for the habeas corpus hearings.

From a source close to Wilentz it was learned, however, that only a half dozen or so prosecution witnesses were considered necessary to present the case against Hauptmann Monday. The witnesses will be those whose testimony will tend to contradict defense evidence that the former machine gunner was not in the state at the time of the crime.

While no witnesses were specifically named, it was indicated Millard Whited, Lambertville logger; Frank Rossiter of Maplewood, Captain John J. Lamb of the state police, and a few others would be called. Rossiter and Whited have allegedly placed Hauptmann near the scene of the crime, and Lamb is expected to swear Hauptmann is a fugitive.

That the state's strategy for the hearing has been settled was seen in Wilentz' statement, "We have decided on everything." The payment of the ransom money and the ransom note phases of the case were not expected to figure in New Jersey's part in the proceedings.

While Jersey's legal forces were preparing for Monday's habeas corpus hearing, the defense was also busy. A private detective employed in Hauptmann's behalf, stated the defense would present at the hearing seven or eight witnesses from Hopewell, N. J., to refute the testimony of prosecuiton witnesses who have identified Hauptmann in connection with the fatal kidnaping. Defense Counsel Fawcett, discussing the hearing, said he had not definitely decided to place his client on the stand in the proceedings.

Meanwhile department of justice agents were continuing their active participation in the case, despite rumors that they had been withdrawn.

Farley Approves Donahey Candidacy

Columbus, O., Oct. 13 (AP)—Postmaster General James A. Farley tonight threw the weight of the national administration behind the candidacy of Vic Donahey for United States senator.

The Democratic candidate, three tims governor of Ohio, in turn gave Farley a message to the president saying that if elected to the senate "I will be a free man without pledge or promise that will in any way embarrass him or his administration."

The postmaster general called upon Ohio Democrats to support the "new deal" by defeating Senator Simeon D. Fess, bitter critic of the president's policies, and Donahey's Republican opponent

Funeral Services Held for Captain

Cleveland, Oct. 13 (AP)—Funeral services for Capt. George H. Banker, 66, who was cited twice for rescue work on the Great Lakes, were being completed here today.

Captain Banker, for the last 33 years master of ships in the Pittsburgh Steamship Co. fleet, died at his home in suburban Lakewood late Friday. He was born at Harbor Beach, Mich., and began his sailing career at 17 with the coast guard at Points Aux Barques, Lake Huron.

On Lake Michigan June 28, 1919, Captain Banker and the crew of his ship, the Trimble, helped rescue the crew of the City of Holland, which was caught in a severe storm. On November 6, 1925, he fastened a line to the passenger steamer Harmonic, helpless on Lake Superior, and towed her to the Soo river.

FLOYD SLIPS TROUGH NET

Widespread Hunt Fails To Turn Any Clues Regarding Killer

Kansas City, Oct. 13. (AP)—Belief that Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, killer and bank robber, had slipped through a police net drawn about central Missouri and fled to Iowa or some other hideout was expressed by authorities today.

A widespread manhunt which began when the outlaw was reported sighted in the central part of the state yesterday morning failed to turn up any clues to him in this vicinity, but department of justice agents at Little Rock were informed that two men, one of them wounded and resembling Floyd, had purchased gasoline at Biscoe, Ark., this afternoon and had then taken a highway toward Little Rock, 45 miles away. R. E. Farris, proprietor of the filling station said the man resembling Floyd bore a head wound.

Search Not Abandoned

Almost at the same time, Oklahoma officers, tipped that Floyd and two companions, one a woman, had been seen in Pawhuska in a sedan bearing a Kentucky license, located two men and a woman at a tourist camp near Bartlesville. One man, the officers said, bore a close resemblance to Floyd. Fingerprints were taken. The men told officers they were salesmen.

Missouri troopers, who had patrolled the highways during the night, were ordered today to return to their regular duties.

Col. B. Marvin Casteel, superintendent of the Missouri highway patrol, said however, the order did not mean his men were giving up the search.

A national guard airplane, equipped with a machine gun, was held in readiness to take off in event of any developments in the hunt. County and city authorities also remained on the alert.

Casteel said he believed Floyd and his two companions had fled to Iowa.

A possibility the man identified as Floyd was Louis Lustig, sought for questioning in connection with the slaying last week of a Kansas City policeman, was pointed out today by Thomas J. Higgins, Kansas City chief of police.

Higgins said Floyd and Lustig bore a marked resemblance, and expressed doubt Floyd would be traveling in this section just a few days after the department of justice had named him as one of the three men who killed four officers and a convict at the Kansas City Union station in June 1933.

Nudists Shiver At Akron Convention

Akron, O., Oct. 13 (AP)—Shivering and almost blue with the cold, delegates to the International Nudists conference which began near here today, emerged from a brook and hastily donned their clothing before opening a business session.

Devotion to their cause overcame the delegates' love of warmth in the middle of the afternoon. As the sun began to remove traces of last night's frost, the first of the 40 men and women delegates hesitantly removed their clothing for the brief dip in the brook.

Guards with rifles patroled the boundaries of the "only nudist country club in the world," where the convention is being held, to keep out the curious

FRANTIC PLEA IS BROADCAST TO ABDUCTOR

WOODS COMBED BY FEDERAL AGENTS IN KENTUCKY

BY DILLARD STOKES
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 13. (AP)—What appeared to be bloodstains on a nearby boathouse pier and a mysteriously torn telephone book were found late today shortly after Berry V. Stoll had broadcast another frantic plea to his wife's kidnaper.

The spots on the pier were noticed by three youths while police and federal agents combed the brush and woods near the handsome 16-acre Stoll estate. That sudden move which began this morning had been interpreted by at least one police participant as indicating the family feared Mrs. Stoll had met death from the kidnaper. The husband's latest appeal indicated the same feeling.

"In her present weakened condition, even a day may be too long," he declared. The 26-year-old society woman was ill with a cold when slugged and forced from home last Wednesday.

Black Finger Prints

Efforts were made immediately by investigators to determine whether the stains on the pier and those found on a blanket inside the broken-open boat house might be blood. They also worked to determine whether there was any connection with the abduction in these latest clues that have entered into the baffling case.

The telephone directory had 65 pages torn out. The last page missing was opposite the one containing the names of the Stoll family. The Harrods Creek section of the book showed some score of names marked by a line drawn across them. Black finger prints were on the directory.

The youths, K. J. Schwabenton, Cliff Langley and Dan Grey, Jr., said that several times in the last two weeks they had seen an old, canopied boat at the seldom-used pier. The boathouse is on the Ohio river a short distance from the Stoll estate. Investigators immediately began efforts to determine whether the spots were bloodstains and to try to learn the significance of the youths' find.

"We are not in any way trying to catch or trap the party who carried my wife off, but, not having received any word from Alice, we fear that she may have been abandoned and we have consented that she be looked for, as she is ill, and in her present weakened condition, even a day may be too long. We pray that she will be released in a safe, warm place and we be notified immediately how to reach her. We have complied with everything requested.

(Signed)
"Berry V. Stoll."

$50,000 Ransom Paid

The reiteration that all the kidnaper's requests had been complied with were not elaborated upon by any member of the family or officials, but it was evident that the $50,000 in cash had been sent as demanded. There was no indication, however, that the kidnaper himself had actually received it. It became known authoritatively that there had been no contact with the kidnaper since yesterday's plea by Stoll and it ap-

Miners Threaten Suicide If Wages Are Not Raised

Pecs, Hungary, Oct. 13 (AP)—More than 1,000 coal miners here sent up from their workings tonight an ultimatum that they will kill themselves by shutting off air if their demands for higher wages are not met.

The miners had been underground more than 48 hours, refusing food. Six of their numbers stood at the entrance with axes permitting no one to go down.

"Rather than suffer the slow pangs of death by starvation we will commit suicide by smothering ourselves unless you grant our demands within twelve hours," the ultimatum read.

But the Danube Steam Navigation company, which owns the mine, refused stoutly to order a wage increase. The miners are receiving about $2 weekly. They ask $3.50.

BOND PROGRAM SHOWS CREDIT

Chamber Reviews Federal Monetary Situation

BY RICHARD L. TURNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—A "favorable indication of the strength of government credit" was found in the success of the treasury's huge bond conversion program today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

In addition, the organization, which repeatedly has opposed large governmental expenditures, forecast in its fortnightly review an effort for the coming winter to "force states and localities to assume a larger share of the relief burden."

Such action, it said, if accompanied by a "marked upswing in business," with a resulting increased federal tax yield, "would make budget balancing a simpler problem." However, it said that "relief will continue on a wide scale so long as there is country-wide unemployment."

Prices Too Low

Of the recent resurgence of inflationary reports and yesterday's general denial that immediate steps in this direction were planned, the Chamber had nothing to say. It took note, nevertheless, of President Roosevelt's assertion of mid-week that prices were still too low for monetary stabilization.

"Official expressions of a desire to see a further rise in prices have not given a clear-cut idea as to just what is intended or how it is going to be brought about," the review said.

"It is believed the administration does not have in mind any general price rise, such as was talked about some time ago, but rather would like to see a better balancing of prices, with price increases in commodities and values that fell most and which have not responded proportionally."

The president, meanwhile, is not revealing just what he did mean by his reference to prices and he is not binding himself against further niflationary moves such as another devaluation of the gold dollar.

The chief executive cruised upon sun-flooded Chesapeake bay today with Secretary Morgenthau and Governor George L. Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve Bank as his guests.

Federal reserve system figures, meanwhile, showed that the country's banks have increased their holdings of government bonds to the highest point in history, absorbing more than half of the last year's $4,000,000,000 increase in the public debt. Their total holdings, combined with those of the reserve banks, were estimated at more than half the entire public debt of $27,000,000,000.

Expenses Denied For Persons Shot By Federal Agents

Washington, Oct. 13. (AP)—Comptroller General J. R. McCarl ruled today that the government could not pay the hospital expenses of three persons wounded by department of justice agents in their efforts to bring down John Dillinger.

The three persons are a woman—Miss Etta Natalsky, who was shot when Dillinger was killed in Chicago; and two C. C. C. workers who were wounded when federal agents fired on a car near Little Bohemia lodge in Wisconsin last spring in the belief that the machine carried members of the Dillinger gang.

The men are John Hoffman and John Norris. The expenses incurred for them were $324.05 for hospitalization at Ironwood, Mich., and a $301 bill submitted by a St. Paul doctor.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Benton Harbor, Mich., Oct. 13 (AP)—Virgil Kwast, 10, was near death Saturday in Mercy hospital with a bullet wound in his head accidentally inflicted by his brother, Eugene, 12, who pointed a rifle at Virgil as he lay in bed at his farm home southeast of here.

New York City's 4445 theaters, including motion picture houses, can entertain 1,499,604 persons at the same time.

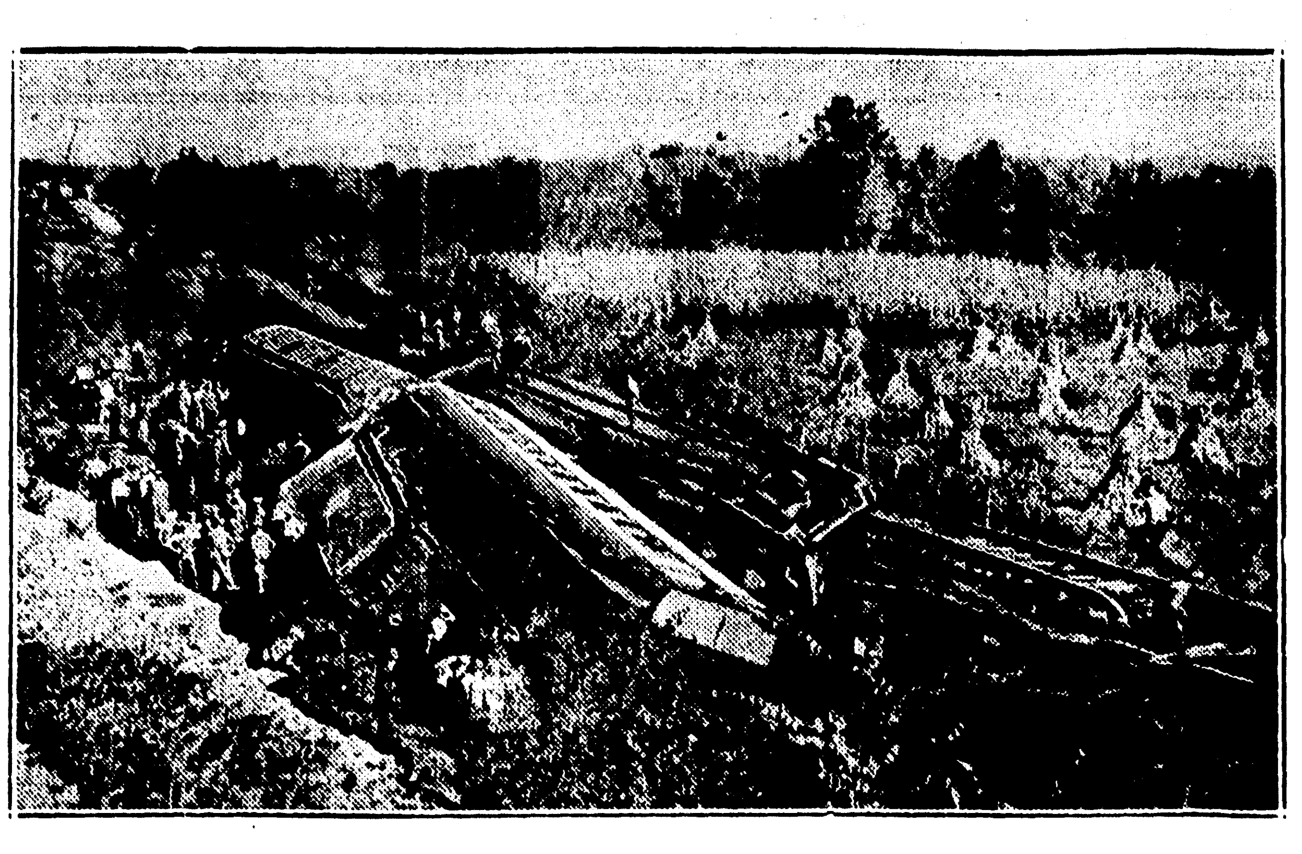
Wreck That Killed Four Laid to Broken Rail



The broken rail shown at right is believed to have been the cause of this wreck on the Milwaukee railroad near Guttenberg, Ia., in which four were killed and three badly injured. Engine, tender, and the two passenger cars were piled up in a creek bed, when the train plunged off a small bridge down a 15-foot grade, the impact hurling the last car ahead of the locomotive.

Strife-Torn Yugoslavia Is Land of Much Beauty

(This is the second of two articles by Milton Bronner, NEA Service European manager, analyzing the present perilous situation in Yugo-Slavia, as a result of the assassination of King Alexander I, and telling of Bronner's observations on a recent tour of the land over which the war threat hangs.)

* * *

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service European Manager

London, Eng.—Beneath the surface run ugly currents of ancient hatreds, but to the traveler who beckons not of this, Yugo-Slavia is a land of rare charm.

He notes little of the bitterness seething among minorities which cry of Serb oppression as he goes from beauty spot to beauty spot in that country so favored by nature, now threatened by rebellion following the assassination of King Alexander I.

The traveler has missed much who never has seen Dubrovnik, that ancient town far down on the Dalmatian coast. It is known in history as Ragusa, but has been rechristianed since Dalmatia passed from Austrian sway to that of Yugo-Slavia.

Seen from the sea, it looks like a Mediterranean Italian town, but the bulk of the population is pure Slav.

It dates back to the seventh century. There was a time when it called itself a republic and was a sort of Dalmatian Venice—without the canals. It traded with the east. It sent its ships all over the Adriatic and the Mediterranean.

They Still Are Ragusans

Even to this day the people do not call themselves Dalmatians. They are Ragusans.

The old city is one of the most perfect walled towns in Europe. Within those walls and towers, where every inch of soil was precious, the Ragusans built their houses close together, huddled around their churches.

The narrow streets—too narrow for passage of any vehicle—give coolness in the hot summer season and protection from the icy winds and rains in the winter.

The newest houses in the old town are about 250 years old. Some date back 500 years. But Ragusa has outgrown the walled city. There is a newer town outside the walls, not half so picturesque or charming.

Charm Sinks Deep

Let the tourist be warned. If he goes to Dubrovnik, he may not want to come away—ever. He will become a lotus-eater and dream and dream the hours away in the hot sunshine.

He will sit on a balcony from which a marvelous picture will be spread before him. Above, a deep blue sky. In the distance beyond a matching turquoise blue—the lapping waters of the calm Adriatic Sea. At his back the tall Dalmatian mountains, up whose slopes the new town perilously creeps.

Below him the ancient town with its walls, towers and forts. His lungs will breathe an insidious air, embalmed by the salt sea, the breath of the mountains, the heady scent of pines, firs, cypress and flowering oleanders.

Only the Bora Is Evil

He will dine in a semi-tropic garden under the rustling leaves of tall palm trees. Only one thing will ever break him from his idle lethargy—the Bora.

The natives curse it and with season. It is the keen cold wind that sometimes comes raging and tearing from the mountain tops.

From this ancient Dalmatian coast town it is possible to take two excursions which are bound to surprise even the most blase traveler—one to the island of deep silence, the other to the miniature town of shrill noises.

Linked With Famed Names

Just a half mile out of the harbor of Dubrovnik lies the little island of Logrum. It stands out in the blue Adriatic like an emerald of deep green hue. Two famous names are connected with it.

Centuries ago, when Richard Coeur de Lion, King of England, after his victorious crusade against the Moslems, suddenly started home to quell rebellion in his own kingdom, he was wrecked in the Adriatic and had a narrow escape from drowning.

He landed on Lokrum and proposed to found a church there in thanksgiving, but was later persuaded to build on the mainland.

Home of Maximilian

In the middle of the nineteenth century, Lokrum fell under the eye of Archduke Maximilian, brother of the late Emperor Franz Josef of the old Austro-Hungarian empire. Maximilian chose it as his summer home and built a small chateau right in the center.

Afterward, encouraged by the French, he went to Mexico, backed by French arms, and made himself emperor, but later, when the Mexicans rebelled, he was executed.

But long before his fall, he had sent back to Lokrum many sub-tropical Mexican plants and flowers. He always dreamed of returning to his island paradise.

Island of Silence

The visitor to Lokrum in late August or early September has an eerie experience. His boatman lands him and tells him he will call back for him in two hours.

A narrow path leads invitingly up the slope. Once he's turned the corner, all he sees is a thick growth of pines, cedars, firs and sub-tropical plants and vines.

There is no song of birds, no shrilling of insects, no sound of footfalls on the pine needle carpet; nothing but the deepest, most impressive silence, and a sense of utter loneliness and isolation.

It is an island paradise, but only for one who wants to shun his fellow men.

Where Races Clash

Trebinje, in Herzegovina, is another thing altogether. It illustrates one of Yugo-Slavia's problems.

Not only is the nation's politics dominated by provincial ambitions, not only do the Croatians and the Slovenians feel themselves somewhat different from the old Serbs—but religious feelings also divide the population.

About 40 per cent of the people are Roman Catholics. They live mainly in the former Austro-Hungarian provinces of Slovenia, Croatia and Dalmatia. About 45 per cent are Greek Orthodox and live mainly in old Serbia and the Banat.

About 10 per cent are Moslems and live mainly in Herzegovina and Bosnia. They call themselves "Turkso," but there is nothing Turkish about them. They are Moslems of pure Yugo-Slav blood.

More than 500 years ago, when the Turks conquered all this part of the country, many of the peasants as well as the noblemen became Moslems. They wanted to keep their property and their privileges. But in time they became faithful Moslems and are so to this day.

A Touch of the Orient

A 25-mile auto ride through horseshoe passes in the Dalmatian mountains from Dubrovnik takes one to the town of Trebinje. There one is suddenly in the real Orient.

In Trebinje the Yugo-Slav Moslems wear the fez and the women go about with faces covered with black cloth. The streets are Eastern, save that there are no camels. But there are dozens of heavily laden asses.

The shops, as in the Stamboul section of Istanbul, are little holes in the wall where Moslems are busy hammering out brass pans or cutting crude leather for the soft, tough Bosnian shoes and slippers.

In the market place the peasant women, who are Christians, display their fruits and vegetables. They all wear the quaint little Herzegovinian white caps, which look like monkey caps on a woman from the west, but are very becoming to the natives.

Muezzins Still Din

In front of the inns, regardless of the noise and the flies, grave men wearing the fez sit at table, sipping Turkish coffee and talking about nothing in particular.

There is plenty of noise until a bell clangs out the noon hour. Then the muezzins mount to the five minarets of the five Moslem mosques and chant the ritual observed in every Moslem town the world over.

For a short time a refreshing silence falls upon Trebinje. Trading ceases. Nobody calls his wares. Nobody shouts at a laden ass. The Moslems are on their knees in the mosques, faces turned toward Mecca, intoning their immemorial prayers to Allah.

peared that he had not communicated with the family since his first note giving directions was left. In that long, neatly typed document, typewritten figures demanding $30,000 had been scratched out and $50,000 inserted.

What might be a new clue in the case was reported today. Bennett Turner, 33, a carpenter, said he was positive a car passed his home half a mile away from the Stoll place last Wednesday carrying the kidnaped woman. He said the driver zig-zagged as though he were drunk. The woman, he said, had a piece of sticking plaster across her mouth and another on the right side of her head.

The carpenter's statement apparently settled the question in the minds of investigators as to the direction the kidnaper took and whether he had assistance.

The sudden search around the Stoll estate which was pressed throughout the day with apparently no conclusive results was joined in by department of justice agents and local authorities indicated it was ordered from Washington. Why, they refused to say, except that they sought clues. Federal men were even more reticent.

At a conference later officials said the "lapse of time" since the kidnaping Wednesday had caused the decision that the search should be made.

It was started nearly 20 hours after announcement that the kidnaper's requirements as to ransom had been met, and when there had been no reply from him so far as known and no indication of Mrs. Stoll's fate, W. S. Kammerer, spokesman for the family, reiterated today that no contact had been made, leaving the impression that all directions as to payment of the ransom had been given in the original kidnap note found on a bed in an upstairs room.

Mrs. Stoll, who according to her maid, Ann Woolet, resisted and offered a check to the kidnaper, was struck on the head until blood came before she was taken from the house, but cried "Let's go" when the man threatened to kill her husband, Berry V. Stoll, if he came in.

The kidnaper left a long, neatly typewritten note giving directions and breathing hatred for the woman's relations and only yesterday Berry Stoll, in a cryptic announcement he asked the newspapers to publish, announced that all the requirements had been met. He refused to say how or where he had paid out the $50,000.

Youth Accused Of Killing Grandmother

Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP)—For the strangulation of his 67-year-old grandmother, who died with a silk stocking gagging her mouth, a blanket around her head, James Soldat, 18, was charged with murder tonight.

Detectives said he and two friends, Frank Skowrowski, 17, and John Machiewski, 19, confessed trussing up Mrs. Anna Soldat yesterday before robbing her of $32, but insisted they had believed the aged woman would be able to loosen her bonds after they fled.

$1.42 FIGURES IN INSULL CASE

Investors Told Shares Would Earn That in 1930 Dividends

Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP) — It wouldn't buy a round of dime cigars for the defendants, but $1.42 came into sharper focus today as one of the key figures with which the government hopes to "prove a $100,000,000 swindle" case against Samuel Insull, Sr., and his 16 associates.

It was what investors were told—in writing and through the mail—that the Corporation Securities Co. would earn in 1930, per share, the government claims.

Over this and another item of $80,000,000, has and will rage a fight for which Assistant United States Attorney Harold Huling's auditors have been training since Sept. 28, 1929, when they first went into Insull's books.

The prosecutors may rely most heavily on these two figures to win the big point of their case—claims about the luckless stock are thrown in the final battle over evidence. They are using them already in an attempt to tunnel under Insull's expected defense that he is guilty of nothing worse than misjudgement, and went down with the depression.

The $80,000,000 represents the corporation's assets as allegedly described when investors were invited to sign up in 1929.

It will be the goverment's contention that only highly artificial bookkeeping could acount for the $80,000,000 figure; that the corporation had no earnings in prospect at all, and that use of the figures was a deliberate fraud.

The defense has already developed testimony that both figures were proper.

Italy was searching records, some of which were lost in the war, to determine if some of the band had been born in that country. Czechoslovakia has been busy proving the passports carried by the band were falsified, while Belgium, Switzerland and Germany traced the actual movements of the gang in transit to France.

The woman accomplice whose whereabouts was eagerly sought was described as pretty and brown-haired. Police gave her name as Marie Vjoudroch. Witnesses who had seen her with with other members of the gang described her as tall and very attractive, about 24, and a Czechoslovakian.

Cast of Characters

Here is the cast of characters in the drama, as revealed today by the police, with their aliases:

Petrus Kalemen, alias Rudolph Suk.

Ivan Rajtich, alias Wladislav Benes, alias Joseph Sever.

Zvonemer Pospechill, alias Yaroslav Novak, alias Istaban Ingar Sungar, who was arrested at Thonon.

Egon Kramer, alias Egon Kvaternik, who accompanied Kalemen to Aix the night before the shooting.

Dr. Ante Pavelich, chief of the Croat revolutionary band called the Ustashi, to which Pospechil admitted membership. The doctor is also known as Paverich.

Gustav Perec, chief of the Jankapuszta camp for Yugoslavian refugees in Hungary when the suicide band set out.

The first "mystery man" in the set-up was "the doctor" who gave the band instructions at Lausanne. A second mystery man, called Szabo, alias Stancher was supposed to be a lieutenant of Dr. Pavelich. There was also an old man who delivered the Hungarian passports at Jankapuszta.

Piccard Flight May Be Delayed A Week

Detroit, Oct. 13 (AP)—"Unfavorable wind cycles" may delay the proposed stratosphere baloon flight of Prof. and Mrs. Jean Piccard for a week or ten days, the scientist and his wife said today after being prevented from making a take-off early this morning because of a too-high wind velocity.

The Piccards plan to study the cosmic rays and for several weeks have awaited favorable weather, early today, 30,000 persons gathered at Ford airport, the Piccard base, only to be disappointed when the wind failed to die down.

GRANTED DIVORCE

Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 13 (AP)—Louis Crenno, 36, of Muskegon Heights, today was divorced from Nina Mae Crenno, who a few months ago returned "from the dead" after Crenno had remarried and was the father of two children by the second marriage. The Crennos separated eight years ago and her mother, Mrs. Fred Savoy, of Bessemer, identified a body found in Lake Michigan at Chicago as that of her daughter. Last summer Mrs. Crenno wrote her mother from New York. Crenno plans to re-marry his second wife.

The Recreational Use Of Cut-Over Lands

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is another of a series of articles written by Wilbur O. Hedrick of Michigan State College, based on a study of the resort business in the cut-over land regions of northern Michigan.)

Climate is a big feature in open-country recreational activity of every sort, and each of its elements, temperature, rainfall, sunshine, and prevailing winds are weighed with care by the vacationist. The cut-over lands have a cool summer climate, naturally, on account of high Michigan latitudes in which they are found, but their natural summer temperature is made still cooler by the nearby Great Lakes and by reason of the central watershed plateau, the "Michigan Highlands."

Summer Temperatures

The July temperature of the cut-over region, however, as shown by weather reports, is much cooler than the Michigan latitude warrants, since the summer temperature readings of this region are similar to those of the Canadian cities of Winnipeg and Port Arthur, many miles to the north. The exchange in this way of a foreign, July climate for the one common to other states in Michigan latitudes is in no way violation of our national trade policy forbidding imports. It is due, of course, to the well known cooling effects of Lake Michigan upon the "westerlies" which sweep over its surface, an influence which arises from the lag of water in taking up summer heat at compared with land.

The cooling effects of the lake in this respect are shown plainly by the comparison of July temperatures at Green Bay and Manitowoc on the western side of Lake Michigan with Frankfort and Ludington directly oppose on the eastern side. The average July maximum temperature for Green Bay is 81 degrees, for Frankfort, its vis-a-vis, 74; for Manitowoc, 78, for Ludington 74; average minimum temperature for Green Bay 60, Frankfort 58, Manitowoc 56, Ludington 58. The climate is in fact a perfectly approved one for resorting purposes since the same temperatures which prevail in southern Florida in January are the ones enjoyed by the Michigan cut-over region in July. The average maximum July temperature of Mackinac is 75 degrees, while the average maximum of Miami is 74, or Key West 74 and of Tampa 68.

Sunshine

The notable excess of sunshiny July days over cloudy ones in the cut-over lands, 24 of the former to seven of the latter, is all the more worthy of remark because seemingly unnatural. This is true since the Great Lakes region is prolific of overcast skies and dark days, ranking second to the Puget Sound area only among the country's weather regions in the number of cloudy days during the year.

The cause of this July favor from nature is found in the natural summer coldness of the nearby Great Lakes waters as compared with the warm summer heat of the over-hanging air. Such vapors as arise from lake waters in the summer time, therefore, pass away freely through the warm air leaving no trace of mist or cloud. On the other hand, during the rest of the year when conditions are reversed as to temperatures of air and water, these vapors are converted into mists or fogs with the resulting maxima of cloudy days. In addition to this prevalence of sunshine the air itself of northern Michigan is claimed by many to have a curative quality, which is sometimes described as that of a "tonic" or of "more ozone," or of smiply "pure air."

Some basis for these claims may be found possibly through the freedom from hay fever which prevails in cut-over areas, an effect which is laid usually, and perhaps rightly, to the quality of the air though much remains for inquiry in this matter.

Access to Region

Ease of travel and nearness to large cities are items of great merit in weighing the worth of a region for resort and tourist purposes, and northern Michigan has been helped not a little by both of these factors. In respect to travel, the region has had three types of transport method and equipment one after the other in carrying resorters, tourists and sportsment, though to some extent all are still in use. The first of these, the lake steamboat type, reached its zenith thirty years ago in the fast, steel passenger boats which plied the lakes during the resorting season only—June 20 to Sept. 20—carried no freight, and served resorters and tourists almost entirely. The second type came with the full-blown growth of the railroad net. This, when at its best, was made up of half score of railroads, which helped sport and play interests vitally in at least two ways; first, by founding resorts and building summer hotels; and second, by providing special train service, rates and outfits for the use of visitors.

Motor Highway Service

The third type was reached when the modern motor car and motor car road system were developed. The northern Michigan demands for better roads were especially loud in the century's second decade, since a few surfaced and a few good dirt roads, built in piece-meal fashion by counties, made up at this time the entire improved road system of the region. The state government's entrance into active road building in 1930, the beginning at the same time of federal subsidies for this purpose and the ear-marking of gasoline and weight taxes for road building, has given the cut-over lands a highway net which is very helpful to tourist and resort interests.

The use of these highways has been very gratifying. The state parks office reports for the summer of 1931 for 25 state parks serving this road system a total of 1,478,911 visitors of which 75,950 were campers, all this for the cut-over lands alone. The same record shows that Ohio, Illinois, and Indiana are the chief states other than Michigan in yielding tourist patrons for these roads and camps, though 39 other states gave their help as well as the Philippines, Canada, and the District of Columbia. The state highway department admits the tourist serving purposes of these roads by locating them along scenic routes such as lakes sides or through forests or over hills, and this adds no little to the joys of their use.

Plan to Recover Valuable Cargo

Romney, Ont., Oct. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Margaret Campbell Goodman of New York, known as the only woman deep-sea diver in the country, returned from an airplane flight over Lake Erie today and announced that she had located the wreck of the schooner New Brunswick, which went down in the lake off Point Pelee, Ont., in 1859, carrying a valuable cargo of oak and walnut logs.

The aerial observation was announced by Mrs. Goodman as the first step in her plan to salvage the long sunken cargo. She said she believed the cargo was worth between $250,000 and $500,000, and explained that its value was increased by its long underwater seasoning. Salvage operations will begin within a few days.

Mrs. Goodman, who is more than 60 years old, once was widely known for her salvage operations on the Great Lakes. She said she would don a diving suit and go under water at least once during the salvage operations.

137 Postoffices Are Under Contract

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—In an accounting of its construction program, the administration announced today that 137 projects involving an outlay of $31,516,543 for postoffices, custom houses and other federal buildings were now under contract.

The treasury and postoffice departments have $132,000,000 to spend on these projects to be located in 812 cities. The work is being pushed so as to have 90 per cent of it in progress during the winter months to relieve unemployment in the building trades.

In Michigan, $3,850,385 is to be spent in 20 communities.

BOND PROGRAM SHOWS CREDIT

BY RICHARD L. TURNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—A "favorable indication of the strength of government credit" was found in the success of the treasury's huge bond conversion program today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

In addition, the organization, which repeatedly has opposed large governmental expenditures, forecast in its fortnightly review an effort for the coming winter to "force states and localities to assume a larger share of the relief burden."

Such action, it said, if accompanied by a "marked upswing in business," with a resulting increased federal tax yield, "would make budget balancing a simpler problem." However, it said that "relief will continue on a wide scale so long as there is countrywide unemployment."

Prices Too Low

Of the recent resurgence of inflationary reports and yesterday's general denial that immediate steps in this direction were planned, the Chamber had nothing to say. It took note, nevertheless, of President Roosevelt's assertion of mid-week that prices were still too low for monetary stabilization.

"Official expressions of a desire to see a further rise in prices have not given a clear-cut idea as to just what is intended or how it is going to be brought about," the review said.

"It is believed the administration does not have in mind any general price rise, such as was talked about some time ago, but rather would like to see a better balancing of prices, with price increases in commodities and values that fell most and which have not responded proportionally."

The president, meanwhile, is not revealing just what he did mean by his reference to prices and he is not binding himself against further niflationary moves such as another devaluation of the gold dollar.

The chief executive cruised upon sun-flooded Chesapeake bay today with Secretary Morgenthau and Governor George L. Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve Bank as his guests.

Federal reserve system figures, meanwhile, showed that the country's banks have increased their holdings of government bonds to the highest point in history, absorbing more than half of the last year's $4,000,000,000 increase in the public debt. Their total holdings, combined with those of the reserve banks, were estimated at more than half the entire public debt of $27,000,000,000.

Expenses Denied For Persons Shot By Federal Agents

Washington, Oct. 13. (AP)—Comptroller General J. R. McCarl ruled today that the government could not pay the hospital expenses of three persons wounded by department of justice agents in their efforts to bring down John Dillinger.

The three persons are a woman—Miss Etta Natalsky, who was shot when Dillinger was killed in Chicago; and two C. C. C. workers who were wounded when federal agents fired on a car near Little Bohemia lodge in Wisconsin last spring in the belief that the machine carried members of the Dillinger gang.

The men are John Hoffman and John Norris. The expenses incurred for them were $324.05 for hospitalization at Ironwood, Mich., and a $301 bill submitted by a St. Paul doctor.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Benton Harbor, Mich., Oct. 13 (AP)—Virgil Kwast, 10, was near death Saturday in Mercy hospital with a bullet wound in his head accidentally inflicted by his brother, Eugene, 12, who pointed a rifle at Virgil as he lay in bed at his farm home southeast of here.

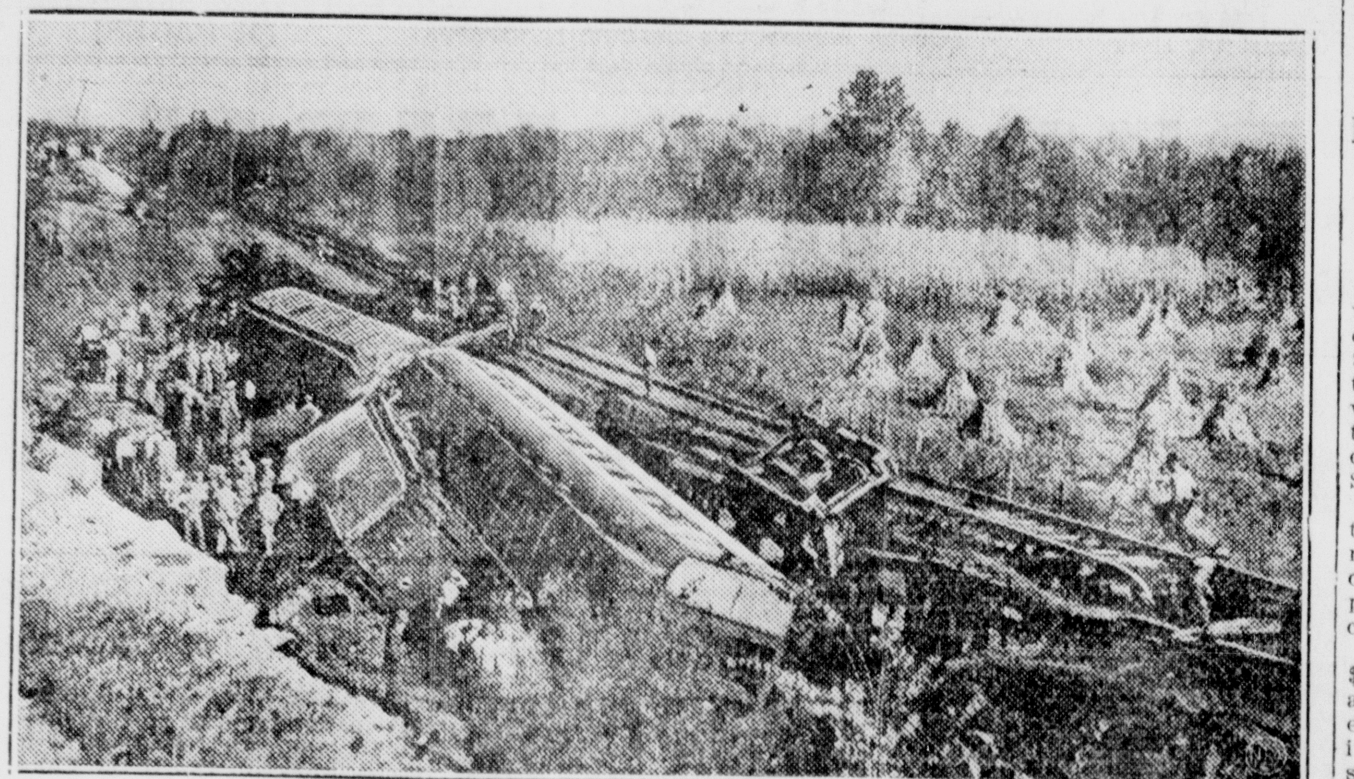
Wreck That Killed Four Laid to Broken Rail



The broken rail shown at right is believed to have been the cause of this wreck on the Milwaukee railroad near Guttenberg, Ia., in which four were killed and three badly injured. Engine, tender, and the two passenger cars were piled up in a creek bed, when the train plunged off a small bridge down a 15-foot grade, the impact hurling the last car ahead of the locomotive.

Strife-Torn Yugoslavia Is Land of Much Beauty

(This is the second of two articles by Milton Bronner, NEA Service European manager, analyzing the present perilous situation in Yugo-Slavia, as a result of the assassination of King Alexander I, and telling of Bronner's observations on a recent tour of the land over which the war threat hangs.)

* * *

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service European Manager

London, Eng.—Beneath the surface run ugly currents of ancient hatreds, but to the traveler who beckons not of this, Yugo-Slavia is a land of rare charm.

He notes little of the bitterness seething among minorities which cry of Serb oppression as he goes from beauty spot to beauty spot in that country so favored by nature, now threatened by rebellion following the assassination of King Alexander I.

The traveler has missed much who never has seen Dubrovnik, that ancient town far down on the Dalmatian coast. It is known in history as Ragusa, but has been rechristianed since Dalmatia passed from Austrian sway to that of Yugo-Slavia.

Seen from the sea, it looks like a Mediterranean Italian town, but the bulk of the population is pure Slav.

It dates back to the seventh century. There was a time when it called itself a republic and was a sort of Dalmatian Venice—without the canals. It traded with the east. It sent its ships all over the Adriatic and the Mediterranean.

They Still Are Ragusans

Even to this day the people do not call themselves Dalmatians. They are Ragusans.

The old city is one of the most perfect walled towns in Europe. Within those walls and towers, where every inch of soil was precious, the Ragusans built their houses close together, huddled around their churches.

The narrow streets—too narrow for passage of any vehicle—give coolness in the hot summer season and protection from the icy winds and rains in the winter.

The newest houses in the old town are about 250 years old. Some date back 500 years. But Ragusa has outgrown the walled city. There is a newer town outside the walls, not half so picturesque or charming.

Charm Sinks Deep

Let the tourist be warned. If he goes to Dubrovnik, he may not want to come away—ever. He will become a lotus-eater and dream and dream the hours away in the hot sunshine.

He will sit on a balcony from which a marvelous picture will be spread before him. Above, a deep blue sky. In the distance beyond a matching turquoise blue—the lapping waters of the calm Adriatic Sea. At his back the tall Dalmatian mountains, up whose slopes the new town perilously creeps.

Below him the ancient town with its walls, towers and forts. His lungs will breathe an insidious air, embalmed by the salt sea, the breath of the mountains, the heady scent of pines, firs, cypress and flowering oleanders.

Only the Bora Is Evil

He will dine in a semi-tropic garden under the rustling leaves of tall palm trees. Only one thing will ever break him from his idle lethargy—the Bora.

The natives curse it and with season. It is the keen cold wind that sometimes comes raging and tearing from the mountain tops.

From this ancient Dalmatian coast town it is possible to take two excursions which are bound to surprise even the most blase traveler—one to the island of deep silence, the other to the miniature town of shrill noises.

Linked With Famed Names

Just a half mile out of the harbor of Dubrovnik lies the little island of Logrum. It stands out in the blue Adriatic like an emerald of deep green hue. Two famous names are connected with it.

Centuries ago, when Richard Coeur de Lion, King of England, after his victorious crusade against the Moslems, suddenly started home to quell rebellion in his own kingdom, he was wrecked in the Adriatic and had a narrow escape from drowning.

He landed on Lokrum and proposed to found a church there in thanksgiving, but was later persuaded to build on the mainland.

Home of Maximilian

In the middle of the nineteenth century, Lokrum fell under the eye of Archduke Maximilian, brother of the late Emperor Franz Josef of the old Austro-Hungarian empire. Maximilian chose it as his summer home and built a small chateau right in the center.

Afterward, encouraged by the French, he went to Mexico, backed by French arms, and made himself emperor, but later, when the Mexicans rebelled, he was executed.

But long before his fall, he had sent back to Lokrum many sub-tropical Mexican plants and flowers. He always dreamed of returning to his island paradise.

Island of Silence

The visitor to Lokrum in late August or early September has an eerie experience. His boatman lands him and tells him he will call back for him in two hours.

A narrow path leads invitingly up the slope. Once he's turned the corner, all he sees is a thick growth of pines, cedars, firs and sub-tropical plants and vines.

There is no song of birds, no shrilling of insects, no sound of footfalls on the pine needle carpet; nothing but the deepest, most impressive silence, and a sense of utter loneliness and isolation.

It is an island paradise, but only for one who wants to shun his fellow men.

Where Races Clash

Trebinje, in Herzegovina, is another thing altogether. It illustrates one of Yugo-Slavia's problems.

Not only is the nation's politics dominated by provincial ambitions, not only do the Croatians and the Slovenians feel themselves somewhat different from the old Serbs—but religious feelings also divide the population.

About 40 per cent of the people are Roman Catholics. They live mainly in the former Austro-Hungarian provinces of Slovenia, Croatia and Dalmatia. About 45 per cent are Greek Orthodox and live mainly in old Serbia and the Banat.

About 10 per cent are Moslems and live mainly in Herzegovina and Bosnia. They call themselves "Turkso," but there is nothing Turkish about them. They are Moslems of pure Yugo-Slav blood.

More than 500 years ago, when the Turks conquered all this part of the country, many of the peasants as well as the noblemen became Moslems. They wanted to keep their property and their privileges. But in time they became faithful Moslems and are so to this day.

A Touch of the Orient

A 25-mile auto ride through horseshoe passes in the Dalmatian mountains from Dubrovnik takes one to the town of Trebinje. There one is suddenly in the real Orient.

In Trebinje the Yugo-Slav Moslems wear the fez and the women go about with faces covered with black cloth. The streets are Eastern, save that there are no camels. But there are dozens of heavily laden asses.

The shops, as in the Stamboul section of Istanbul, are little holes in the wall where Moslems are busy hammering out brass pans or cutting crude leather for the soft, tough Bosnian shoes and slippers.

In the market place the peasant women, who are Christians, display their fruits and vegetables. They all wear the quaint little Herzegovinian white caps, which look like monkey caps on a woman from the west, but are very becoming t othe natives.

Muezzins Still Din

In front of the inns, regardless of the noise and the flies, grave men wearing the fez sit at table, sipping Turkish coffee and talking about nothing in particular.

There is plenty of noise until a bell clangs out the noon hour. Then the muezzins mount to the five minarets of the five Moslem mosques and chant the ritual observed in every Moslem town the world over.

For a short time a refreshing silence falls upon Trebinje. Trading ceases. Nobody calls his wares. Nobody shouts at a laden ass. The Moslems are on their knees in the mosques, faces turned toward Mecca, intoning their immemorial prayers to Allah.

FRANTIC PLEA IS BROADCAST TO ABDUCTOR

peared that he had not communicated with the family since his first note giving directions was left. In that long, neatly typed document, typewritten figures demanding $30,000 had been scratched out and $50,000 inserted.

What might be a new clue in the case was reported today. Bennett Turner, 33, a carpenter, said he was positive a car passed his home half a mile away from the Stoll place last Wednesday carrying the kidnaped woman. He said the driver zig-zagged as though he were drunk. The woman, he said, had a piece of sticking plaster across her mouth and another on the right side of her head.

The carpenter's statement apparently settled the question in the minds of investigators as to the direction the kidnaper took and whether he had assistance.

The sudden search around the Stoll estate which was pressed throughout the day with apparently no conclusive results was joined in by department of justice agents and local authorities indicated it was ordered from Washington. Why, they refused to say, except that they sought clues. Federal men were even more reticent.

At a conference later officials said the "lapse of time" since the kidnaping Wednesday had caused the decision that the search should be made.

It was started nearly 20 hours after announcement that the kidnaper's requirements as to ransom had been met, and when there had been no reply from him so far as known and no indication of Mrs. Stoll's fate. W. S. Kammerer, spokesman for the family, reiterated today that no contact had been made, leaving the impression that all directions as to payment of the ransom had been given in the original kidnap note found on a bed in an upstairs room.

Mrs. Stoll, who according to her maid, Ann Woolet, resisted and offered a check to the kidnaper, was struck on the head until blood came before she was taken from the house, but cried "Let's go" when the man threatened to kill her husband, Berry V. Stoll, if he came in.

The kidnaper left a long, neatly typewritten note giving directions and breathing hatred for the woman's relations and only yesterday Berry Stoll, in a cryptic announcement he asked the newspapers to publish, announced that all the requirements had been met. He refused to say how or where he had paid out the $50,000.

Youth Accused Of Killing Grandmother

Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP)—For the strangulation of his 67-year-old grandmother, who died with a silk stocking gagging her mouth, a blanket around her head, James Soldat, 18, was charged with murder tonight.

Detectives said he and two friends, Frank Skowrowski, 17, and John Machiewski, 19, confessed trussing up Mrs. Anna Soldat yesterday before robbing her of $32, but insisted they had believed the aged woman would be able to loosen her bonds after they fled.

$1.42 FIGURES IN INSULL CASE

Investors Told Shares Would Earn That in 1930 Dividends

Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP) — it wouldn't buy a round of dime cigars for the defendants, but $1.42 came into sharper focus today as one of the key figures with which the government hopes to "prove a $100,000,000 swindle" case against Samuel Insull, Sr., and his 16 associates.

It was what investors were told—in writing and through the mail—that the Corporation Securities Co. would earn in 1930, per share, the government claims.

Over this and another item of $80,000,000, has and will rage a fight for which Assistant United States Attorney Harold Hulling's auditors have been training since Sept. 28, 1929, when they first went into Insull's books.

The prosecutors may rely most heavily on these two figures to win the big point of their case—claims about the luckless stock are thrown in the final battle over evidence. They are using them already in an attempt to tunnel under Insull's expected defense that he is guilty of nothing worse than misjudgement, and went down with the depression.

The $80,000,000 represents the corporation's assets as allegedly described when investors were invited to sign up in 1929.

It will be the goverment's contention that only highly artificial bookkeeping could acount for the $80,000,000 figure; that the corporation had no earnings in prospect at all, and that use of the figures was a deliberate fraud.

Some basis for these claims may be found possibly through the freedom from hay fever which prevails in cut-over areas, an effect which is laid usually, and perhaps rightly, to the quality of the air though much remains for inquiry in this matter.

Access to Region

Ease of travel and nearness to large cities are items of great merit in weighing the worth of a region for resort and tourist purposes, and northern Michigan has been helped not a little by both of these factors. In respect to travel, the region has had three types of transport method and equipment one after the other in carrying resorters, tourists and sportsment, though to some extent all are still in use. The first of these, the lake steamboat type, reached its zenith thirty years ago in the fast, steel passenger boats which plied the lakes during the resorting season only—June 20 to Sept. 20—carried no freight, and served resorters and tourists almost entirely. The second type came with the full-blown growth of the railroad net. This, when at its best, was made up of half score of railroads, which helped sport and play interests vitally in at least two ways; first, by founding resorts and building summer hotels; and second, by providing special train service, rates and outfits for the use of visitors.

Motor Highway Service

The third type was reached when the modern motor car and motor car road system were developed. The northern Michigan demands for better roads were especially loud in the century's second decade, since a few surfaced and a few good dirt roads, built in piece-meal fashion by counties, made up at this time the entire improved road system of the region. The state government's entrance into active road building in 1920, the beginning at the same time of federal subsidies for this purpose and the ear-marking of gasoline and weight taxes for road building, has given the cut-over lands a highway net which is very helpful to tourist and resort interests.

The use of these highways has been very gratifying. The state parks office reports for the summer of 1931 for 25 state parks serving this road system a total of 1,478,911 visitors of which 75,950 were campers, all this for the cut-over lands alone. The same record shows that Ohio, Illinois, and Indiana are the chief states other than Michigan in yielding tourist patrons for these roads and camps, though 39 other states gave their help as well as the Philippines, Canada, and the District of Columbia. The state highway department admits the tourist serving purposes of these roads by locating them along scenic routes such as lakes sides or through forests or over hills, and this adds no little to the joys of their use.

Plan to Recover Valuable Cargo

Romney, Ont., Oct. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Margaret Campbell Goodman of New York, known as the only woman deep-sea diver in the country, returned from an airplane flight over Lake Erie today and announced that she had located the wreck of the schooner New Brunswick, which went down in the lake off Point Pelee, Ont., in 1859, carrying a valuable cargo of oak and walnut logs.

The aerial observation was announced by Mrs. Goodman as the first step in her plan to salvage the long sunken cargo. She said she believed the cargo was worth between $250,000 and $500,000, and explained that its value was increased by its long underwater seasoning. Salvage operations will begin within a few days.

Mrs. Goodman, who is more than 60 years old, once was widely known for her salvage operations on the Great Lakes. She said she would don a diving suit and go under water at least once during the salvage operations.

137 Postoffices Are Under Contract

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—In an accounting of its construction program, the administration announced today that 137 projects involving an outlay of $31,516,543 for postoffices, custom houses and other federal buildings were now under contract.

The treasury and postoffice departments have $132,000,000 to spend on these projects to be located in 812 cities. The work is being pushed so as to have 90 per cent of it in progress during the winter months to relieve unemployment in the building trades.

In Michigan, $3,850,385 is to be spent in 20 communities.

SEVERAL DRAW PRISON TERMS

Liquor Law Violators Fined $50 Each By Judge Bell

Another group of men appearing in Delta county circuit court on criminal charges were sentenced Saturday morning by Judge Frank A. Bell.

Stanley Arnesen, 23, of Gladstone, who pleaded guilty to two charges, breaking and entering and larceny, received two sentences, one for 1 1-2 to 15 years in the state prison at Marquette, and another for 1 1-2 to 5 years, the sentences to run concurrently. The first was for breaking into the Gladstone postoffice and stealing 30 cents, and the second for larceny of goods valued at about $95.

Raymond Flagstadt, 30, convicted by a jury on a charge of burglary, was given 4 to 15 years at Marquette. He told the judge that he was the victim of circumstances, and maintained that he was not guilty of the actual breaking and entering of the Delta Hardware warehouse, where 10 boxes of dynamite were stolen on the night of June 30. Gunnar Granholm, 23, who pleaded guilty in the same offense, will be sentenced later.

Raymond Beauchamp, who pleaded guilty to a liquor law violation, was placed on probation for two years, along with a 60-day term of solitary confinement in the Delta county jail.

Changes Her Plea

Albert Constantineau, who pleaded guilty to a liquor law violation, was ordered to pay a fine of $200 and costs of $100 or spend five months in the Delta county jail.

Nick Vanacker and Andre Sinnaeve were ordered to pay $400 fine and $100 costs on a liquor law violation charge or go to prison for 10 months to one year.

Charles Pepin, of Escanaba, who is over 80 years of age and in poor health, was fined $400 and costs of $100, with the alternative of six months in the county jail. All three of the above pleaded guilty to liquor law violation charges.

Ella Strassman, who first pleaded guilty to a liquor law violation, withdrew her plea and changed it to not guilty when she appeared before Judge Bell for sentence on Saturday morning. She maintained that she thought she was pleading guilty to illegal possession of liquor only, and not possession for sale as the charge read. Her hearing will come up later in the term.

Michigan Apples Are On the Move

Movement of fall and winter apples, the last fruit to be harvested in the northern states, has begun at the Benton Harbor (Michigan) municipal market where already this year 5,517,107 packs of fruit and vegetables have been sold to buyers and truckers from 21 states.

The lightness of the 1934 apples crop in many sections places western Michigan as the heaviest producer between the seaboard states and the Pacific. Southern and midwestern truckers are coming to Benton Harbor in greater numbers than ever before.

Much of Michigan's 3,608,000—bushel crop will find an outlet at that market which is located in Berrien county, the nation's 18th largest apple growing county.

Although more than 10,000 bushels of apples a day are coming on the market, peak movement will not be reached for some time. The mart will be in operation for about six weeks longer to accommodate growers and buyers of apples, celery, potatoes, onions and cabbage. After the closing date heavy supplies of apples are obtainable to buyers and truckers through the many fruit exchanges in the vicinity or through the growers themselves who store some fruit for later sale.

Both dessert and cooking apples are coming to Escanaba at the present time from Benton Harbor. Those varieties that especially are finding favor at this time are the Jonathan, the Northern Spy, the Delicious the Grimes Golden, the Hubbardston and the McIntosh.

SELFISH ATTITUDE

The Detroit Free Press takes an altogether selfish viewpoint when it raises the question in a recent editorial as to why the Upper Peninsula opposes the proposed amendments to the State Constitution limiting the automobile weight tax to 35 cents a hundred pounds and the gasoline tax to two cents a gallon.

The Free Press contends that even after the reduction of the gasoline tax there would be $20,000,000 available for road construction. Such a statement is absolutely false.

A two-cent gasoline tax and the 35-cent weight tax would produce not more than $24,500,000. From this sum it will be necessary to take $10,000,000 for debt service, road maintenance and administration. This would leave only $14,500,000, but from this amount about $12,000,000 in weight tax money is returned to the counties for their road work, giving a balance of ony $2,500,000.

But that is not the end of the story. From the gasoline tax receipts about $5,550,000 additional is given to the 83 counties to finance their McNitt Act program and to offset a portion of the loss from the reduction of the weight tax from 55 cents to 35 cents. This would actually produce a deficit of more than $3,000,000, instead of providing the $20,000,000 for new highway building, as predicted by the Free Press.

The Free Press, apparently, is supporting the movement launched by those selfish interests in Wayne county, who after having had all their trunk lines and secondary roads paved with concrete do not care whether the other sections of the state are obliged to travel over bumpy and muddy highways.

The gas and weight tax reduction proposals are among the most important issues in the coming election. The upper peninsula, particularly, should rally against the threat to the future development of our highway system. This region should get out every "No" vote that it is possible to find.

IS IT WORTH IT?

To be elected as governor of a state is unquestionably a great honor and achievement of that office offers an outstanding opportunity for service, but to the lay, non-political mind, one cannot but wonder if the campaign a candidate for governor must conduct, if he is to be successful, is worth the price.

The modern campaign calls for a physical outlay, alone, that few people know anything about and scarcely appreciate.

The tour of the peninsula made during the first three days of last week by Frank D. Fitzgerald, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, offered an illuminating example of the physical investment a candidate is called upon to make in his campaign.

Mr. Fitzgerald last Sunday drove from Lansing to Marquette, arriving in the peninsula city late Sunday night. He left Marquette at 10 o'clock Monday morning, after conferring with Republican leaders of that city. He stopped for further conference in Ishpeming and Negaunee, having addressed meetings at those points in the pre-primary campaign. He reached L'Anse at 12 o'clock, to address a large open air meeting in that city. He addressed another open air meeting at Baraga at 3 o'clock and arrived at Houghton to deliver an address before a large dinner meeting at the Douglas hotel in that city at 6 o'clock. He was rushed from the Houghton meeting, to address a monster mass-meeting at the Armory at Calumet at 8:30 o'clock. Each of his addresses for that day ran from 45 minutes to more than an hour. And every waking moment of that day was taken up with either addressing crowds, conferring with political leaders or driving at high speed to make his next engagement.

On Tuesday his program of Monday was duplicated excepting that two more addresses were added to the program of that day, with meetings at Ewen, Bruces Crossing, Mass, Ontonagon, Bessemer and Ironwood.

On Wednesday his speaking program of Tuesday was duplicated with six addresses, at Marinesco, Watersmeet, Iron River, Crystal Falls, Iron Mountain and Escanaba. Three of his addresses on Wednesday occupied more than an hour. Following the completion of his Iron Mountain meeting, at 9:20 o'clock Wednesday evening, an automobile was in waiting for the candidate and he was rushed, in record time, to Escanaba, entering the Coliseum in this city at 10:15 o'clock, to make his sixth address of that day more thoroughly tired than anyone in that fine audience, who had waited so patiently for his appearance, could know.

Peninsula men who had accompanied Mr. Fitzgerald on his whirlwind peninsula tour were permitted to stop at their homes to "Catch their breath" and rest up, while Mr. Fitzgerald left here at noon Tuesday with a program for that day, just as strenuous as any other day he had spent in the peninsula. And if he can stand the physical strain his every day from now until Nov. 6 must be a close duplicate of the days he spent in the upper peninsula.

One cannot but wonder if the honor of being governor of Michigan, or any other state, is worth it.

STATE AID FOR SCHOOLS
Detroit News

The Michigan Education Association is asking candidates for the the Legislature to pledge themselves to assure $25,000,000 in State aid to the public school system. This sum is based on an estimated school income of $68,500,000, of which $27,500,000 is to come from local property taxes, $14,000,000 from the primary school interest fund, and $2,000,000 from miscellaneous sources, leaving $25,000,000 to be obtained in some way or other. The budget is $22,000,000 less than it was in 1930-31; that saving has been effected by cutting expenses, chiefly salaries, and reducing our educational facilities, in some sections of the State, below the danger point.

"It is possible," says the Michigan Education Association, "for the State to raise the proposed $25,000,000 for schools." It then sets out to show how $45,000,000 to $50,000,000 can be obtained.

First there is the sales tax, out of which $15000,000 was appropriated for two years, provided the tax brought in enough money. The sales tax collections for the first 12 months were not quite $35,000,000; appropriations for other purposes were $32,000,000, and costs of collection were a little over $400,000, leaving only about $2,000,000 for the schools, instead of the $15,000,000 appropriated. The sales tax is now yielding, with improved business, at the rate of about $43,000,000 a year, which means that in the current fiscal year the schools will receive about $9,000,000 from it, instead of $15,000,000. It is not unlikely that the next Legislature will take off the sales tax on food and some other things. In that case the sales tax as a source of school revenue will be eliminated.

Next the MEA figures $6,000,000 from the liquor tax. That looks too optimistic. Then it estimates $5,000,000 tangibles, which may not be assessed, and $2,000,000 from chain stores. From the proposed income tax, seven to 10 million is estimated, and from "other revenues recommended by Michigan Educational Planning Commission," $10,000,000.

Wisely, we believe, the MEA recommends adoption of the county home rule amendment, as a step toward enabling the reorganization of school districts. There are 6,709 such districts in Michigan, running all the way from one-room schoolhouses in the backwoods to the City of Detroit. "The small school district is expensive, inefficient and antiquated," says the association; and it is this district which is the chief sufferer from lack of funds. But the question arises whether these inefficient districts will not be perpetuated if the State creates a $25,000,000 fund for general distribution.

"The people are in an ugly mood about taxes," Dr. David Friday told the Michigan division of the American Association of University Women last week. Yet the MEA is figuring on additional taxation of from $12,000,000 to $17,000,000, through taxes on intangibles and an income tax, both new.

The far better way would be to adopt the county home rule amendment and reorganize the school districts, as a starter; and while that was being done, the next Administration, if it has the intelligence expected of it, could wrestle with the problem of a reasonable and understandable State budget, doing away with the expensive and irrational compartment system by which certain taxes are levied for specific purposes. If that problem were solved, it might be found that there is enough money to support the schools, adequately without another load of new taxes.

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

by CARLETON KENDRAKE ©1934 NEA Service, Inc.

CHAPTER IX

Bleeker spoke slowly. "You understand," he said, "that Morden was investigating Cathay's life. Cathay isn't what he's cracked up to be."

"How do you know that?" Griff asked.

"Because," said Bleeker, "I've been in the newspaper business too long to accept any small town celebrity at his face value."

"Riverview isn't exactly a small town," Griff pointed out.

"The same principle applies," Bleeker said. "It's a suburb, and as far as that's concerned I won't accept any man at his face value. Not unless he's a gangster, or a crook. That's one thing you find out from being in the newspaper business. You're a criminologist, Griff, you know crooks. I am a newspaper man, I know people. And this man Cathay is simply too good to be true. The president of the luncheon club, the president of the chamber of commerce, director of the bank, candidate for city councilman on a reform ticket. And his wife had fear in her eyes."

"Fear?" asked Griff.

"Fear," repeated Bleeker. "She was afraid of something."

"Afraid of the newspaper?" asked Griff.

"Perhaps," Bleeker said. "But it looked to me as though she was too adept at covering up the fear to have recently acquired it. I would say it was something she had been living with for weeks or months.

"And there was some talk about Cathay's death being due to poison?"

"Apparently there was," Bleeker said, "but it's being hushed up. Cathay was an influential man in Riverview. The family have influential friends. There were two doctors on the case. One of the doctors thought there were circumstances surrounding the death that made it resemble poisoning. The other doctor attributed it to natural causes. He's signing a death certificate."

"There'll be no autopsy?" asked Griff.

• • •

"There's going to be an autopsy," Bleeker said grimly. "I'm going up to interview Beckley, the editor of The Riverview Chronicle. That was the newspaper that was on the opposite side of the political fence from the Cathay side. Beckley and I have exchanged favors in the past. He started in investigating the Cathay death and then telephoned me that he was going to have to lay off because of pressure that was being brought to bear on him by members of the chamber of commerce, of the luncheon club and various banking influences."

"In other words," Griff said, "Cathay's friends are trying to stop a scandal."

Bleeker nodded.

"Subject, of course," Griff went on, "to the fact that there's a strong probability that this was due to natural causes, and that the younger doctor simply made a mistake in diagnosis."

"That, of course, is a possibility," Bleeker said.

"Getting back to this woman angle," Griff told him, "I take it you feel Morden was murdered because he was on the trail of some woman who had been having an affair with Cathay. Is that right?"

"That's right."

"Then obviously," Griff went on, "the woman would not have been guilty of the murder."

Bleeker stared at him. "How do you figure that out?" he asked.

"Quite simple. A woman's good name is, of course, an important possesion to her. But a woman of the type who could carry on an affair with a man of the social prominence of Frank B. Cathay is probably the type of woman who does very much as she pleases. She's probably a woman who has an apartment of her own. Who comes and goes as she pleases and doesn't have to account to any man."

"That's reasonable," Bleeker agreed.

"Therefore," Griff went on, "such a woman would hardly commit murder to protect her so-called 'good name. On the other hand, Cathay's good name involves political prestige, social prestige and rich financial returns."

"I see what you're getting at," Bleeker remarked.

"I'm not certain that you do," Griff told him. "Here's the point I had in mind. Let us suppose that Morden was about to contact or had contacted some woman who offered him an opportunity to get some information concerning Cathay. And we'll further suppose that the information was of a nature which would be derogatory to Cathay's character.

"Obviously, if Morden was to contact a woman, he expected to get some information from the woman. If he was murdered because of that contact, he was murdered by someone who was anxious to keep Morden from getting that information. Now then, let us put ourselves in the position of the murderer. Having eliminated Morden from the picture, what would be his logical next step?"

"You mean the woman?" Bleeker asked.

"Exactly," Griff said. "He would see that the woman was removed from the picture. Either by seeing that her lips were silenced, or by seeing that she was placed in a position where she was not readily accessible to those who were investigating Morden's death. Remember this, that the murderer knew that Morden was working for the newspaper. He knew that Morden was working to uncover evidence against Cathay. He doubtless surmised that Morden was making daily reports. He didn't know the nature of those reports. Morden told you over the telephone that he didn't wish to mention any names but the man who murdered him—and the crime indicates that it was a man—didn't know how much Morden had told you."

Bleeker nodded thoughtfully.

"Therefore," Griff said, "I would suggest that you do two things. That you concentrate upon finding Mary Briggs and that you make a complete investigation of every disappearance case where the party who disappeared was a woman, and that the time of disappearance was within the last 48 hours."

Bleeker's eyes glinted with appreciation.

"That," he said, "is an idea."

There was a moment of silence. Bleeker took the pipe from his mouth, scraped out the ashes and dropped the pipe into his pocket.

"You understand, Griff," he said, 'this is the first time we've ever had occasion to employ you. I know something of your work from a standpoint of results, but I don't know how you work. Now just how much of this investigation will you take over, and just how much are we expected to do?"

"Let's not have any misunderstanding," Griff said. "You're to do it all."

'All?" asked Bleeker.

"Every bit of it," Griff said. "All I do is furnish ideas and correlate information. You get the facts. I fit them together and direct the search for additional facts."

"It virtually amounts," Bleeker said, "to putting our men at your disposal."

"You can hire private detectives if you wish," Griff said.

"Our men are better than private detectives."

"Then you can use them if it's economically advantageous for you to do so. But I don't gather any facts. All I do is interpret the facts that are gathered and suggest the direction in which a search should be prosecuted for additional facts. Also, I play human checkers."

"Human checkers?" Bleeker asked.

"That's what I call it," Griff said. "A lot of detectives monkey around with dead clews. They take some inanimate object and attach a great deal of importance to it. I don't. I feel that the solution of every crime depends upon the animate, rather than the inanimate. Not that I overlook inanimate clews. I try to notice such clews and to give them due importance, but I don't attach an undue importance to them.

"On the other hand, I don't try to follow a cold trail while our quarry sits still. I try to devise ways and means of keeping the quarry restless, keeping it moving around. Then it's always leaving a fresh trail. In other words, I play checkers with them. I keep moving my men so that they are forced to make some move.

"If you've ever hunted deer, you know what I mean. The hunter who tries to follow a cold trail doesn't get his bucks as regularly as the man who sits down some place on a rock and makes the deer keep moving."

"But," Bleeker said, "suppose you sit on a rock and the deer don't move?" He grinned reminiscently. "I know, because I tried that last deer season."

"That's just the point I'm making," Griff said. "You've got to keep them moving. You can do that by making some commotion elsewhere which makes them uneasy and apprehensive. Then they start moving around through the brush."

IN OUR STREET

I count the houses that I meet:
No threshold but has felt the feet
    Of care. To one came poverty,
    Another grief—so tragedy
Has left its footprints in our street.

'Tis just a little thoroughfare,
No riches and no greatness there,
    The women in their kitchens, men
    At work with shovel, brush or pen,
And little children everywhere.

'Twould seem these things would hurry by,
Would leave the lowly, seek the high,
    But tribulation knows no class;
    There is no house that it will pass,
No soul, not even you and I.

And he who sings, if sad or sweet,
Or paints or writes, finds life complete,
    Need not look far for song or rime,
    Or paint some other land or time,
Here are all things, all in our street.

On Wednesday his speaking program of Tuesday was duplicated with six addresses, at Marinesco, Watersmeet, Iron River, Crystal Falls, Iron Mountain and Escanaba. Three of his addresses on Wednesday occupied more than an hour. Following the completion of his Iron Mountain meeting, at 9:20 o'clock Wednesday evening, an automobile was in waiting for the candidate and he was rushed, in record time, to Escanaba, entering the Coliseum in this city at 10:15 o'clock, to make his sixth address of that day more thoroughly tired than anyone in that fine audience, who had waited so patiently for his appearance, could know.

Peninsula men who had accompanied Mr. Fitzgerald on his whirlwind peninsula tour were permitted to stop at their homes to "Catch their breath" and rest up, while Mr. Fitzgerald left here at noon Tuesday with a program for that day, just as strenuous as any other day he had spent in the peninsula. And if he can stand the physical strain his every day from now until Nov. 6 must be a close duplicate of the days he spent in the upper peninsula.

One cannot but wonder if the honor of being governor of Michigan, or any other state, is worth it.

STATE AID FOR SCHOOLS

Detroit News

The Michigan Education Association is asking candidates for the the Legislature to pledge themselves to assure $25,000,000 in State aid to the public school system. This sum is based on an estimated school income of $68,500,000, of which $27,500,000 is to come from local property taxes, $14,000,000 from the primary school interest fund, and $2,000,000 from miscellaneous sources, leaving $25,000,000 to be obtained in some way or other. The budget is $22,000,000 less than it was in 1930-31; that saving has been effected by cutting expenses, chiefly salaries, and reducing our educational facilities, in some sections of the State, below the danger point.

"It is possible," says the Michigan Education Association, "for the State to raise the proposed $25,000,000 for schools." It then sets out to show how $45,000,000 to $50,000,000 can be obtained.

First there is the sales tax, out of which $15000,000 was appropriated for two years, provided the tax brought in enough money. The sales tax collections for the first 12 months were not quite $35,000,000; appropriations for other purposes were $32,000,000, and costs of collection were a little over $400,000, leaving only about $2,000,000 for the schools, instead of the $15,000,000 appropriated. The sales tax is now yielding, with improved business, at the rate of about $43,000,000 a year, which means that in the current fiscal year the schools will receive about $9,000,000 from it, instead of $15,000,000. It is not unlikely that the next Legislature will take off the sales tax on food and some other things. In that case the sales tax as a source of school revenue will be eliminated.

Next the MEA figures $6,000,000 from the liquor tax. That looks too optimistic. Then it estimates $5,000,000 tangibles, which may not be assessed, and $2,000,000 from chain stores. From the proposed income tax, seven to 10 million is estimated, and from "other revenues recommended by Michigan Educational Planning Commission," $10,000,000.

Wisely, we believe, the MEA recommends adoption of the county home rule amendment, as a step toward enabling the reorganization of school districts. There are 6,709 such districts in Michigan, running all the way from one-room schoolhouses in the backwoods to the City of Detroit. "The small school district is expensive, inefficient and antiquated," says the association; and it is this district which is the chief sufferer from lack of funds. But the question arises whether these inefficient districts will not be perpetuated if the State creates a $25,000,000 fund for general distribution.

"The people are in an ugly mood about taxes," Dr. David Friday told the Michigan division of the American Association of University Women last week. Yet the MEA is figuring on additional taxation of from $12,000,000 to $17,000,000, through taxes on intangibles and an income tax, both new.

The far better way would be to adopt the county home rule amendment and reorganize the school districts, as a starter; and while that was being done, the next Administration, if it has the intelligence expected of it, could wrestle with the problem of a reasonable and understandable State budget, doing away with the expensive and irrational compartment system by which certain taxes are levied for specific purposes. If that problem were solved, it might be found that there is enough money to support the schools, adequately without another load of new taxes.

IN OUR STREET

I count the houses that I meet:
No threshold but has felt the feet
 Of care. To one came poverty,
 Another grief—so tragedy
Has left its footprints in our street.

'Tis just a little thoroughfare,
No riches and no greatness there,
 The women in their kitchens, men
 At work with shovel, brush or pen,
And little children everywhere.

'Twould seem these things would hurry by,
Would leave the lowly, seek the high,
 But tribulation knows no class;
 There is no house that it will pass,
No soul, not even you and I.

And he who sings, if sad or sweet,
Or paints or writes, finds life complete,
 Need not look far for song or rime,
 Or paint some other land or time,
Here are all things, all in our street.

CHAPTER IX

Bleeker spoke slowly. "You understand," he said, "that Morden was investigating Cathay's life. Cathay isn't what he's cracked up to be."

"How do you know that?" Griff asked.

"Because," said Bleeker, "I've been in the newspaper business too long to accept any small town celebrity at his face value."

"Riverview isn't exactly a small town," Griff pointed out.

"The same principle applies," Bleeker said. "It's a suburb, and as far as that's concerned I won't accept any man at his face value. Not unless he's a gangster, or a crook. That's one thing you find out from being in the newspaper business. You're a criminologist, Griff, you know crooks. I am a newspaper man, I know people. And this man Cathay is simply too good to be true. The president of the luncheon club, the president of the chamber of commerce, director of the bank, candidate for city councilman on a reform ticket. And his wife had fear in her eyes."

"Fear?" asked Griff.

"Fear," repeated Bleeker. "She was afraid of something."

"Afraid of the newspaper?" asked Griff.

"Perhaps," Bleeker said. "But it looked to me as though she was too adept at covering up the fear to have recently acquired it. I would say it was something she had been living with for weeks or months.

"And there was some talk about Cathay's death being due to poison?"

"Apparently there was," Bleeker said, "but it's being hushed up. Cathay was an influential man in Riverview. The family have influential friends. There were two doctors on the case. One of the doctors thought there were circumstances surrounding the death that made it resemble poisoning. The other doctor attributed it to natural causes. He's signing a death certificate."

"There'll be no autopsy?" asked Griff.

* * *

"There's going to be an autopsy," Bleeker said grimly. "I'm going up to interview Beckley, the editor of The Riverview Chronicle. That was the newspaper that was on the opposite side of the political fence from the Cathay side. Beckley and I have exchanged favors in the past. He started in investigating the Cathay death and then telephoned me that he was going to have to lay off because of pressure that was being brought to bear on him by members of the chamber of commerce, of the luncheon club and various banking influences."

"In other words," Griff said, "Cathay's friends are trying to stop a scandal."

Bleeker nodded.

"Subject, of course," Griff went on, "to the fact that there's a strong probability that this was due to natural causes, and that the younger doctor simply made a mistake in diagnosis."

"That, of course, is a possibility," Bleeker said.

"Getting back to this woman angle," Griff told him, "I take it you feel Morden was murdered because he was on the trail of some woman who had been having an affair with Cathay. Is that right?"

"That's right."

"Then obviously," Griff went on, "the woman would not have been guilty of the murder."

Bleeker stared at him. "How do you figure that out?" he asked.

"Quite simple. A woman's good name is, of course, an important possesion to her. But a woman of the type who could carry on an affair with a man of the social prominence of Frank B. Cathay is probably the type of woman who does very much as she pleases. She's probably a woman who has an apartment of her own. Who comes and goes as she pleases and doesn't have to account to any man."

"That's reasonable," Bleeker agreed.

"Therefore," Griff went on, "such a woman would hardly commit murder to protect her so-called 'good name. On the other hand, Cathay's good name involves political prestige, social prestige and rich financial returns."

"I see what you're getting at," Bleeker remarked.

"I'm not certain that you do," Griff told him. "Here's the point I had in mind. Let us suppose that Morden was about to contact or had contacted some woman who offered him an opportunity to get some information concerning Cathay. And we'll further suppose that the information was of a nature which would be derogatory to Cathay's character.

"Obviously, if Morden was to contact a woman, he expected to get some information from the woman. If he was murdered because of that contact, he was murdered by someone who was anxious to keep Morden from getting that information. Now then, let us put ourselves in the position of the murderer. Having eliminated Morden from the picture, what would be his logical next step?"

"You mean the woman?" Bleeker asked.

"Exactly," Griff said. "He would see that the woman was removed from the picture. Either by seeing that her lips were silenced, or by seeing that she was placed in a position where she was not readily accessible to those who were investigating Morden's death. Remember this, that the murderer knew that Morden was working for the newspaper. He knew that Morden was working to uncover evidence against Cathay. He doubtless surmised that Morden was making daily reports. He didn't know the nature of those reports. Morden told you over the telephone that he didn't wish to mention any names but the man who murdered him—and the crime indicates that it was a man—didn't know how much Morden had told you."

Bleeker nodded thoughtfully.

"Therefore," Griff said, "I would suggest that you do two things. That you concentrate upon finding Mary Briggs and that you make a complete investigation of every disappearance case where the party who disappeared was a woman, and that the time of disappearance was within the last 48 hours."

Bleeker's eyes glinted with appreciation.

"That," he said, "is an idea."

* * *

There was a moment of silence. Bleeker took the pipe from his mouth, scraped out the ashes and dropped the pipe into his pocket.

"You understand, Griff," he said, 'this is the first time we've ever had occasion to employ you. I know something of your work from a standpoint of results, but I don't know how you work. Now just how much of this investigation will you take over, and just how much are we expected to do?"

"Let's not have any misunderstanding," Griff said. "You're to do it all."

'All?" asked Bleeker.

"Every bit of it," Griff said. "All I do is furnish ideas and correlate information. You get the facts. I fit them together and direct the search for additional facts."

"It virtually amounts," Bleeker said, "to putting our men at your disposal."

"You can hire private detectives if you wish," Griff said.

"Our men are better than private detectives."

"Then you can use them if it's economically advantageous for you to do so. But I don't gather any facts. All I do is interpret the facts that are gathered and suggest the direction in which a search should be prosecuted for additional facts. Also, I play human checkers."

"Human checkers?" Bleeker asked.

"That's what I call it," Griff said. "A lot of detectives monkey around with dead clews. They take some inanimate object and attach a great deal of importance to it. I don't. I feel that the solution of every crime depends upon the animate, rather than the inanimate. Not that I overlook inanimate clews. I try to notice such clews and to give them due importance, but I don't attach an undue importance to them.

"On the other hand, I don't try to follow a cold trail while our quarry sits still. I try to devise ways and means of keeping the quarry restless, keeping it moving around. Then it's always leaving a fresh trail. In other words, I play checkers with them. I keep moving my men so that they are forced to make some move.

"If you've ever hunted deer, you know what I mean. The hunter who tries to follow a cold trail doesn't get his bucks as regularly as the man who sits down some place on a rock and makes the deer keep moving."

"But," Bleeker said, "suppose you sit on a rock and the deer don't move?" He grinned reminiscently. "I know, because I tried that last deer season."

"That's just the point I'm making," Griff said. "You've got to keep them moving. You can do that by making some commotion elsewhere which makes them uneasy and apprehensive. Then they start moving around through the brush."

WARBLERS ARE LIVELY BIRDS

They Wear Their Brightest Colors in Month of May

By L. CLAIRE HULBERT
Photographer-Naturalist

Going to the station to meet the trains is no longer an event, but a generation or so ago it was quite the thing to meet the trains, watch the scene of bustle and activity, and see the new arrivals from distant places.

During autumn many passengers arrived in town daily, usually on the night express mostly in small groups and family parties. You could hear their calls and shouts as the parents tried their best to keep the youngsters from straying away and becoming lost. Their destination is the far south, the Gulf states and beyond, but their tickets called for stop-over privileges which they took advantage of to restock their lunch baskets and waning food supplies. These passengers are the warblers and other small songsters among the birds which travelled north last April and May, way up to the Hudson Bay country and beyond and are now returning, warned by instinct or the breath of old Boreas to seek a more kindly climate.

Warblers Are Vivacious

The warblers are vivacious, gayly colored little midgets, the fairies of the bird world. There are fifty-seven varieties, so many that a person is inclined to give up in despair after trying to identify all he sees. However, it is not necessary to know the names of all in order to receive pleasure from observing them; there is so much of mystery and romance about their goings and comings, so many lively flittings about and glimpses of bright colors and markings that one is not too disappointed at not identifying all the warblers in sight.

In May they wear their brightest colors, when with a pair of good binoculars it is fairly easy to learn the names of a dozen or so, but in the fall there are many young ones among them which no one but the expert can identify. Here and there a male in typical plumage stands out like an acquaintance in a crowd, and to spend a day in September with the warblers will give any bird lover much pleasure and satisfaction.

A brushy, tree-grown pasture surrounded by bare fields attracts the warblers like a magnet, and it is the same with some of the tree-covered small islands in the great lakes. The warblers in migration steer their course towards these havens of refuge to feed and rest. Recently one of my sons and I spent the better part of a day on a point of land jutting into Saginaw Bay, enjoying the warblers and other birds. Many warblers were in sight in the trees anywhere we looked and one or the other was shouting "Here is a black and white," or "Here is a myrtle," or "That was a black-throated green" in less time than it takes to write down their names. We also saw pine warblers, ovenbirds and many in the juvenal plumage which we were unable to identify.

Migrate at Night

Warblers, as well as many other birds, migrate at night, flying high above the tree tops, beating along on tireless pinions so that quite a distance is covered. In the morning your shade or fruit trees may harbor several of these little birds and if you are awake to Nature's interesting sights you will be on hand to welcome them and wish them luck for the balance of their long voyage. They flit nervously about among the leaves picking up an insect here and a worm there to fill their empty stomachs. Soon they are gone, flying to another tree, usually in a southerly direction; thus covering quite a distance during the day time.

You are more likely to hear their thin, lisping cheeps on some misty rainy night than on a clear cool windy one, the atmospheric conditions at that time helping to buoy them up on rising currents of air. The older birds call regularly to the young, and you can hear their answering notes, pathetic little calls from the darkness, as the family group attempts to keep together in the obscurity of the night. It gives me a thrill to stand out a few moments on such a night in early autumn, my mind filled by the marvel and wonder of it all. How these tiny creatures, two thirds of whom have been hatched and reared the past summer in some northern forest or muskeg, are guided on this thousand mile journey away from the coming cold leaves one with feelings too deep for words. No matter the hour of night you may happen to awake, provided local noises do not distract, you can hear their notes and answering cheeps as they sweep along southward. Every night of the month in which atmospheric conditions are suitable they move down and past, wave on wave of tiny avian life.

In the morning I hear them in the ash or apple trees at my home, and one morning recently there were a family of five or six in some pear trees at the back of a neighbor's lot, yellowish olive with light wing-bars, in the plumage that makes them difficult of identification. Recently, I saw one flitting in an oak which proved to be a myrtle warbler in adult plumage, very busily snapping up leaf insects. They are the Lilliputians of the bird world, and after watching them for a time even a chickadee looks larger than usual while a robin or flicker appears immense.

Sparrows Follow Warblers

Just a little after the warblers, come great numbers of our native sparrows, the white-throated, white-crowned and tree sparrows, and the juncoes, with their slate color and conspicuous white tail feathers. These went north last April, at which time if you had listened carefully near some brushy hedgrow you might have heard the clear, high-pitched song of the white throated sparrow, or "peabody bird." The white-crowned and white throated sparrows pass on farther south but the tree sparrows and juncoes remain with us all winter.

Scientists trap and band many species of our migratory birds in an effort to learn the secrets of their goings and comings and of the mystery of migration. The illustration shows a Gambel's sparrow, relative of the white crowned sparrow, which has just been banded and is about to be released to continue its journey.

Warblers Are of Interest to Numerous Bird Lovers

The bottom picture represents a nest of the Yellow Warbler in which a Cowbird laid its large egg as soon as the nest was finished, before the warbler had a chance to begin laying. The top shows a Gambel's Sparrow which has just been banded and is about to be released. It is a close relative of the White Crowned Sparrow.

The Pinnated Grouse

By R. C. SHAW

The Pinnated Grouse or prairie chicken resembles the sharp-tailed grouse in a general way. It is a much heavier bird than the ruffed grouse, with much shorter tail and with a tuft of long narrow feathers about six inches long on each side of the neck overlaying a patch of bare, red or yellow skin.

It is well known that this bird is not driven out by civilization, in fact up to a certain point it increases in numbers. The prairie chicken prefers prairie lands and ordinarily nests in such grounds. It's food consists very largely of insects so long as these are obtainable, and not infrequently grasshoppers form almost the sole food for weeks at a time. Various grains and seeds are also eaten freely and during cold half of the year, buds, berries and leaves are freely taken. The farmer should encourage its presence since it does not injure grain crops in any way and destroys harmful insects. To encourage its presence grain should be placed in the feeding grounds in severe winter weather.

The call of the male bird during mating season is one of most remarkable among bird notes. The loose sac or naked skin beneath the tufts of feathers on the neck are inflated to the size of small oranges, and then produce a loud hallow booming sound, known as "booming," "crowing," and "tooting." At short range the bird notes sound much like a kettle drum. The boom is preceded by a little dance which is immediately followed by the inflation of the great orange air sacks on the sides of the neck, which puff out as quickly as a childs toy balloon; the tail is erected and widely spread, the wings dropped, the neck turfs are raised straight upward, then with a convulsive movement of the lowered head the boom is jerked out and at its conclusion the air sacks have become deflated. They fight each other as viciously as game-cocks, and the number of feathers left on the ground testifies to effective use of bills and claws. It is possible to come very close to two old cock birds while they are waging a battle they seem to be so interested in the fight that they do not see you.

The pinnated Grouse is an ideal game bird, so far as it's food habits go it is natural neither beneficial or destructive. A bird that is prolific, wary, and under normal conditions so well able to care for itself that it requires skill to secure it. A knowledge of the best means of applying the various remedies and of all the inter-relations that are likely to destroy it is need to help preserve this great grouse.

GAME AND FISH METHODS CITED

Hoffmaster Outlines Development of Conservation Practices

The use of intelligent and practical methods in the management of game and fish resources was emphasized by P. J. Hoffmaster of the Michigan Department of Conservation in an address before the International Association of Game and Fish Commissioners in convention at Montreal.

Mr. Hoffmaster attended the convention as a representative of the Department of Conservation and Director George R. Hogarth.

Reindeer Herd Recalled

Tracing the development of conservation practices from the first closed seasons, establishment of warden-police, bounty systems and artificial propagation, etc., Mr. Hoffmaster said that much of the work has been little better than mere tinkering.

"New York is admitting that for all the hunters' license money spent on imported 'hunkies' there are very few survivors to show for it," the speaker said. "Michigan is admitting that its imported reindeer herd just died off, nobody knows why. New Jersey is admitting that trout fishing has been poor in spite of trout hand-reared to 'keeper' size. We are not hearing as much as we used to about the wonders of Pennsylvania conservation. All of us, I think, are pretty much debunking the old brags and assumptions and are more and more restless and discontent with the long-standard applications of what we have been calling 'conservation.'

"The fact is, I think, we are beginning to suspect that we have been investing money in ways which, at least, will pay out less than the people who are putting up the money really have a right to expect and demand.

"Within the past five or ten years a new set of ideas has come into the old picture. We are now talking of grouse cycles, tuleremia, nose-fly and lung-worms in deer and blood parasites in ducks and wondering why quail and pheasants seem to refuse to stay put in concentrations greater than an average of one per acre.

Carrying Capacity

"We are wondering and talking about the natural 'carrying capacity' of given cover combinations of land and water and about the 'limiting factors' effecting wildlife populations and census methods for trout and grouse.

"The essential point is that we now have a whole new set of things that we know we can do to help, but we do not yet know how certainly, how generously and how fast they will work.

"It is going to be up to us as conservation officials, to find decently adequate and checkable measures of the returns reasonable to be expected from the several possible ways of getting and keeping what we want in the way of game, fish, forest and other wild-land crops. We might as well as admit that only in a few places can we do that now. We do not even know for sure how to go at the most of it, but it is up to us to find out and to be able and willing to show that we are trying to find out and are using the best of modern tools in that trying."

Fox Gets Hunter's Partridge; Hunter Just Takes the Fox

Albert Rustad, 13, Gladstone youth who spends most of his spare moments in the woods, had an experience during the past partridge season that comes to but few hunters.

After birds across the bay from Gladstone several days ago, Albert was about to shoot at one when a head appeared and grabbed the bird. The boy aimed quickly and shot at the point where the animal disappeared.

Walking over he found a fox kicking its last. It was reported to be a cross between a red and a silver.

Farmer Captures Albino Porcupine

A white porcupine was captured by a Stonington farmer last week, it was reported to the Press yesterday by Emil Leadman, 1520 North Eighteenth street, a former resident of that district.

Albino porcupines are exceedingly rare in this section.

One of the deadliest jobs in the world is that of working in Bohemia's radium mines. The averages life span of workers here is only 37 years, due to poisoning.

LESS GROUSE, SAY HUNTERS

Report Prairie Chickens Are On Increase, However

The average kill of ruffed grouse in the Upper Peninsula proved to be much lower during the season of Oct. 1 to 12 than last year, according to reports now being received. Many hunters found very poor shooting in some localities.

Sporting goods stores above the Straits report an unusually large sale of hunting licenses, and more than the usual number of Lower Peninsula sportsmen crossed the Straits for their grouse shooting.

The drop in the numbers of grouse was anticipated by the Game Division of the Department of Conservation, whose early surveys tended to show that the "pats" were on the downward grade of the cycle. In contrast with the grouse, prairie chickens were plentiful and sharp tail grouse seemed to be more numerous than last year.

Here's Paradise—For Ducks, Not for Hunters

Conservation Topics

THE CANADIAN Travel Bureau reports that wonderful results have been obtained from its newspaper advertising campaign carried on in the U. S. to attract visitors during the autumn season. Canada appealed for tourist patronage on the basis of its fine scenery and weather during the fall months and also played up its hunting advantages.

Canada's experience should inspire the upper peninsula. Up in this northern section of the state we have been accustomed to consider the tourist season ended on Labor Day. Our advertising has been concentrated during the early part of the summer.

During the last few years, we have been extending the season by making a bid for hay fever sufferers during September. We have also done a little ballyhooing about our autumn scenery, but as yet we have spent no appreciable amount of money for metropolitan newspaper space in an effort to attract vacationists during this season of the year. Many feel, too, that we have not capitalized fully on our bird and deer hunting possibilities.

Canada has taken advantage of every possibility for attracting the American tourist. Vast sums of money have been spent for advertising in the United States, and apparently it has paid handsome dividends. For years, the Upper peninsula Development Bureau has done splendid work in publicizing this region, but its efforts are being handicapped now by a shortage of funds due to a breakdown of our tax system and the curtailment of private contributions. At the October meeting of the various boards of supervisors, it was revealed that the counties were forced to pare down on such donations because of the limitations of the 15-mill amendment.

MANY KILLED OUT HUNTING

Failure to Remember Gun Muzzle Deals Most Deaths

During the past five years, there were 112 people killed and 176 injured during the hunting seasons in Michigan. Of these 77 were killed and 110 were injured during the small game season. The balance were big game hunters.

Almost every one of these accidents were due to carelessness on the part of hunters and could have been avoided by observance of the known rules of safety while hunting, says the Department of Conservation.

Whether you are a tenderfoot with the shooting irons or a time tested veteran, there is one supreme rule that underlies all the do's and dont's of hunting: THE MUZZLE OF THE GUN IS THE END THAT KILLS.

If the hunter never forgets that one rule and POINTS THE MUZZLE ONLY AT OBJECTS HE WISHES TO KILL, he will be a safe hunter. He will never point the muzzle at another hunter or at himself; he will never climb over a fence so that the muzzle will in any way endanger anyone—in fact he will lay the gun down on the other side before crossing.

Knowing that it is the muzzle that kills, he will always look beyond the end of his muzzle when shooting to see what there may be back of the game he is shooting at. He will not, as two hunters did one year, follow a bunny to the end of a culvert and discharge the gun through the pipe at the bunny. In the case mentioner, each hunter tried this from opposite sides. Each hunter scored a hit—in the other's face.

Remembering that it is the MUZZLE THAT KILLS, means that the gun is always regarded as loaded—even if you KNOW it is empty. Even an empty gun's muzzle has no business pointing anywhere it might do harm.

WARBLERS ARE LIVELY BIRDS

They Wear Their Brightest Colors in Month of May

By L. CLAIRE HULBERT
Photographer-Naturalist

Going to the station to meet the trains is no longer an event, but a generation or so ago it was quite the thing to meet the trains, watch the scene of bustle and activity, and see the new arrivals from distant places.

During autumn many passengers arrived in town daily, usually on the night express mostly in small groups and family parties. You could hear their calls and shouts as the parents tried their best to keep the youngsters from straying away and becoming lost. Their destination is the far south, the Gulf states and beyond, but their tickets called for stop-over privileges which they took advantage of to restock their lunch baskets and waning food supplies. These passengers are the warblers and other small songsters among the birds which travelled north last April and May, way up to the Hudson Bay country and beyond and are now returning, warned by instinct or the breath of old Boreas to seek a more kindly climate.

Warblers Are Vivacious

The warblers are vivacious, gayly colored little midgets, the fairies of the bird world. There are fifty-seven varieties, so many that a person is inclined to give up in despair after trying to identify all he sees. However, it is not necessary to know the names of all in order to receive pleasure from observing them; there is so much of mystery and romance about their goings and comings, so many lively flittings about and glimpses of bright colors and markings that one is not too disappointed at not identifying all the warblers in sight.

In May they wear their brightest colors, when with a pair of good binoculars it is fairly easy to learn the names of a dozen or so, but in the fall there are many young ones among them which no one but the expert can identify. Here and there a male in typical plumage stands out like an acquaintance in a crowd, and to spend a day in September with the warblers will give any bird lover much pleasure and satisfaction.

A brushy, tree-grown pasture surrounded by bare fields attracts the warblers like a magnet, and it is the same with some of the tree-covered small islands in the great lakes. The warblers in migration steer their course towards these havens of refuge to feed and rest. Recently one of my sons and I spent the better part of a day on a point of land jutting into Saginaw Bay, enjoying the warblers and other birds. Many warblers were in sight in the trees anywhere we looked and one or the other was shouting "Here is a black and white," or "Here is a myrtle," or "That was a black-throated green" in less time than it takes to write down their names. We also saw pine warblers, ovenbirds and many in the juvenal plumage which we were unable to identify.

Migrate at Night

Warblers, as well as many other birds, migrate at night, flying high above the tree tops, beating along on tireless pinions so that quite a distance is covered. In the morning your shade or fruit trees may harbor several of these little birds and if you are awake to Nature's interesting sights you will be on hand to welcome them and wish them luck for the balance of their long voyage. They flit nervously about among the leaves picking up an insect here and a worm there to fill their empty stomachs. Soon they are gone, flying to another tree, usually in a southerly direction, thus covering quite a distance during the day time.

You are more likely to hear their thin, lisping cheeps on some misty rainy night than on a clear cool windy one, the atmospheric conditions at that time helping to buoy them up on rising currents of air. The older birds call regularly to the young, and you can hear their answering notes, pathetic little calls from the darkness, as the family group attempts to keep together in the obscurity of the night. It gives me a thrill to stand out a few moments on such a night in early autumn, my mind filled by the marvel and wonder of it all. How these tiny creatures, two thirds of whom have been hatched and reared the past summer in some northern forest or muskeg, are guided on this thousand mile journey away from the coming cold leaves one with feelings too deep for words. No matter the hour of night you may happen to awake, provided local noises do not distract, you can hear their notes and answering cheeps as they sweep along southward. Every night of the month in which atmospheric conditions are suitable they move down and past, wave on wave of tiny avian life.

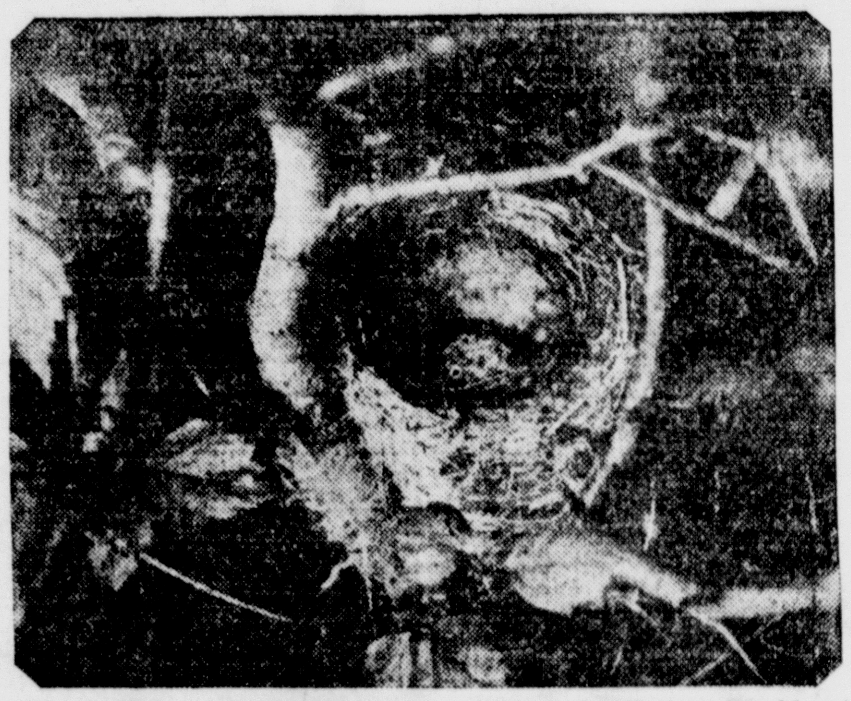
In the morning I hear them in the ash or apple trees at my home, and one morning recently there were a family of five or six in some pear trees at the back of a neighbor's lot, yellowish olive with light wing-bars, in the plumage that makes them difficult of identification. Recently, I saw one flitting in an oak which proved to be a myrtle warbler in adult plumage, very busily snapping up leaf insects. They are the Lilliputians of the bird world, and after watching them for a time even a chickadee looks larger than usual while a robin or flicker appears immense.

Sparrows Follow Warblers

Just a little after the warblers, come great numbers of our native sparrows, the white-throated, white-crowned and tree sparrows, and the juncoes, with their slate color and conspicuous white tail feathers. These went north last April, at which time if you had listened carefully near some brushy hedgrow you might have heard the clear, high-pitched song of the white throated sparrow, or "peabody bird." The white-crowned and white throated sparrows pass on farther south but the tree sparrows and juncoes remain with us all winter.

Scientists trap and band many species of our migratory birds in an effort to learn the secrets of their goings and comings and of the mystery of migration. The illustration shows a Gambel's sparrow, relative of the white crowned sparrow, which has just been banded and is about to be released to continue its journey.

Warblers Are of Interest to Numerous Bird Lovers



The bottom picture represents a nest of the Yellow Warbler in which a Cowbird laid its large egg as soon as the nest was finished, before the warbler had a chance to begin laying. The top shows a Gambel's Sparrow which has just been banded and is about to be released. It is a close relative of the White Crowned Sparrow.

The Pinnated Grouse

By R. C. SHAW

The Pinnated Grouse or prairie chicken resembles the sharp-tailed grouse in a general way. It is a much heavier bird than the ruffed grouse, with much shorter tail and with a tuft of long narrow feathers about six inches long on each side of the neck overlaying a patch of bare, red or yellow skin.

It is well known that this bird is not driven out by civilization, in fact up to a certain point it increases in numbers. The prairie chicken prefers prairie lands and ordinarily nests in such grounds. It's food consists very largely of insects so long as these are obtainable, and not infrequently grasshoppers form almost the sole food for weeks at a time. Various grains and seeds are also eaten freely and during cold half of the year, buds, berries and leaves are freely taken. The farmer should encourage its presence since it does not injure grain crops in any way and destroys harmful insects. To encourage its presence grain should be placed in the feeding grounds in severe winter weather.

The call of the male bird during mating season is one of most remarkable among bird notes. The loose sac or naked skin beneath the tufts of feathers on the neck are inflated to the size of small oranges, and then produce a loud hallow booming sound, known as "booming," "crowing," and "tooting." At short range the bird notes sound much like a kettle drum. The boom is preceded by a little dance which is immediately followed by the inflation of the great orange air sacks on the sides of the neck, which puff out as quickly as a childs toy balloon; the tail is erected and widely spread, the wings dropped, the neck turfs are raised straight upward, then with a convulsive movement of the lowered head the boom is jerked out and at its conclusion the air sacks have become deflated. They fight each other as viciously as game-cocks, and the number of feathers left on the ground testifies to effective use of bills and claws. It is possible to come very close to two old cock birds while they are waging a battle they seem to be so interested in the fight that they do not see you.

The pinnated Grouse is an ideal game bird, so far as it's food habits go it is natural neither beneficial or destructive. A bird that is prolific, wary, and under normal conditions so well able to care for itself that it requires skill to secure it. A knowledge of the best means of applying the various remedies and of all the inter-relations that are likely to destroy it is need to help preserve this great grouse.

LESS GROUSE, SAY HUNTERS

Report Prairie Chickens Are On Increase, However

The average kill of ruffed grouse in the Upper Peninsula proved to be much lower during the season of Oct. 1 to 12 than last year, according to reports now being received. Many hunters found very poor shooting in some localities.

Sporting goods stores above the Straits report an unusually large sale of hunting licenses, and more than the usual number of Lower Peninsula sportsmen crossed the Straits for their grouse shooting.

The drop in the numbers of grouse was anticipated by the Game Division of the Department of Conservation, whose early surveys tended to show that the "pats" were on the downward grade of the cycle. In contrast with the grouse, prairie chickens were plentiful and sharp tail grouse seemed to be more numerous than last year.

GAME AND FISH METHODS CITED

Hoffmaster Outlines Development of Conservation Practices

The use of intelligent and practical methods in the management of game and fish resources was emphasized by P. J. Hoffmaster of the Michigan Department of Conservation in an address before the International Association of Game and Fish Commissioners in convention at Montreal.

Mr. Hoffmaster attended the convention as a representative of the Department of Conservation and Director George R. Hogarth.

Reindeer Herd Recalled

Tracing the development of conservation practices from the first closed seasons, establishment of warden-police, bounty systems and artificial propagation, etc., Mr. Hoffmaster said that much of the work has been little better than mere tinkering.

"New York is admitting that for all the hunters' license money spent on imported 'hunkies' there are very few survivors to show for it," the speaker said. "Michigan is admitting that its imported raindeer herd just died off, nobody knows why. New Jersey is admitting that trout fishing has been poor in spite of trout hand-reared to 'keeper' size. We are not hearing as much as we used to about the wonders of Pennsylvania conservation. All of us, I think, are pretty much debunking the old brags and assumptions and are more and more restless and discontent with the long-standard applications of what we have been calling 'conservation.'

"The fact is, I think, we are beginning to suspect that we have been investing money in ways which, at least, will pay out less than the people who are putting up the money really have a right to expect and demand.

"Within the past five or ten years a new set of ideas has come into the old picture. We are now talking of grouse cycles, tuleremia, nose-fly and lung-worms in deer and blood parasites in ducks and wondering why quail and pheasants seem to refuse to stay put in concentrations greater than an average of one per acre.

Carrying Capacity

"We are wondering and talking about the natural 'carrying capacity' of given cover combinations of land and water and about the 'limiting factors' effecting wildlife populations and census methods for trout and grouse.

"The essential point is that we now have a whole new set of things that we know we can do to help, but we do not yet know how certainly, how generously and how fast they will work.

"It is going to be up to us as conservation officials, to find decently adequate and checkable measures of the returns reasonable to be expected from the several possible ways of getting and keeping what we want in the way of game, fish, forest and other wild-land crops. We might as well as admit that only in a few places can we do that now. We do not even know for sure how to go at the most of it, but it is up to us to find out and to be able and willing to show that we are trying to find out and are using the best of modern tools in that trying."

Fox Gets Hunter's Partridge; Hunter Just Takes the Fox

Albert Rustad, 13, Gladstone youth who spends most of his spare moments in the woods, had an experience during the past partridge season that comes to but few hunters.

After birds across the bay from Gladstone several days ago, Albert was about to shoot at one when a head appeared and grabbed the bird. The boy aimed quickly and shot at the point where the animal disappeared.

Walking over he found a fox kicking its last. It was reported to be a cross between a red and a silver.

Farmer Captures Albino Porcupine

A white porcupine was captured by a Stonington farmer last week, it was reported to the Press yesterday by Emil Leadman, 1520 North Eighteenth street, a former resident of that district.

Albino porcupines are exceedingly rare in this section.

One of the deadliest jobs in the world is that of working in Bohemia's radium mines. The averages life span of workers here is only 37 years, due to poisoning.

Here's Paradise—For Ducks, Not for Hunters

Almost any hunter would go wild with joy if he suddenly found himself in the midst of the flight of thousands of wild ducks pictured here, but the ducks were safe from all except photographers. THE CANADIAN Travel Bureau reports that wonderful results have been obtained from its newspaper advertising campaign carried on in the U. S. to attract visitors during the autumn season. Canada appealed for tourist patronage on the basis of its fine scenery and weather during the fall months and also played up its hunting advantages.

Canada's experience should inspire the upper peninsula. Up in this northern section of the state we have been accustomed to consider the tourist season ended on Labor Day. Our advertising has been concentrated during the early part of the summer.

During the last few years, we have been extending the season by making a bid for hay fever sufferers during September. We have also done a little ballyhooing about our autumn scenery, but as yet we have spent no appreciable amount of money for metropolitan newspaper space in an effort to attract vacationists during this season of the year. Many feel, too, that we have not capitalized fully on our bird and deer hunting possibilities.

Canada has taken advantage of every possibility for attracting the American tourist. Vast sums of money have been spent for advertising in the United States, and apparently it has paid handsome dividends. For years, the Upper peninsula Development Bureau has done splendid work in publicizing this region, but its efforts are being handicapped now by a shortage of funds due to a breakdown of our tax system and the curtailment of private contributions. At the October meeting of the various boards of supervisors, it was revealed that the counties were forced to pare down on such donations because of the limitations of the 15-mill amendment.

The only solution of the problem of providing sufficient funds for an effective tourist advertising campaign is through increased appropriations by the state legislature. Michigan must emulate Ontario, Quebec and the other Canadian provinces if it wants to hold its own in this highly competitive recreational business.

Noted Authority On Art Woman's Club Speaker

Members of the Escanaba Woman's club who are lovers of art and music are anticipating a genuine treat at the next club meeting which is to be held on Wednesday, October 17, at the Escanaba Junior high school building.

The program will feature Professor Bruce M. Donaldson of the University of Michigan who will discuss "Contemporary American Painting."

The club is very fortunate in securing Professor Donaldson for an appearance here in view of the fact that he is a nationally recogniezd authority in the field of art. His long period of study, combined with years of practical application of the many phases of art have enabled him to develop a clear, unbiased understanding of contemporary painting, a broad viewpoint which many painters fail to conceive.

Professor Donaldson was Academic Assistant Curator of the Metropolitan Museum in New York City in 1913-14 and assistant director of the Buffalo Fine Arts Academy and Albert Art Gallery from 1915 through 1917. He now holds the position of associate professor of Fine Arts at the University of Michigan. He is also a member of the Federated Council on Art Education.

The program Wednesday afternoon will include a violin selection by Frank Karas, accompanied by Miss Genevieve Sedlock. Mr. Karas will play "Scene de Ballet," Charles Beriot. Mr. Karas who is an accomplished musician, dates his musical career from the time when as a boy in Europe he received his early training in violin under the careful tutelage of his father, a violinist of note. Upon his arrival in the United States Mr. Karas located in Chicago and while there studied with some of the finest masters in that city. He is recognized not only as a violinist of unusual ability but as a most successful teacher.

Miss Margaret Pease is chairman of the afternoon. She will be assisted by Mesdames William Warmington, J. W. Watson and E. G. Bennett.

"Servants' Entrance" Opens

Reunited for the first time since their initial co-starring venture made "State Fair" memorable, Janet Gaynor and Lew Ayres will be seen again as the gay young sweethearts of "Servants' Entrance" when this newest important Fox picture opens today at the Delft Theatre.

Unlike anything in which they have appeared before, the story of "Servants' Entrance" will afford spectators the opportunity to laugh at the troubles as they thrill to the romance of the madcap lovers whose young lives it depicts. For while "State Fair" bordered on the heavy drama in spots, "Servants' Entrance" is mostly in the romantic-comedy class.

In their newest roles Janet portrays a merry million-heiress of an automobile manufacturer who goes from riches to poverty, and back again, while Lew is a chauffeur who goes from poverty to riches. Starting from opposite rungs of the social ladder, they meet at the bottom. The climb upward is fraught with humorous and fascinating adventures.

Janet's descent to poverty is motivated by a desire to become a useful woman—to learn to cook sew, bake a cake and take care of babies. So she disappears through the front door of her own palitial home, and makes her way to the servants' entrance of another, masquerading as a maid. It is thus that she meets Lew, a chauffeur with an inventive turn of mind whose passion is a new type of motorboat. To win his love, and to make him capitalize his invention without revealing her identity, become Janet's amusing problems.

"Servants' Entrance" also boasts the most imposing array of stars, stellar and featured players ever assembled for a Fox production.

VATTER WILL CONTESTED

Menominee—Mrs. Martha Lindlof, Marinette, has filed an objection to the allowance and probate of the will of her father, the late George Vatter.

The four-point objection charges that "the circumstances and conditions existing at the time of the execution of the last will and testament of George Vatter subsequently changed, obviating the necessity of a trust agreement set forth by Vatter in part of his will, that he was unduly influenced in the execution of the trust agreement, that there was a change in the status of the will which in view of the equal division of the residue therein set, renders the instrument superfluous and without effect. Mrs. Lindlof further claims that "the second paragraph of the will is ambiguous and indefinite."

"Servants' Entrance" Opens

Reunited for the first time since their initial co-starring venture made "State Fair" memorable, Janet Gaynor and Lew Ayres will be seen again as the gay young sweethearts of "Servants' Entrance" when this newest important Fox picture opens today at the Delft Theatre.

Unlike anything in which they have appeared before, the story of "Servants' Entrance" will afford spectators the opportunity to laugh at the troubles as they thrill to the romance of the madcap lovers whose young lives it depicts. For while "State Fair" bordered on the heavy drama in spots, "Servants' Entrance" is mostly in the romantic-comedy class.

In their newest roles Janet portrays a merry million-heiress of an automobile manufacturer who goes from riches to poverty, and back again, while Lew is a chauffeur who goes from poverty to riches. Starting from opposite rungs of the social ladder, they meet at the bottom. The climb upward is fraught with humorous and fascinating adventures.

Janet's descent to poverty is motivated by a desire to become a useful woman—to learn to cook sew, bake a cake and take care of babies. So she disappears through the front door of her own palitial home, and makes her way to the servants' entrance of another, masquerading as a maid. It is thus that she meets Lew, a chauffeur with an inventive turn of mind whose passion is a new type of motorboat. To win his love, and to make him capitalize his invention without revealing her identity, become Janet's amusing problems.

"Servants' Entrance" also boasts the most imposing array of stars, stellar and featured players ever assembled for a Fox production.

VATTER WILL CONTESTED

Menominee—Mrs. Martha Lindlof, Marinette, has filed an objection to the allowance and probate of the will of her father, the late George Vatter.

The four-point objection charges that "the circumstances and conditions existing at the time of the execution of the last will and testament of George Vatter subsequently changed, obviating the necessity of a trust agreement set forth by Vatter in part of his will, that he was unduly influenced in the execution of the trust agreement, that there was a change in the status of the will which in view of the equal division of the residue therein set, renders the instrument superfluous and without effect. Mrs. Lindlof further claims that "the second paragraph of the will is ambiguous and indefinite."

JEAN HOTEL TO BE TORN DOWN

Marks End of Land Mark Associated With Early Days of City

Razing of the Jean Hotel, one of Gladstone's oldest hostelries, will begin Monday, according to Al Reynolds, former owner, who recently disposed of the property to the federal government as the site of a new postoffice building to be erected here.

Reynolds has had several offers for the building and said he would decide to whom it would be sold this week-end. Less than six weeks remains to prepare the site for the government, Reynolds having given bond to have the site ready for contractors within 60 days of notice to quit.

Announcement that the hotel is to be razed will mean the end of an old landmark that is associated with early events in the history of the city.

The Jean Hotel, formely the Gladstone Hotel, was erected in 1888 at Delta and Sixth and was then known as the Hassell hotel. It was operated by Mrs. J. A. Hassell who had sleeping rooms upstairs and a kitchen and dining room downstairs. Two other rooms on the first floor were occupied by a show shop conducted by W. A. Foss and by a bank managed by Fred W. McKinney.

However, it was not Gladstone's first hotel, the Minnewasca which stood on Third street near Delta avenue, originally, having preceded it by several years. Later this hotel was moved to Ninth street but it was destroyed at the time the McWilliams opera house burned down. At that time it was operated by Richard Mason, Sr.

When the old Hassell Hotel was moved to its present site at the corner of Tenth and Delta it was under the management of E. G. Fisher, present manager of the Fisher Hotel. Reynolds took it over in 1930 and has been operating it since.

Names prominent in Gladstone and Delta county history are associated with the old Hassell Inn. The late W. L. Marble stayed there when he first came here to investigate the possibility of future development. R. P. Mason, of Escanaba, the late August Erickson, also of that city, and C. A. Clark were regular boarders.

Tramp Printer Gets Into Jam At Wheaton

Danny O'Flannery, tramp printer, who is no stranger to shops of the Upper Peninsula, got into another jam a short while ago, this time at Wheaton, Ill., a dry town and home of many retired persons of wealth. As is usually the case when Dan gets into trouble, alcohol figured in the case.

The following article appeared in the Wheaton Journal:

"Tramp printers and bayrum, especially when the tramp printer happens to be a pugnacious Irishman, make a combination that means trouble and Harvey Durant dislikes trouble. Just before noon today a Knight of the Road who said that his name was Danny O'Flannery, that he was a printer and that he came from Gladstone, Mich., came into The Journal office spouting defiance at the world in general.

"Just after he left he was picked up by the police and has spent a "loud" afternoon in the city jail. Anyone desiring a complete and extensive course in art of scientific cursing could have been accommodated by visiting police headquarters. After being taken to the station O'Flannery was relieved of a partially filled bay rum bottle but, unfortunately for him, the rest of the bottle's contents had been transferred and the effects of such a liquid refreshment were not happy.

"Before visiting the Journal office in search of a job the Irishman had called on "Dad" Durant, made a general nuisance of himself in the latter's shop and called the proprietor a lot of uncomplimentary names, which the latter gentleman wouldn't stand for. The report is that a right fist shot to the jaw and the tramp printer went away from there rapidly."

Just before noon today a Knight of the Road who said that his name was Danny O'Flannery, that he was a printer and that he came from Gladstone, Mich., came into The Journal office spouting defiance at the world in general.

"Just after he left he was picked up by the police and has spent a "loud" afternoon in the city jail. Anyone desiring a complete and extensive course in art of scientific cursing could have been accommodated by visiting police headquarters. After being taken to the station O'Flannery was relieved of a partially filled bay rum bottle but, unfortunately for him, the rest of the bottle's contents had been transferred and the effects of such a liquid refreshment were not happy.

"Before visiting the Journal office in search of a job the Irishman had called on "Dad" Durant, made a general nuisance of himself in the latter's shop and called the proprietor a lot of uncomplimentary names, which the latter gentleman wouldn't stand for. The report is that a right fist shot to the jaw and the tramp printer went away from there rapidly."

CLOCKS TURNED BACK ONE HOUR

Central Standard Time Became Effective at 1:00 A. M. Today

In accordance with a resolution passed by the city council at a special meeting held on Monday, October 1, the city of Manistique reverted to Central Standard Time this morning at one o'clock.

According to the resolution, the city will continue on Central Standard Time until the last Sunday in April, 1935. Manistique has been operating on Eastern Standard Time, more commonly known as Daylight Saving Time, during the summer months for the past several years.

This year some consideration had been given to the idea of remaining on Eastern Standard Time throughout the year, but a storm of protests resulted in reverting to Central Standard Time for the winter months.

Timepieces today were shoved an hour behind and all church services will be held under Central Standard Time.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Stocks and staples sagged today as Washington threw a few dippers-full of cold water on the recently revived inflationary psychology.

While many in the financial district were not tremendously impressed in the first place by murmurings from the capital about another impending cut in the dollar and an expanded silver buying program, some traders apparently found sufficient speculative stimulus last Thursday to take aboard considerable more stock cargo than they had been carrying recently.

Overnight news that the president had "laughed off" conflicting reports that further devaluation of the dollar or some other inflationary step was in progress, coupled with denials by other administrative spokesmen that any such thing was contemplated at this time, seemingly brought a change of heart to some Wall Street operators and moderate realizing in both stocks and commodities was the rule throughout the brief session.

412,200 Shares Traded

Proponents of the advance, however, were encouraged by the fact that the activity in equities dwindled appreciably on the decline, and losses were not as heavy as might have been expected under the circumstances. Some commentators also pointed out that, aside from the toning down of inflation talk, stocks were in line for a temporary technical reaction.

There was a turnover of only 412,200 shares for the short session, and the Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 selected issues was off but eight-tenths of a point at 72.2.

In the face of the realizing movement, resistance was shown by a number of stocks. Auburn, for instance, was moderately active at an advance of more than a point. The other motors, however, including General and Chrysler, eased.

The fact that the treasury announced that it was calling some $1,870,000,000 more Liberty fourth 4¼s for retirement on April 15, next, helped to confute the inflationary forces because, in connection with the calling of this unexpectedly large amount of government securities, the implication was that no drastic monetary step would be taken. The authorities indicated that an exchange offering would later be made holders of the newly called series.

Wheat and corn dropped 1 to more than 2 cents a bushel. Cotton declined 30 to 75 cents a bale. Foreign exchanges, which had responded with a vigorous rally to the inflationary revival, turned down with stocks and staples. The British pound lost 1½ cents at $4.91¾ and the European gold currencies were relatively heavy.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Oct. 13—Virtual disappearance of inflation talk as a market factor went hand in hand with tumbles of grain values today, including 3 cents drop for wheat.

All Chicago wheat futures fell at times to below $1.00 a bushel. Bulls contended, nevertheless, that the break in values was only a natural reaction after an advance which had carried wheat up 8 cents from last week's low.

With rallies in progress at the last, wheat closed unsettled, 1 3-8 to 2 3-8 under Thursday's finish, May $1.00½ to $1.00 5-8, corn 1 to 1½ down, December new 75 5-8 to 75 3-4, oats 3-4 to 1½ off, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 15 cents.

Corn and oats suffered losses chiefly owing to sympathy with wheat. Considerable notice notwithstanding was taken of statements that corn supplies for the year are so much below ordinary requirements as to be alarming.

Provisions averaged lower, responsive to downturns of hog values and of grains.

BY VICTOR EUBANK
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—The bond market apparently was not greatly influenced today by the administration's "toning down" of inflationary talk.

A steady to firm tone was exhibited throughout the brief session. The difference of the list, in the face of Washington's denials of imminent moves in the monetary program, was attributed by dealers to the fact that the market, when stocks experienced a miniature "boom" last Thursday, did not take the matter so seriously. Only the secondary issues were inclined to follow equities at that time, and even they were not all buoyant.

Transfers today amounted to $6,591,000, par value, against $6,234,000 last Saturday. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate loans recorded an advance of one-tenth of a point to 84. On the week this average showed a net gain of three-tenths of a point.

Most of the utilities did little, while the rails and industrials were only slightly higher.

Trading was exceptionally quiet in the U. S. government section. Federal bonds totalling only about $1,100,000 changed hands compared with $2,290,000 in the previous short session.

German government obligations responded moderately to the Reich's agreement to pay part interest to American holders of the Young and Dawes plan issues. The remainder of the foreign section was rather dull and moderately irregular.

Copper Country Has Scenic Drive

The last three and three-quarter miles of the new lake shore drive between Eagle Harbor and Copper Harbor in Keweenaw county was opened for vehicle traffic October 13.

About nine miles of the twelve and one-half mile stretch between the harbors have been completed for a year or more, work having been carried on at both ends of the drive. The latter if now negotiable for the entire distance but additional gravelling will be done and some sharp curves eliminated.

The lake shore is followed closely from near the mouth of Silver river to a point east of Agate Harbor. At the latter is to be found the only sanded beach on the drive. Either the state or the county will probably establish a bathing beach here.

The Devil's Washtub is one of the many marvels of the drive, a deep hole in the rocky edge of Lake Superior, connected with the latter by two arches through which the combers swirl when a heavy sea is on. Most of the shore along the new highway is wild and rocky, with numerous ideal spots for picnickers.

Thieves Take Cash, Cigarettes Friday At Hoholik Tavern

Paul Hoholik's Riverdale tavern, North Houghton avenue, was burglarized Friday evening when thieves looted the till of from $12 to $15 in cash and also stole four cartons of cigarettes. Entrance was gained from the side door with the use of a key.

The thieves left a note, "CCC Camp, I Thank You." The message was evidently left to lead police officials into believing that the robbery was committed by civilian conservation corps members. Authorities are of the opinion, however, that it was committed by persons having a detailed knowledge of the place.

TO HOLD TOWNSHIP RALLIES

Final plans for a series of Democratic township rallies were made at an enthusiastic meeting of the Young Democrats of Schoolcraft county Friday evening at the court house. The first meeting is scheduled to be held Thursday evening, October 18, at Germfask. Eight speakers, accompanied by the county nominees, will attend the rally. The second rally is tentatively scheduled to be held at Seul Choix, Saturday, October 20.

The holding of two rallies each week throughout the county up to election time, is being planned by the Young Democrats to place the records and views of the Democratic candidates for national, state, and county officers before the people.

Plans were also made at the meeting for the holding of a Democratic ball in the near future.

The Young Democrats stated that their first interest is to see that the national recovery program is carried to a successful conclusion and also it is their definite program to perpetuate the ideals and policies of President Roosevelt that they may go down for posterity, in order that never again will the citizens of America suffer the hardships, trials, and tribulations of the past several years.

To Dramatize Story At Children's Hour

A new feature of the children's story hour, which is being held every Saturday morning at the public library, was instituted yesterday when the children dramatized the story entitled, "The Cat and the Robbers."

An impersonation of a real Eskimo was given when one of the adult attendants was costumed in a fur parka which was received here direct from the Yukon. The parka is made from fur and hide of caribou and raindeer, wolverine and wolf, sewed together with rabbit sinews.

The children's dramatization of one of the stories will be made each week.

COOKING SCHOOL TO BE OFFERED

Demonstrations Will Be Held Monday, Tuesday At Legion Cottage

One of the finest cooking schools conducted here in some time, will be held tomorrow and Tuesday afternoons at the Legion Memorial cottage between the hours of 2 and 4 p. m., according to an announcement made yesterday. The school will be conducted under the sponsorship of the Pillsbury Flour Mills company of Minneapolis and will be under the direction of Mrs. Mildred Rees, home economics expert.

Mrs. Rees has been in home economics work for more than 20 years, having given demonstrations in nearly every state in the union. For the past several years she has been affiliated with the Pillsbury company as first assistant to Mary Ellis Ames, director of the Pillsbury cooking service who broadcasts over the Columbia network on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings in the "Cooking Closeups" program.

All recipes used at the local cooking school will be taken from the famous list, "Balanced Recipes," all of which have been thoroughly tested and approved in the Pillsbury test kitchens in Minneapolis.

Electric ranges and the refrigerator to be used at the school will be donated by the Manistique Light and Power company, while furniture such as tables and kitchen cabinets are the property of Gunnarson and Kefauver, local furniture dealers.

A complete change of program will be given Tuesday afternoon. Food prepared by Mrs. Rees will be given away together with valuable electrical appliances through the courtesy of the Manistique Light and Power company.

The demonstrations will be given free of charge and no doubt will be well worth the while of local housewives.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Stocks and staples sagged today as Washington threw a few dippers-full of cold water on the recently revived inflationary psychology.

While many in the financial district were not tremendously impressed in the first place by murmurings from the capital about another impending cut in the dollar and an expanded silver buying program, some traders apparently found sufficient speculative stimulus last Thursday to take aboard considerable more stock cargo than they had been carrying recently.

Overnight news that the president had "laughed off" conflicting reports that further devaluation of the dollar or some other inflationary step was in progress, coupled with denials by other administrative spokesmen that any such thing was contemplated at this time, seemingly brought a change of heart to some Wall Street operators and moderate realizing in both stocks and commodities was the rule throughout the brief session.

Proponents of the advance, however, were encouraged by the fact that the activity in equities dwindled appreciably on the decline, and losses were not as heavy as might have been expected under the circumstances. Some commentators also pointed out that, aside from the toning down of inflation talk, stocks were in line for a temporary technical reaction.

There was a turnover of only 412,200 shares for the short session, and the Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 selected issues was off but eight-tenths of a point at 72.2.

In the face of the realizing movement, resistance was shown by a number of stocks. Auburn, for instance, was moderately active at an advance of more than a point. The other motors, however, including General and Chrysler, eased.

The fact that the treasury announced that it was calling some $1,870,000,000 more Liberty fourth 4¼s for retirement on April 15, next, helped to confute the inflationary forces because, in connection with the calling of this unexpectedly large amount of government securities, the implication was that no drastic monetary step would be taken. The authorities indicated that an exchange offering would later be made holders of the newly called series.

Wheat and corn dropped 1 to more than 2 cents a bushel. Cotton declined 30 to 75 cents a bale. Foreign exchanges, which had responded with a vigorous rally to the inflationary revival, turned down with stocks and staples. The British pound lost 1½ cents at $4.91¾ and the European gold currencies were relatively heavy.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Oct. 13—Virtual disappearance of inflation talk as a market factor went hand in hand with tumbles of grain values today, including 3 cents drop for wheat.

All Chicago wheat futures fell at times to below $1.00 a bushel. Bulls contended, nevertheless, that the break in values was only a natural reaction after an advance which had carried wheat up 8 cents from last week's low.

With rallies in progress at the last, wheat closed unsettled, 1 3-8 to 2 3-8 under Thursday's finish, May $1.00½ to $1.00 5-8, corn 1 to 1½ down, December new 75 5-8 to 75 3-4, oats 3-4 to 1½ off, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 15 cents.

Corn and oats suffered losses chiefly owing to sympathy with wheat. Considerable notice notwithstanding was taken of statements that corn supplies for the year are so much below ordinary requirements as to be alarming.

Provisions averaged lower, responsive to downturns of hog values and of grains.

BY VICTOR EUBANK
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—The bond market apparently was not greatly influenced today by the administration's "toning down" of inflationary talk.

A steady to firm tone was exhibited throughout the brief session. The difference of the list, in the face of Washington's denials of imminent moves in the monetary program, was attributed by dealers to the fact that the market, when stocks experienced a miniature "boom" last Thursday, did not take the matter so seriously. Only the secondary issues were inclined to follow equities at that time, and even they were not all buoyant.

Transfers today amounted to $6,591,000, par value, against $6,234,000 last Saturday. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate loans recorded an advance of one-tenth of a point to 84. On the week this average showed a net gain of three-tenths of a point.

Most of the utilities did little, while the rails and industrials were only slightly higher.

Trading was exceptionally quiet in the U. S. government section. Federal bonds totalling only about $1,100,000 changed hands compared with $2,290,000 in the previous short session.

German government obligations responded moderately to the Reich's agreement to pay part interest to American holders of the Young and Dawes plan issues. The remainder of the foreign section was rather dull and moderately irregular.

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Price changes were narrow on the curb exchange today but trading volume was considerably ahead of recent Saturdays.

Copper Country Has Scenic Drive

The last three and three-quarter miles of the new lake shore drive between Eagle Harbor and Copper Harbor in Keweenaw county was opened for vehicle traffic October 13.

About nine miles of the twelve and one-half mile stretch between the harbors have been completed for a year or more, work having been carried on at both ends of the drive. The latter if now negotiable for the entire distance but additional gravelling will be done and some sharp curves eliminated.

The lake shore is followed closely from near the mouth of Silver river to a point east of Agate Harbor. At the latter is to be found the only sanded beach on the drive. Either the state or the county will probably establish a bathing beach here.

The Devil's Washtub is one of the many marvels of the drive, a deep hole in the rocky edge of Lake Superior, connected with the latter by two arches through which the combers swirl when a heavy sea is on. Most of the shore along the new highway is wild and rocky, with numerous ideal spots for picnickers.

Thieves Take Cash, Cigarettes Friday At Hoholik Tavern

Paul Hoholik's Riverdale tavern, North Houghton avenue, was burglarized Friday evening when thieves looted the till of from $12 to $15 in cash and also stole four cartons of cigarettes. Entrance was gained from the side door with the use of a key.

The thieves left a note, "CCC Camp, I Thank You." The message was evidently left to lead police officials into believing that the robbery was committed by civilian conservation corps members. Authorities are of the opinion, however, that it was committed by persons having a detailed knowledge of the place.

TO HOLD TOWNSHIP RALLIES

Final plans for a series of Democratic township rallies were made at an enthusiastic meeting of the Young Democrats of Schoolcraft county Friday evening at the court house. The first meeting is scheduled to be held Thursday evening, October 18, at Germfask. Eight speakers, accompanied by the county nominees, will attend the rally. The second rally is tentatively scheduled to be held at Seul Choix, Saturday, October 20.

The holding of two rallies each week throughout the county up to election time, is being planned by the Young Democrats to place the records and views of the Democratic candidates for national, state, and county officers before the people.

Plans were also made at the meeting for the holding of a Democratic ball in the near future.

The Young Democrats stated that their first interest is to see that the national recovery program is carried to a successful conclusion and also it is their definite program to perpetuate the ideals and policies of President Roosevelt that they may go down for posterity, in order that never again will the citizens of America suffer the hardships, trials, and tribulations of the past several years.

Michigan Professor To Address Woman's Club Here Tuesday

The Manistique Woman's club will hold its second meeting of the year Tuesday afternoon at the Elks' temple when Professor B. M. Donaldson, of the University of Michigan, will speak on the topic, "Contemporary American Painting." The meeting will commence at three o'clock.

Musical entertainment will consist of a piano solo by Miss Margaret Johnson, music instructor in the local public schools.

The meeting will be presided over by Mrs. R. H. Wilson, vice president, in the absence of Mrs. W. F. Kefauver who will leave tomorrow afternoon for Grand Rapids where she will represent the local club at the State Federation of Woman's clubs convention to be held Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

Hostesses for Tuesday's meeting will be Mrs. Paul Baldwin, chairman; Mrs. W. Bolitho, Mrs. J. Quick, Mrs. Harry Adams, Mrs. F. W. Anderson, Mrs. Charles Hovey, and Miss Mary Clark.

To Dramatize Story At Children's Hour

A new feature of the children's story hour, which is being held every Saturday morning at the public library, was instituted yesterday when the children dramatized the story entitled, "The Cat and the Robbers."

An impersonation of a real Eskimo was given when one of the adult attendants was costumed in a fur parka which was received here direct from the Yukon. The parka is made from fur and hide of caribou and raindeer, wolverine and wolf, sewed together with rabbit sinews.

The children's dramatization of one of the stories will be made each week.

Business Women to Stage Harvest Ball

Elaborate plans are under way for the staging of a Harvest Ball to be given at the old gymnasium on Friday evening, Nov. 9, under the auspices of the local Business and Professional Women's club, according to an announcement made yesterday.

The event will be in charge of the club's financial committee which is handling all details. Personnel of the committee is Freda Johnson, chairman; Leona Foye, Genevieve Multhaupt, and Florence Williams.

Crowe Insurance Agency Moves to New Quarters

Announcement was made yesterday that the S. O. Crowe Insurance agency, formerly located in the First National Bank building, has moved to its new quarters in the first floor of the Sattler block. The new location is larger and the office is better equipped to handle business.

The agency was first organized in 1899 by W. S. Crowe and was operated under his management until 1922 when it consolidated with the late H. B. Moulton, an insurance man who was well known not only in this vicinity, but throughout the state as well.

S. O. Crowe, present owner, became associated with the agency in 1924 and two years ago took it over under his own management.

Among the companies represented by the Crowe agency are the Home Insurance, largest American company; Hartford Fire Insurance; Continental; the Sun, of London, oldest insurance company in the world; Travelers Insurance; Pennsylvania, of Philadelphia; Standard Accident; John Hancock Life Insurance; and other old line and casualty companies.

Since the agency's organization it has paid fire and casualty losses to the people of Schoolcraft county and vicinity aggregating over a half million dollars, and has never had a serious dispute in the adjustment of any claim.

Eskymos Lose Tough Battle at Menominee, 12-6

PASSES FIGURE HEAVY IN GAME

Nordmen Threaten Often In Last Half of Scrap

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 13 (Special) — Unable to gain through Escanaba's strong front line, Menominee took to the air in the first two periods today and defeated the orange and black by the score of 12 to 6. The game, which was played at Walton Blesch field here, attracted a crowd of nearly 2,500 persons, several hundred of whom came from Escanaba to see the game.

Soon after the game started, Menominee got posesssion of the ball at midfield and Noppenberg threw a 28 yard pass to Noha, who raced the other 22 yards to a touchdown. The try for goal failed. Midway in the second quarter, Menominee intercepted an Escanaba pass on the visitors 40 yard marker. Escanaba then lost 15 yards for holding and on the next play, Noppenberg heaved a pass to Lemery who was down on the Escanaba 4 yard stripe. Noha took the ball over on the next play. Again the try for goal failed. Escanaba took the offensive in the last two quarters and much of the game was played in Menominee territory.

Towards the middle of the period, Jorns, left handed passer and kicker, threw a long pass that Noha intercepted on his own 25 yard mark. The Menominee back failed to hold the ball and fumbled, the pigskin rolling to the Menominee five yard mark where it was downed by Captain Jensen. Peterson took it over for a touchdown on the next play.

Escanaba came close to scoring again in the third quarter when Jorns, who was substituted for Christensen, uncorked a series of passes that finally put the ball on Menominee's 10 yard line. Jorns carried the ball to the five yard stripe on the next play, but Menominee held and Escanaba tried two passes both of which slipped through the arms of the Escanaba receivers.

Eskymos Threaten Again

Again in the fourth quarter Escanaba worked the ball deep down into Menominee territory, but in the shadow of its goal posts, the Menominee forward wall held and the Maroons won the ball on their own 10 yard line with less than two minutes to play. Noppenberg then punted out of danger as the game ended.

Statistics on the game show the two teams well matched. Escanaba, with the help of three penalties, completed nine first downs, to seven for Menominee, two of which were through penalties. Menominee average 34½ yards to Escanaba's 34 in punting, while the visitors had the edge in yardage gained from passes, netting 102 to 84 for Menominee. Rushing the ball from scrimmage, Menomineee gained 73 yards to 64 for Escanaba and the average thrust at the line gave Menominee 2½ yards to 2½ for the orange and black. Menominee backs were smeared for a loss of 13 yards from scrimmage, while Escanaba suffered a 22 yard loss in this manner. Escanaba attempted 21 passes and completed 10, while Menominee threw 11 passes and completed four. Four passes were intercepted by Menominee and two by Escanaba.

Menominee was penalized five times for 65 yards, while Escanaba suffered a total loss through penalties of 60 yards on six occasions. Menominee fumbled three times and Escanaba once, but the orange and black recovered one of Menominees and one of its own fumbles.

California Lucky In Win Over Stagg

Berkeley, Calif., Oct. 13 (AP)—Amos A. Stagg's college of the Pacific Tigers, a great young team coached by a grand old man, outgamed and out-thought University of California's Bears here today, only to lose a bitterly contested battle 7 to 6.

Only the heart-breaking failure of two Bengal receivers to hang onto touchdown-laden passes kept the crowd from witnessing an upset as great as Nevada's defeat of St. Mary's yesterday.

Smooth and confident, as contrasted with the often-fumbling Bears, the Bengals filled the air with passes, then scored on a brilliant 70 yard run by Halfback Bob Wicker, after the Bear defense had been scattered and disorganized by the aerial barrage.

STANFORD WINS OVER WILDCATS

Indian Show Dazzling Attack in 20 to 0 Victory

BY RUSSELL NEWLAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Stanford Stadium, Palo Alto, Calif., Oct. 13 (AP)—Red jersied giants of Stanford upheld the finest tradition of far western football today with a smashing 20 to 0 intersectional victory over Northwestern's Wildcats.

Coach "Tiny" Thornhill's sturdy pigskin warriors rushed over a pair of touchdowns in the second period and turned the engagement into a rout with a third quarter score.

The game was won without the services of the team's premier ball carrier, Fullback Bobby Grayson, out with a bruised hip. "Bones" Hamilton, who swung over from his regular halfback position, filled the shoes of Grayson, and crashed over for the first two touchdowns.

Measure of Revenge

Only twice was Northwestern able even to cross the 50 yard line. Late in the opening period, Coach Dick Hanley's boys held the ball on Stanford's 49 yard line, but the next two plays lost 14 yards.

In the third period, the mid-westerners reached Stanford's 44 yard mark. Only two first downs were chalked up by the invading eleven.

The Indians scored their first touchdown after taking the ball on Northwestern's 30 yard line. Hamilton's pass to Right End Topping netted 17 yards and a first down on Northwestern's 16, whence Hamilton sliced through the line to score standing up.

Northwestern took the next kick-off and punted quickly. The Indians put the ball into play 39 yards from goal, and with reverses working perfectly pounded down the turf, Hamilton going over from the six yard mark. Moscrip toed the oval through the uprights for the extra tally and he did the same after Alustriza had reeled off his long scoring run in the following period.

Northwestern backfield men were bottled up most of the game and the vaunted passing attack of the Big Ten team failed completely.

Navy Has Desperate Tilt With Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 13 (AP)—Maryland's publicized aerial attack, latent for three periods, flared in the final quarter today and almost tossed Navy into the ranks of the defeated gridiron legions.

As it was, an early field goal by Tackle Slade Cutter saved the Sailors and carried them to a 16 to 13 decision.

With a devastating passing barrage, the old liners matched Navy's first half pair of touchdowns but were unable to overcome the additional three points accredited to Cutter's accurate right toe.

The channel is used by more passenger steamer lines than any other section of Great Lakes waters, and it is on the direct course of all freighters operating between Lake Superior ports and Chicago.

IOWA IS NIPPED BY NEBRASKA

Margin of Point After Touchdown Defeats Hawkeyes, 14-13

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 13 (AP)—Nebraska's sophomores unleashed a scoring punch here today which gave the Cornhuskers a 14 to 13 football victory over Iowa and the third consecutive one-point win for the Big Six conference champions against the Hawkeyes.

The galloping Cornhuskers stopped the elusive Ozzie Simmons and plunging Dick Crayne, and forced Iowa to take to the air to stay in the game.

After a scoreless first half, Nebraska took the kickoff in the third quarter and marched to a touchdown, MacDonald's great catch from Henry Bauer capping the drive.

Then a battling Iowa eleven took the kickoff and in seven plays scored when Crayne passed to Bernard Page and the Hawkeye end went over for a touchdown with not a Nebraskan near him. Fisher missed the goal.

The Cornhuskers marched 44 yards in 11 plays to score again early in the fourth quarter and followed it up with the extra point.

BLINDED WITH DART

Iron Mountain—Following reports that a girl had been blinded in one eye with a dart thrown by a boy, Chief of Police William Ferzacca today issued a warning to store owners to stop the sale of both darts and slingshots.

The darts, something of a new novelty for children, are tipped with a pin and, with slingshots, have been used by the children in "gang fights," the chief said.

HILDING OLSON SPEAKS

Iron River—In the belief that there is a definite need for a community center or club, where the young people, particularly, may enjoy supervised entertainment in their leisure hours, a committee of three was named by the Iron River Service club yesterday noon to co-operate with the Iron River Woman's club in making plans for such an institution.

H. C. Olson, of Escanaba, educational director at the civilian conservation camps at Watersmeet and Paint Lake, a guest at yesterday's meeting, spoke briefly on the C.C.C.

Business men of the Iron River district will be asked, Olson said, to appear at the camps in a series of talks in the course in vocational guidance.

Among other projects upon which the selectees are now at work, he said, are the installation of public address systems and of amateur radio sending and receiving sets.

In co-operation with the Iron River school system, a junior college for civilian camp trainees will be started.

Olson predicted that the work being carried on at the camps will result in a material improvement of the forest areas in which the training centers are located, and impetus in the development of the tourist traffic.

FLANNIGAN HOME RAZED

Norway—In accordance with plans contemplated over a period of a year, the razing of the Flannigan home on Sunset Hill was started on Monday morning. As is generally known, the property was bequeathed to the Rev. Fr. Erasmus Dooley as pastor of St. Mary's R. C. Church congregation by the late Mrs. Annie Flannigan, relict of the late Hon. R. C. Football Favorites Still Bite the Dust

(By The Associated Press)

Shell-shocked leaders of the national football parade suffered a few more heavy casualties yesterday and left the fans wondering just where it all was going to end.

Georgia, Iowa, Ohio State and Villanova, all favorites in their own sections, bit the dust in another series of exciting battles that had punch-drunk spectators looking around for some place to sit down after it was all over.

Chicago humbled Michigan 27 to 0, to give the dopesters another headache.

Panthers Get Revenge

Iowa and Ohio State, two of the Big Ten's best, were beaten out because they failed to kick what proved to be essential points after touchdown. Iowa rallied fiercely in the fourth quarter only to lose a 14-13 verdict to Nebraska's Cornhuskers. Ohio State likewise saw a smashing fourth quarter spurt go to waste as Illinois snared a one-point decision, also by 14-13.

Elsewhere, however, the results pretty closely followed the form sheets. Pitt's Panthers avenged two Rose Bowl trouncings with a 20-6 decision over Southern California while Stanford whipped Northwestern just about as had been expected, 20-0.

Of the other leading intersectional tussles, Temple and Indiana played to a 6-6 tie; Michigan State turned back Carnegie Tech, 13-0; Army waltzed to a 48-0 conquest of Drake; Navy turned back Maryland in a thriller, 16-13; West Virginia squeezed past Washington & Lee, 12-0, and Columbia won easily from Virginia Military, 29-6.

One period of the kind of play that used to mark Knute Rockne's elevens gave Notre Dame a convincing 18-7 victory over Purdue.

The east's old "Big Three" of Yale, Harvard and Princeton all turned in triumphs. Harvard was surprisingly strong in stopping Brown, 13-0; Princeton romped over Williams, 35-6, and Yale topped Penn, 14-6, in a game that was much closer than had been anticipated. Syracuse walloped Cornell easily, 20-7, and West Virginia Wesleyan spilled New York university, 21-3.

In the far west where St. Mary's Gaels had gone down to a stunning beating by Nevada on Friday, Washington scored its first victory over Oregon in eight years, 16-6, while Amos Alonzo Stagg's amazing college of Pacific array, beaten only by a 6-0 score by Southern California, held California's Bears to a 7-6 count.

Rice topped Southern Methodist, 9-0, in the leading Southwest Conference fray while Arkansas earned a 6-0 decision over Baylor. Texas showed real strength in trouncing Oklahoma's Sooners, 19-0; Centenary came fast in the fourth quarter to wallop Texas A. and M., 13-0, while Texas Christian whipped Eulsa in a tense struggle, 14-12.

Aside from Georgia's defeat, the southern program proceeded along orthodox lines with Tulane winning from Florida, 28-12; Tennessee rolling over Mississippi, 27-0; Alabama trouncing Mississippi State, 41-0; Kentucky eking out a 7-0 decision over Clemson, and Duke gaining sweet revenge for its beating a year ago in a 20-0 rout of Georgia Tech's Engineers.

SPARTANS LICK CARNEGIE TECH

Michigan State Displays Lots of Punch in 13-0 Victory

BY SAM McCOOL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 13 (AP)—Michigan State justified its place in the nation's football spotlight today by turning back a stubborn Red and White eleven from Carnegie Tech, 13 to 0.

Fighting to protect a national reputation gained last week at the expense of Michigan, the Spartans played Carnegie off its feet throughout the game, and then breezed through the last period with another three points. While States' offensive was busy squirming and fighting its way through the Carnegie line or filling the air with footballs in the great overhead exhibition, the defense bottled up tiny Steve Terebus, Tech's halfback and big scoring threat.

Carrying the ball on nearly every play, the courageous Carnegie mite was unable to pierce the State line when the Spartan goal was threatened. Late in the third period, he was badly hurt and had to be taken from the field. But even in leaving he made his absence felt. His successor, Bowser, threw a pass which was intercepted and a touchdown was later avoided by the most narrow of margins.

Michigan State, after battling around the Carnegie goal line most of the game, tricked its way to its first score. Elmer Vorderberg, Tech's big fullback, fumbled the ball on his own 15 yard line early in the third period and Carnegie took time out. On the first play a tricky formation using a double and lateral pass took Russ Reynolds over the goal line for State's first score. Jim McCrary, the negro fullback, kicked goal and State was off to a 7 to 0 lead.

No Score First Half

The game opened with State threatening the Carnegie goal line in the first period. A pass from Warmbein to Klewicki put the ball on Tech's 14 yard line but the Tech wall held and McCrary's attempt at a placement failed.

Again in the second quarter State advanced to Carnegie's seven yard line but an attempted pass by Reynolds was frustrated when George Goodrich, Tech's left end, plowed through and tackled Reynolds for an 18 yard loss. Another Spartan try for three points failed. As the third period ended State worked the ball to Tech's two yard line but a pass at the opening of the final period was intercepted to turn back another scoring threat.

him. This time he kicked goal, making the score 13 to 0.

The Maroons scored twice in the fourth with Bartlett carrying the ball over both times. Starting from Michigan's 35-yard line, Bartlett missed a bad pass, from center, picked it up while beset by Michigan tacklers and ran to Michigan's 20-yard line. Then on the next play, he cut through a broken field on a beautiful run to score. Berwanger's toe added another point.

A few seconds later the Maroons were again hammering at Michigan's goal line. Bartlett, given the ball on the ten yard line, fumbled, recovered and then on the same play cut through his left tackle and over for the touchdown. Berwanger ended the scoring with place kick for a point.

ILLINOIS BEATS BUCKEYE TEAM

Ohio State Nipped, 14-13, in Thriller at Champaign

BY WILLIAM WEEKS
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Memorial Stadium, Champaign, Ill., Oct. 13. (AP)—By that slender, but mighty, margin of a try for point after touchdown that connected to one which did not, Illinois conquered Ohio State today 14 to 13, in a wild, breath-taking Western Conference gridiron battle.

And it was a battle, a knock-down and drag-out tussle that had 30,000 spectators, including Red Grange, Illinois' all-time football hero, wild-eyed and panting from beginning to end. The Illini, going into the fray as the underdog, struck swiftly by air to take the lead in the first period. They were never behind, but those Buckeyes were coming strong at the end and as the final period wore on, it appeared to be just a question of whether the finish, or the desperate Buckeyes, would get there first.

With the score 14 to 0 against them as the final period opened, the Buckeyes, running with the ball and throwing it, piled through Illinois for sustained marches that ended in their two touchdowns.

Score Through Air

But, after the first Ohio State touchdown, Captain Regis Monahan's place-kick for the extra point, the all-important point to Ohio State, it developed, skittered to the left of the uprights. It did not make much difference that Monahan connected on his second and last opportunity.

The Illini suspected they would be able to do little with the big, active Ohio State line, and the suspicion was veriefid early.

But through the air, although the Buckeyes completed nine passes to eight for Illinois, the victors went to triumph.

Midway of the opening period the Buckeyes held off an Illini attack by intercepting a pass, but after Lindberg had recovered a fumble he cut loose with an arching toss which settled in Beynon's arms back of the last chalk mark.

The second Illinois touchdown was scored on one of Bob Zuppke's new tricks—lateral passes from Lindberg to Frank Froschauer, to Beynon, who fired a forward over the goal line to Gene Dykstra.

Wetzel plowed through the right side of the Illini line for 15 yards and Ohio State's first touchdown as the fourth period got under way. A pass, Pincura to Wendt, on the nine yard line, paved the way for Ohio's last marker. Heekin smashed through for the tally.

Indiana, Temple Play 6-6 Deadlock

Philadelphia, Oct. 13 (AP)—A stubborn, fighting Indiana university football eleven exploded a gridiron bombshell in the faces of 20,000 shocked fans today by smashing through to a 6 to 6 deadlock with Glenn (Pop) Warner's highly-touted Temple university power machine.

Scoring in the second quarter when Wendell Walker swept left end on a 35-yard touchdown sprint, the westerners fought tooth-and-nail through four blistering periods and came out even with their favored opponents.

Bo McMillin's much-publicized "five-man backfield" turned out to be a one-ace outfit in the person of this same Wendell Walker, 192-pounds of ball-carrying dynamite. His scoring dash down the sidelines stunned the spectators into virtual silence.

For a while after he tallied, it looked as though the Temple team, heretofore undefeated and untied in two intersectional starts, might wind up on the short end of the count. But in the third period, Smukler tossed a nicely-timed pass to Watts and the reserve back pounded the 60 yards to the goal line.

Nordmen Threaten Often In Last Half of Scrap

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 13 (Special) — Unable to gain through Escanaba's strong front line, Menominee took to the air in the first two periods today and defeated the orange and black by the score of 12 to 6. The game, which was played at Walton Blesch field here, attracted a crowd of nearly 2,500 persons, several hundred of whom came from Escanaba to see the game.

Soon after the game started, Menominee got posesssion of the ball at midfield and Noppenberg threw a 28 yard pass to Noha, who raced the other 22 yards to a touchdown. The try for goal failed. Midway in the second quarter, Menominee intercepted an Escanaba pass on the visitors 40 yard marker. Escanaba then lost 15 yards for holding and on the next play, Noppenberg heaved a pass to Lemery who was down on the Escanaba 4 yard stripe. Noha took the ball over on the next play. Again the try for goal failed. Escanaba took the offensive in the last two quarters and much of the game was played in Menominee territory.

Towards the middle of the period, Jorns, left handed passer and kicker, threw a long pass that Noha intercepted on his own 25 yard mark. The Menominee back failed to hold the ball and fumbled, the pigskin rolling to the Menominee five yard mark where it was downed by Captain Jensen. Peterson took it over for a touchdown on the next play.

Escanaba came close to scoring again in the third quarter when Jorns, who was substituted for Christensen, uncorked a series of passes that finally put the ball on Menominee's 10 yard line. Jorns carried the ball to the five yard stripe on the next play, but Menominee held and Escanaba tried two passes both of which slipped through the arms of the Escanaba receivers.

Eskymos Threaten Again

Again in the fourth quarter Escanaba worked the ball deep down into Menominee territory, but in the shadow of its goal posts, the Menominee forward wall held and the Maroons won the ball on their own 10 yard line with less than two minutes to play. Noppenberg then punted out of danger as the game ended.

Statistics on the game show the two teams well matched. Escanaba, with the help of three penalties, completed nine first downs, to seven for Menominee, two of which were through penalties. Menominee average 34½ yards to Escanaba's 34 in punting, while the visitors had the edge in yardage gained from passes, netting 102 to 84 for Menominee. Rushing the ball from scrimmage, Menomineee gained 73 yards to 64 for Escanaba and the average thrust at the line gave Menominee 2½ yards to 2½ for the orange and black. Menominee backs were smeared for a loss of 13 yards from scrimmage, while Escanaba suffered a 22 yard loss in this manner. Escanaba attempted 21 passes and completed 10, while Menominee threw 11 passes and completed four. Four passes were intercepted by Menominee and two by Escanaba.

Menominee was penalized five times for 65 yards, while Escanaba suffered a total loss through penalties of 60 yards on six occasions. Menominee fumbled three times and Escanaba once, but the orange and black recovered one of Menominees and one of its own fumbles.

STANFORD WINS OVER WILDCATS

BY RUSSELL NEWLAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Stanford Stadium, Palo Alto, Calif., Oct. 13 (AP)—Red jersied giants of Stanford upheld the finest tradition of far western football today with a smashing 20 to 0 intersectional victory over Northwestern's Wildcats.

Coach "Tiny" Thornhill's sturdy pigskin warriors rushed over a pair of touchdowns in the second period and turned the engagement into a rout with a third quarter score.

The game was won without the services of the team's premier ball carrier, Fullback Bobby Grayson, out with a bruised hip. "Bones" Hamilton, who swung over from his regular halfback position, filled the shoes of Grayson, and crashed over for the first two touchdowns.

Measure of Revenge

Only twice was Northwestern able even to cross the 50 yard line. Late in the opening period, Coach Dick Hanley's boys held the ball on Stanford's 49 yard line, but the next two plays lost 14 yards.

In the third period, the mid-westerners reached Stanford's 44 yard mark. Only two first downs were chalked up by the invading eleven.

The Indians scored their first touchdown after taking the ball on Northwestern's 30 yard line. Hamilton's pass to Right End Topping netted 17 yards and a first down on Northwestern's 16, whence Hamilton sliced through the line to score standing up.

Northwestern took the next kickoff and punted quickly. The Indians put the ball into play 39 yards from goal, and with reverses working perfectly pounded down the turf, Hamilton going over from the six yard mark. Moscrip toed the oval through the uprights for the extra tally and he did the same after Alustriza had reeled off his long scoring run in the following period.

Northwestern backfield men were bottled up most of the game and the vaunted passing attack of the Big Ten team failed completely.

Navy Has Desperate Tilt With Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 13 (AP)—Maryland's publicized aerial attack, latent for three periods, flared in the final quarter today and almost tossed Navy into the ranks of the defeated gridiron legions.

As it was, an early field goal by Tackle Slade Cutter saved the Sailors and carried them to a 16 to 13 decision.

With a devastating passing barrage, the old liners matched Navy's first half pair of touchdowns but were unable to overcome the additional three points accredited to Cutter's accurate right toe.

IOWA IS NIPPED BY NEBRASKA

Margin of Point After Touchdown Defeats Hawkeyes, 14-13

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 13 (AP)—Nebraska's sophomores unleashed a scoring punch here today which gave the Cornhuskers a 14 to 13 football victory over Iowa and the third consecutive one-point win for the Big Six conference champions against the Hawkeyes.

The galloping Cornhuskers stopped the elusive Ozzie Simmons and plunging Dick Crayne, and forced Iowa to take to the air to stay in the game.

After a scoreless first half, Nebraska took the kickoff in the third quarter and marched to a touchdown, MacDonald's great catch from Henry Bauer capping the drive.

Then a battling Iowa eleven took the kickoff and in seven plays scored when Crayne passed to Bernard Page and the Hawkeye end went over for a touchdown with not a Nebraskan near him. Fisher missed the goal.

The Cornhuskers marched 44 yards in 11 plays to score again early in the fourth quarter and followed it up with the extra point.

HILDING OLSON SPEAKS

Iron River—In the belief that there is a definite need for a community center or club, where the young people, particularly, may enjoy supervised entertainment in their leisure hours, a committee of three was named by the Iron River Service club yesterday noon to co-operate with the Iron River Woman's club in making plans for such an institution.

H. C. Olson, of Escanaba, educational director at the civilian conservation camps at Watersmeet and Paint Lake, a guest at yesterday's meeting, spoke briefly on the C.C.C.

Business men of the Iron River district will be asked, Olson said, to appear at the camps in a series of talks in the course in vocational guidance.

Among other projects upon which the selectees are now at work, he said, are the installation of public address systems and of amateur radio sending and receiving sets.

In co-operation with the Iron River school system, a junior college for civilian camp trainees will be started.

Olson predicted that the work being carried on at the camps will result in a material improvement of the forest areas in which the training centers are located, and impetus in the development of the tourist traffic.

Football Favorites Still Bite the Dust

(By The Associated Press)

Shell-shocked leaders of the national football parade suffered a few more heavy casualties yesterday and left the fans wondering just where it all was going to end.

Georgia, Iowa, Ohio State and Villanova, all favorites in their own sections, bit the dust in another series of exciting battles that had punch-drunk spectators looking around for some place to sit down after it was all over.

Panthers Get Revenge

Iowa and Ohio State, two of the Big Ten's best, were beaten out because they failed to kick what proved to be essential points after touchdown. Iowa rallied fiercely in the fourth quarter only to lose a 14-13 verdict to Nebraska's Cornhuskers. Ohio State likewise saw a smashing fourth quarter spurt go to waste as Illinois snared a one-point decision, also by 14-13.

Elsewhere, however, the results pretty closely followed the form sheets. Pitt's Panthers avenged two Rose Bowl trouncings with a 20-6 decision over Southern California while Stanford whipped Northwestern just about as had been expected, 20-0.

Of the other leading intersectional tussles, Temple and Indiana played to a 6-6 tie; Michigan State turned back Carnegie Tech, 13-0; Army waltzed to a 48-0 conquest of Drake; Navy turned back Maryland in a thriller, 16-13; West Virginia squeezed past Washington & Lee, 12-0, and Columbia won easily from Virginia Military, 29-6.

One period of the kind of play that used to mark Knute Rockne's elevens gave Notre Dame a convincing 18-7 victory over Purdue.

The east's old "Big Three" of Yale, Harvard and Princeton all turned in triumphs. Harvard was surprisingly strong in stopping Brown, 13-0; Princeton romped over Williams, 35-6, and Yale topped Penn, 14-6, in a game that was much closer than had been anticipated. Syracuse walloped Cornell easily, 20-7, and West Virginia Wesleyan spilled New York university, 21-3.

In the far west where St. Mary's Gaels had gone down to a stunning beating by Nevada on Friday, Washington scored its first victory over Oregon in eight years, 16-6, while Amos Alonzo Stagg's amazing college of Pacific array, beaten only by a 6-0 score by Southern California, held California's Bears to a 7-6 count.

Rice topped Southern Methodist, 9-0, in the leading Southwest Conference fray while Arkansas earned a 6-0 decision over Baylor. Texas showed real strength in trouncing Oklahoma's Sooners, 19-0; Centenary came fast in the fourth quarter to wallop Texas A. and M., 13-0, while Texas Christian whipped Eulsa in a tense struggle, 14-12.

Aside from Georgia's defeat, the southern program proceeded along orthodox lines with Tulane winning from Florida, 28-12; Tennessee rolling over Mississippi, 27-0; Alabama trouncing Mississippi State, 41-0; Kentucky eking out a 7-0 decision over Clemson, and Duke gaining sweet revenge for its beating a year ago in a 20-0 rout of Georgia Tech's Engineers.

ILLINOIS BEATS BUCKEYE TEAM

Ohio State Nipped, 14-13, in Thriller at Champaign

BY WILLIAM WEEKS
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Memorial Stadium, Champaign, Ill., Oct. 13. (AP)—By that slender, but mighty, margin of a try for point after touchdown that connected to one which did not, Illinois conquered Ohio State today 14 to 13, in a wild, breath-taking Western Conference gridiron battle.

And it was a battle, a knockdown and drag-out tussle that had 30,000 spectators, including Red Grange, Illinois' all-time football hero, wild-eyed and panting from beginning to end. The Illini, going into the fray as the underdog, struck swiftly by air to take the lead in the first period. They were never behind, but those Buckeyes were coming strong at the end and as the final period wore on, it appeared to be just a question of whether the finish, or the desperate Buckeyes, would get there first.

With the score 14 to 0 against them as the final period opened, the Buckeyes, running with the ball and throwing it, piled through Illinois for sustained marches that ended in their two touchdowns.

Score Through Air

But, after the first Ohio State touchdown, Captain Regis Monahan's place-kick for the extra point, the all-important point to Ohio State, it developed, skittered to the left of the uprights. It did not make much difference that Monahan connected on his second and last opportunity.

The Illini suspected they would be able to do little with the big, active Ohio State line, and the suspicion was veriefid early.

Midway of the opening period the Buckeyes held off an Illini attack by intercepting a pass, but after Lindberg had recovered a fumble he cut loose with an arching toss which settled in Beynon's arms back of the last chalk mark.

Wetzel plowed through the right side of the Illini line for 15 yards and Ohio State's first touchdown as the fourth period got under way. A pass, Pincura to Wendt, on the nine yard line, paved the way for Ohio's last marker. Heekin smashed through for the tally.

Indiana, Temple Play 6-6 Deadlock

Philadelphia, Oct. 13 (AP)—A stubborn, fighting Indiana university football eleven exploded a gridiron bombshell in the faces of 20,000 shocked fans today by smashing through to a 6 to 6 deadlock with Glenn (Pop) Warner's highly-touted Temple university power machine.

Scoring in the second quarter when Wendell Walker swept left end on a 35-yard touchdown sprint, the westerners fought tooth-and-nail through four blistering periods and came out even with their favored opponents.

Bo McMillin's much-publicized "five-man backfield" turned out to be a one-ace outfit in the person of this same Wendell Walker, 192-pounds of ball-carrying dynamite. His scoring dash down the sidelines stunned the spectators into virtual silence.

For a while after he tallied, it looked as though the Temple team, heretofore undefeated and untied in two intersectional starts, might wind up on the short end of the count. But in the third period Smukler tossed a nicely-timed pass to Watts and the reserve back pounded the 60 yards to the goal line.

St. Joseph Gridders Defeat Gladstone, 20 to 0

Parochials Show Great Power in Beating Upbay Eleven

The victory added 20 points to their total and kept the Escanaba Parochials out in front as the peninsula's high scoring eleven. To date they have scored 94 points to their opponents four.

Merle or "Rabbit" Williams, as he is known, chalked up two of the Parochial touchdowns, while his brother Brendon (Big Red) scored the other. They each made one point after touchdown.

Gladstone came closest to the Parochial's goal of any team this season when late in the second quarter the Keilmen recovered a fumble by Big Red Williams on the 18-yard line of the Parochials. A pass was good for 5 yards but three plungs netted only 4½ yards against the strong forward wall of the Carrmen and St. Joseph's took the ball on downs. It was the only scoring threat of the Keilmen.

Show Great Offense

Shortly after the opening of the game the high-powered Parochial offensive went into action and following an exchange of punts rolled up two first downs to place the ball on Gladstone's 15-yard stripe where the march bogged down. However, a poor punt carried only 20 yards and the Parochials gained the ball on Gladstone's 35 from where they immediately resumed the march. A tricky double pass behind the line ended in a lateral pass to Big Red Williams good for 20 yards and a first down on the Keilmen's 18. Two tries netted only 2 yards and a penalty put the ball back on the 21. A pass was grounded in the end zone and on fourth down, Big Red Williams, on a quick opening play, shot through right tackle to travel 21 yards to the Gladstone goal and scored standing up. Merle Williams plunged for the extra point. Score: St. Joseph 7; Gladstone 0.

No scores resulted in the second and third quarters and just at the start of the fourth period Gladstone recovered a St. Joseph fumble on the 45 yard line to again have the ball in Parochial territory. However, the scene changed swiftly for Dugener, right tackle of the Carrmen, intercepted a lateral and raced 44 yards to Gladstone's six yard stripe before being downed from behind by McIntyre. Big Red Williams took it to the one yard line and Little Red ploughed over for the second touchdown. Big Red added the extra point by a plung. Score St. Joseph 14; Gladstone 0.

Dominate Play

The Parochials added another score in short order. After returning the Gladstone kickoff from the 20 to the 37, a beautifully placed punt went out of bounds on the one yard line of the Upbays. A return kick from behind their own goal by Gladstone went only to the 30 yard line. Big Red Williams gained two and repeated for 10 and a first down on the Upbays 18. Little Red on a spinner reverse shot off tackle for 18 yards and the final score.

The Carrmen dominated every department of play with the exception of punting. They rolled up 8 first downs to 2 for the Upbays; chalked up 215 yards on running plays from scrimmage to 46 for Gladstone; and completed one pass out of four for 23 yards in comparison to one out of two good for 5 yards for the Keilmen. Only in punting did the Keilmen have an advantage and the pretty returns by Big Red Williams offset much of this edge, the big back running them back for distances ranging from four to 42 yards. The Upbays in 11 kicks averaged 37 yards to the Parochials 29 yard average in 8 tries.

The Parochials lost 30 yards on four penalties in comparison to 10 yards on two penalties for the Upbays.

Craig Wood Heavy Favorite In Golf Meet, Louisville

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 13 (AP)—Shattering par for the second day in succession, the irrepressible Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., pro and member of the U. S. P. G. A. team of six chosen to go to Australia this winter, became the top-heavy favorite in the $5,000 Louisville open golf tournament today as he turned in a card of 139 for the 36 holes already played.

Throughout today's second round of play, Wood kept up with the sizzling pace he set in the opening round yesterday when he knocked four off par with a card of 68. His aggregate is five under par.

However, Wood's card was not the best of the day. Abe Espinosa of Chicago cut three off par in the second round for a 69, but his poor 76 of yesterday raised his total to 145.

Wiffy Fox of Brooklyn was one of the few others who beat par. His 36-34—70 gave him a total of 146 and kept him in the running for the prize money to be split up after tomorrow's final 36 holes.

PANTHERS LICK TROJANS, 20-6

Pitt Gets Revenge for Beatings in Rose Bowl

BY EDWARD J. NEIL

Pittsburgh Oct. 13 (AP)—The lingering ache of the great wounds Southern California twice tore in the Pitt Panthers' hide in the Rose Bowl softened under great gobs of revenge balm today as Pittsburgh crushed the Trojans 20 to 6 in a record making victory. A crowd of 50,000 saw the game.

It was the first time the huge fellows from California, conquerors of the Panther 47 to 14 in the annual New Year's classic of 1930 and 35 to 0 in 1933, ever penetrated east of Chicago.

And with their ears still red from the taunts of the Trojan Daily that they had lost their might as "toys of some henna-haired beauty" in Hollywood, they proceeded to lose their second game in two weeks the first time that has happened since Howard Jones took over the head coaches job in 1924.

The Panthers, plenty rough whenever the opportunity afforded, crowded touchdowns across in the first and second periods for a 13 to 0 lead, took a breather as little Irvine "Cotton" Warburton, flaunting the tag of an all-America quarterback, flared for a few brief moments in the rush to the Trojan score then banged to a game clinching third score, and the final 20-6 lead in the third period.

Warburton, smothered most of the afternoon, finally did get under way, and made things hum. Given the ball on his own 20 yard line late in the second period, the cotton top ran through tackle for nine yards, went through again for 17, picked up three more and then from midfield heaved a perfect pass to Cal Clemons on Pitt's 25. Clemons whirled to the 14. Warburton tossed him another for the lone score.

With Mike Nicksick, Henry Weisenbaugh, and Izzy Weinstock hammering the line and skirting the ends, the Panther scores came quickly. A 52 yard drive in the first quarter, with Nicksick weaving through for large gains and the Trojans fumbling the ball right back when he passed for a touchback over the goal, gave Weinstock a chance to punch across from the two yard line. Weisenbaugh ran a kick back 31 yards, tossed a 14 yard pass to end Verne Baxter and burst 25 more through his left tackle for the second touchdown.

Hub Randour, sub back, tossed a 30 yard pass to Baxter for the final score in the third quarter. He got his chance to do that when Clemons, trying to punt out of danger, kicked seven yards and outside from his own 23. Weinstock place kicked two points after touchdowns.

Manistique, Newberry Play to 7-7 Deadlock

Manistique, Mich., Oct. 13 (Special)—Manistique and Newberry high schools battled to a 7-7 tie in a game here this afternoon. Both teams scored in the last part of the second quarter.

Lamuth, diminutive Manistique halfback, toted the ball across for the first score of the game when the second quarter was about half over. The try for extra point, a placekick, sailed between the uprights to make the count 7-0. A few minutes before the half ended, Smith, Newberry halfback, plunged through the line three yards to score. Another line crash was successful for the extra point.

Noe, Manistique right end, paved the way for a touchdown when he snatched a pass and galloped to the Newberry five yard mark. Two line smashes by Anderson failed to gain and Lamuth took the oval on the next play and penetrated through left tackle for a score.

After receiving the ball on their own 30 yard line, Newberry started a march down the field that refused to be stopped. Berglund, Newberry fullback, failed to make an impression on Manistique's line on a line smash, but Smith toured right end for a first down on the next play. The next two plays were stopped on the line of scrimmage, but Berglund skirted left end on the next try, toting the ball to the Manistique 27 yard line. Smith ripped off 10 yards more on a right end run. Newberry lost 15 yards on a penalty during the next two plays. A pass was incomplete, but Manistique was penalized 15 yards, placing the ball on Manistique's 12 yard line in Newberry's possession. Seven yards were added on the next try at the line, a line smash placed the oval on the two yard mark, and then Smith headed his way through the line for a score. The score was deadlocked when he toted the ball over again for the extra point.

Manistique Threatens

During the first quarter the battle was decidedly in Manistique's favor, but the green and white was unable to put the ball in scoring position. The last half resolved itself into a punting duel with Manistique getting the edge on distance. Playing on even terms in the third quarter, Newberry gained a slight edge in the fourth period from the standpoint of net yardage gained.

During the last three minutes of play, Manistique made a desperate bid to score after Anderson intercepted a Newberry pass as it bounced off a Manistique man's shoulder and galloped to the Newberry 20 yard line. With only a minute to play, a place kick was tried but it went wild. The game ended with the ball in Newberry's possession on their own 20 yard line.

PURDUE BUMPED BY NOTRE DAME

Scoring Outburst Sews Up Game in Second Period; 18 to 7

BY PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 13. (AP)—Hitched to a quartet of quick striking ball carriers, who gave every promise of duplicating the dazzling deeds of the immortal "Four Horsemen" in 1924, Elmer Layden's Notre Dame football machine rode out of the gridiron wilderness today with a decisive, 18 to 7 conquest over Purdue.

The victory, witnessed by a record equalling throng of 45,000 spectators, was scored within a space of 10 minutes in the second period when Coach Layden turned loose his quartet of destruction spreading backs — George Melinkovich, Wallace Fromhart, Fred Carideo and Mike Layden, brother of the Irish mentor.

Before their lightning thrusts, through the air, around the wings and through the line, had subsided, they had scored three touchdowns to clinch victory and to turn the job of defense over to the reserves for the remainder of the battle, which ended with a 66 yard Purdue touchdown march.

Duane Purvis Injured

Melinkovich, back to the football wars after a year's fight for life and health, was the biggest battering ram in the Irish attack on the weary Boilermakers, who were weakened by the physical impossibility of putting their scoring aces, Duane Purvis and Jim Carter, on the field together.

Big George started the scoring with a spectacular 60 yard dash and a few minutes later snatched one of Layden's long accurate passes for a 35 yard gain, which put him in position to score again with two bone crushing lunges from the Boilermaker three yard stripe. Then, as the Boilermakers rallied, Carideo raced in, intercepted Purvis' pass on his own 25 and outfooted the entire enemy team with a beautiful 70 yard sprint down the sidelines to score. All attempts to convert after the touchdowns failed, but it didn't matter.

Purdue was robbed completely of the hobbling Purvis' services when, late in the second period, the Purdue star was injured again.

Melinkovich with his beautiful 60 yard gallop, started the Notre Dame drive. Carideo's run brought the biggest cheer of the day from the huge crowd. Although bottled completely in "death corner," he snatched Purvis' pass, shook himself loose from two tacklers and squirmed out of the melee for a clear road ahead.

Notre Dame reserves, playing most of the remainder of the game, gave a fine performance of safety play but were unable to withstand the final Purdue rally. Carter, Dailey and John Drake, were the heroes for the final Purdue attack. Carter picked up 29 of the 66 yard drive, and went over with room to spare from the two-yard stripe. Toriello added the extra point from placement.

Army Buries Drake Under 48-0 Score

After the Cadets had taken over a 13-0 lead in the first quarter, Coach Gar Davidson gave his reserves a trial and before the game was over practically every member of the squad of 39 saw action.

The contest was lop-sided with the exception of a few minutes in the fourth quarter when a pot-pourri Army team was held for downs on Drake's three yard line.

Algers Threaten Several Times in Last Period Of Game

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 13 (Special)—Crossing the goal line twice within two minutes after the opening of each half on 40 and 60 yard drives, the Sault Ste. Marie Blue Devils defeated Munising here this afternoon, 13 to 6.

A strong passing attack unleashed by the Algerites in the final quarter was halted deep in Sault territory when Benson intercepted one of George Anderson's throws. Munising made a desperate attempt to tie the score after Anderson, who played brilliantly for the losers, had intercepted a Sault lateral pass and romped 20 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter.

With Tony Sabatine, Benson and Kirkpatrick leading the attack the Sault marched 40 yards for the first towchdown following the opening kickoff. Tony Sabatine scored on a six yard smash off tackle. A 10 yard pass, Frank Sabatine to Bowers, scored the second Sault touchdown following a 60 yard march at the beginning of the second half. Tony Sabatine plunged for the extra point.

Each team scored seven first downs, five of Munising's coming in the final quarter when they attempted 19 passes, completing five for an aggregate gain of 43 yards. The Blue Devils piled up 105 wards from scrimmage to 44 for the Aigerites. The Sault tried nine passes completing three for a total of 27 yards and intercepting three of Munising's attempts.

—makes homes easy to heat

Solid Rock Becomes Wool

From solid rock, Johns-Manville makes an insulation that at last makes homes really livable. Limestone is actually blown into light, fluffy wool and felted into bats that have all the appearance of cotton batting.

FROM the Johns-Manville laboratories has come an amazing new insulation, a light, fluffy, wool-like substance that is actually blown from rock. It looks like cotton, but is a pure mineral, with all the characteristics of its stony origin—clean, fireproof, verminproof, permanent, odorless.

When installed in your attic floor or ceiling, it forms a heat-proof barrier more than 3 inches thick. Results are astounding. Costly heat is kept inside the home, and you can depend on savings of from 20 to 35% on your fuel bills. Furthermore, in the summer, your home will be from 6 to 12 degrees cooler on the hottest days. Experts agree that only thick rock wool will protect homes against heat and cold in a truly scientific way.

Phone us today, and let us tell you how little it will cost to make your home really livable every day in the year. There is no obligation.

St. Joseph Gridders Defeat Gladstone, 20 to 0

WILLIAMS BOYS LEAD ATTACK

Parochials Show Great Power in Beating Upbay Eleven

The Parochial touchdown twins, Merle and Brendon Williams, teamed up again and with the aid of some nifty blocking and nice linework continued their rampage of upper peninsula gridirons to give St. Joseph's high school a 20 to 0 victory over Gladstone in their annual battle here today.

The victory added 20 points to their total and kept the Escanaba Parochials out in front as the peninsula's high scoring eleven. To date they have scored 94 points to their opponents four.

Merle or "Rabbit" Williams, as he is known, chalked up two of the Parochial touchdowns, while his brother Brendon (Big Red) scored the other. They each made one point after touchdown.

Gladstone came closest to the Parochial's goal of any team this season when late in the second quarter the Keilmen recovered a fumble by Big Red Williams on the 18-yard line of the Parochials. A pass was good for 5 yards but three plungs netted only 4½ yards against the strong forward wall of the Carrmen and St. Joseph's took the ball on downs. It was the only scoring threat of the Keilmen.

Show Great Offense

Shortly after the opening of the game the high-powered Parochial offensive went into action and following an exchange of punts rolled up two first downs to place the ball on Gladstone's 15-yard stripe where the march bogged down. However, a poor punt carried only 20 yards and the Parochials gained the ball on Gladstone's 35 from where they immediately resumed the march. A tricky double pass behind the line ended in a lateral pass to Big Red Williams good for 20 yards and a first down on the Keilmen's 18. Two tries netted only 2 yards and a penalty put the ball back on the 21. A pass was grounded in the end zone and on fourth down, Big Red Williams, on a quick opening play, shot through right tackle to travel 21 yards to the Gladstone goal and score standing up. Merle Williams plunged for the extra point. Score: St. Joseph 7; Gladstone 0.

No scores resulted in the second and third quarters and just at the start of the fourth period Gladstone recovered a St. Joseph fumble on the 45 yard line to again have the ball in Parochial territory. However, the scene changed swiftly for Dugener, right tackle of the Carrmen, intercepted a lateral and raced 44 yards to Gladstone's six yard stripe before being downed from behind by McIntyre. Big Red Williams took it to the one yard line and Little Red ploughed over for the second touchdown. Big Red added the extra point by a plung. Score St. Joseph 14; Gladstone 0.

Dominate Play

The Parochials added another score in short order. After returning the Gladstone kickoff from the 20 to the 37, a beautifully placed punt went out of bounds on the one yard line of the Upbays. A return kick from behind their own goal by Gladstone went only to the 30 yard line. Big Red Williams gained two and repeated for 10 and a first down on the Upbays 18. Little Red on a spinner reverse shot off tackle for 18 yards and the final score.

The Carrmen dominated every department of play with the exception of punting. They rolled up 8 first downs to 2 for the Upbays; chalked up 215 yards on running plays from scrimmage to 46 for Gladstone; and completed one pass out of four for 23 yards in comparison to one out of two good for 5 yards for the Keilmen. Only in punting did the Keilmen have an advantage and the pretty returns by Big Red Williams offset much of this edge, the big back running them back for distances ranging from four to 42 yards. The Upbays in 11 kicks averaged 37 yards to the Parochials 29 yard average in 8 tries.

The Parochials lost 30 yards on four penalties in comparison to 10 yards on two penalties for the Upbays.

Craig Wood Heavy Favorite In Golf Meet, Louisville

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 13 (AP)—Shattering par for the second day in succession, the irrepressible Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., pro and member of the U. S. P. G. A. team of six chosen to go to Australia this winter, became the top-heavy favorite in the $5,000 Louisville open golf tournament today as he turned in a card of 139 for the 36 holes already played.

Throughout today's second round of play, Wood kept up with the sizzling pace he set in the opening round yesterday when he knocked four off par with a card of 68. His aggregate is five under par.

However, Wood's card was not the best of the day. Abe Espinosa of Chicago cut three off par in the second round for a 69, but his poor 76 of yesterday raised his total to 145.

Wiffy Fox of Brooklyn was one of the few others who beat par. His 36-34—70 gave him a total of 146 and kept him in the running for the prize money to be split up after tomorrow's final 36 holes.

THEATRES

"Treasure Island," Robert Louis Stevenson's famous tale of the high seas and buccaneers, produced as a talking picture, is to be shown today, Monday and Tuesday at the Rialto Theatre, with Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper in co-starring roles.

Second Feature

Answering the demands of critics and fans for a filmusical in the true sense of the word. the Rialto Theatre will present "Cockeyed Cavaliers" as a second feature, starring Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, with Thelma Todd and Dorothy Lee.

"Cockeyed Cavaliers" presents Wheeler and Woolsey as two erring knights of old carrying on with ultra modern melodies and comedy. Bert and Bob fall in love with petite Dorothy Lee, who is eluding a forced marriage to a duke and masquerading as a boy. They crash the noble's palace and meet Thelma Todd. Dot and Bert and Thelma and Bob pair off into romances which are charged with sheer fun. The comedy reaches a hilarious pitch when the boys capture an escaped wild boar and recieve a reward sufficient to take Dorothy out of pawn to the duke.

Pitt Gets Revenge for Beatings in Rose Bowl

BY EDWARD J. NEIL

Pittsburgh Oct. 13 (AP)—The lingering ache of the great wounds Southern California twice tore in the Pitt Panthers' hide in the Rose Bowl softened under great gobs of revenge balm today as Pittsburgh crushed the Trojans 20 to 6 in a record making victory. A crowd of 50,000 saw the game.

It was the first time the huge fellows from California, conquerors of the Panther 47 to 14 in the annual New Year's classic of 1930 and 35 to 0 in 1933 ,ever penetrated east of Chicago.

And with their ears still red from the taunts of the Trojan Daily that they had lost their might as "toys of some henna-haired beauty" in Hollywood, they proceeded to lose their second game in two weeks the first time that has happened since Howard Jones took over the head coaches job in 1924.

The Panthers, plenty rough whenever the opportunity afforded, crowded touchdowns across in the first and second periods for a 13 to 0 lead, took a breather as little Irvine "Cotton" Warburton, flaunting the tag of an all-America quarterback, flared for a few brief moments in the rush to the Trojan score then banged to a game clinching third score, and the final 20-6 lead in the third period.

Warburton, smothered most of the afternoon, finally did get under way, and made things hum. Given the ball on his own 20 yard line late in the second period, the cotton top ran through tackle for nine yards, went through again for 17, picked up three more and then from midfield heaved a perfect pass to Cal Clemons on Pitt's 25. Clemons whirled to the 14. Warburton tossed him another for the lone score.

With Mike Nicksick, Henry Weisenbaugh, and Izzy Weinstock hammering the line and skirting the ends, the Panther scores came quickly. A 52 yard drive in the first quarter, with Nicksick weaving through for large gains and the Trojans fumbling the ball right back when he passed for a touchback over the goal, gave Weinstock a chance to punch across from the two yard line. Weisenbaugh ran a kick back 31 yards, tossed a 14 yard pass to end Verne Baxter and burst 25 more through his left tackle for the second touchdown.

Hub Randour, sub back, tossed a 30 yard pass to Baxter for the final score in the third quarter. He got his chance to do that when Clemons, trying to punt out of danger, kicked seven yards and outside from his own 23. Weinstock place kicked two points after touchdowns.

Manistique, Newberry Play to 7-7 Deadlock

Manistique, Mich., Oct. 13 (Special)—Manistique and Newberry high schools battled to a 7-7 tie in a game here this afternoon. Both teams scored in the last part of the second quarter.

Lamuth, diminutive Manistique halfback, toted the ball across for the first score of the game when the second quarter was about half over. The try for extra point, a placekick, sailed between the uprights to make the count 7-0. A few minutes before the half ended, Smith, Newberry halfback, plunged through the line three yards to score. Another line crash was successful for the extra point.

Noe, Manistique right end, paved the way for a touchdown when he snatched a pass and galloped to the Newberry five yard mark. Two line smashes by Anderson failed to gain and Lamuth took the oval on the next play and penetrated through left tackle for a score.

After receiving the ball on their own 30 yard line, Newberry started a march down the field that refused to be stopped. Berglund, Newberry fullback, failed to make an impression on Manistique's line on a line smash, but Smith toured right end for a first down on the next play. The next two plays were stopped on the line of scrimmage, but Berglund skirted left ened on the next try, toting the ball to the Manistique 27 yard line. Smith ripped off 10 yards more on a right end run. Newberry lost 15 yards on a penalty during the next two plays. A pass was incomplete, but Manistique was penalized 15 yards, placing the ball on Manistique's 12 yard line in Newberry's possession. Seven yards were added on the next try at the line, a line smash placed the oval on the two yard mark, and then Smith headed his way through the line for a score. The score was deadlocked when he toted the ball over again for the extra point.

Manistique Threatens

During the first quarter the battle was decidedly in Manistique's favor, but the green and white was unable to put the ball in scoring position. The last half resolved itself into a punting duel with Manistique getting the edge on distance. Playing on even terms in the third quarter, Newberry gained a slight edge in the fourth period from the standpoint of net yardage gained.

During the last three minutes of play, Manistique made a desperate bid to score after Anderson intercepted a Newberry pass as it bounced off a Manistique man's shoulder and galloped to the Newberry 20 yard line. With only a minute to play, a place kick was tried but it went wild. The game ended with the ball in Newberry's possession on their own 20 yard line.

Syracuse Defeats Old Rival, Cornell

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 13 (AP)—Uncorking a series of combination powerhouse and deceptive type of football, Syracuse university today struck swiftly and true in the second and third periods to defeat Cornell 20 to 7 here today before 15,000 spectators.

The most sensational Syracuse score came when Stark flipped a long pass to Merz who galloped 55 yards across the goal ine.

Cornell took to the air in the final period and it was a long pass from Hack Wilson, to Rossiter that led to the score by Wilson.

PURDUE BUMPED BY NOTRE DAME

Scoring Outburst Sews Up Game in Second Period; 18 to 7

BY PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 13. (AP)—Hitched to a quartet of quick striking ball carriers, who gave every promise of duplicating the dazzling deeds of the immortal "Four Horsemen" in 1924, Elmer Layden's Notre Dame football machine rode out of the gridiron wilderness today with a decisive, 18 to 7 conquest over Purdue.

The victory, witnessed by a record equalling throng of 45,000 spectators, was scored within a space of 10 minutes in the second period when Coach Layden turned loose his quartet of destruction spreading backs — George Melinkovich, Wallace Fromhart, Fred Carideo and Mike Layden, brother of the Irish mentor.

Before their lightning thrusts, through the air, around the wings and through the line, had subsided, they had scored three touchdowns to clinch victory and to turn the job of defense over to the reserves for the remainder of the battle, which ended with a 66 yard Purdue touchdown march.

Duane Purvis Injured

Melinkovich, back to the football wars after a year's fight for life and health, was the biggest battering ram in the Irish attack on the weary Boilermakers, who were weakened by the physical impossibility of putting their scoring aces, Duane Purvis and Jim Carter, on the field together.

Big George started the scoring with a spectacular 60 yard dash and a few minutes later snatched one of Layden's long accurate passes for a 35 yard gain, which put him in position to score again with two bone crushing lunges from the Boilermaker three yard stripe. Then, as the Boilermakers rallied, Carideo raced in, intercepted Purvis' pass on his own 25 and outfooted the entire enemy team with a beautiful 70 yard sprint down the sidelines to score. All attempts to convert after the touchdowns failed, but it didn't matter.

Purdue was robbed completely of the hobbling Purvis' services when, late in the second period, the Purdue star was injured again.

Melinkovich with his beautiful 60 yard gallop, started the Notre Dame drive. Carideo's run brought the biggest cheer of the day from the huge crowd. Although bottled completely in "death corner," he snatched Purvis' pass, shook himself loose from two tacklers aud squirmed out of the melee for a clear road ahead.

Notre Dame reserves, playing most of the remainder of the game, gave a fine performance of safety play but were unable to withstand the final Purdue rally. Carter, Dailey and John Drake, were the heroes for the final Purdue attack. Carter picked up 29 of the 66 yard drive, and went over with room to spare from the two-yard stripe. Toriello added the extra point from placement.

CUPID STRIKES OUT SCHOOLBOY ROWE

Schoolboy Rowe's big bat whiffed the air five times against Cardinal pitchers in the world series, but his biggest strikeout came when he faced lil' Dan'l Cupid. The kid with his bow and arrow fanned Rowe easily and now the Schoolboy is a hubby, having married his childhood sweetheart, Edna Mary Skinner. Here are the newlyweds in a Detroit hotel just after the ceremony.

Army Buries Drake Under 48-0 Score

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 13 (AP)—With a variegated running and overhead attack, the hard charging army football team today buried a heavy but cumbersome Drake eleven under a 48 to 0 landslide on Michie Stadium field before an estimated 12,000 shivering spectators in nippy fall atmosphere.

After the Cadets had taken over a 13-0 lead in the first quarter, Coach Gar Davidson gave his reserves a trial and before the game was over practically every member of the squad of 39 saw action.

The contest was lop-sided with the exception of a few minutes in the fourth quarter when a pot-pourri Army team was held for downs on Drake's three yard line.

Algers Threaten Several Times in Last Period Of Game

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 13 (Special)—Crossing the goal line twice within two minutes after the opening of each half on 40 and 60 yard drives, the Sault Ste. Marie Blue Devils defeated Munising here this afternoon, 13 to 6.

A strong passing attack unleashed by the Algerites in the final quarter was halted deep in Sault territory when Benson intercepted one of George Anderson's throws. Munising made a desperate attempt to tie the score after Anderson, who played brilliantly for the losers, had intercepted a Sault lateral pass and romped 20 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter.

With Tony Sabatine, Benson and Kirkpatrick leading the attack the Sault marched 40 yards for the first towchdown following the opening kickoff. Tony Sabatine scored on a six yard smash off tackle. A 10 yard pass, Frank Sabatine to Bowers, scored the second Sault touchdown following a 60 yard march at the beginning of the second half. Tony Sabatine plunged for the extra point.

Each team scored seven first downs, five of Munising's coming in the final quarter when they attempted 19 passes, completing five for an aggregate gain of 43 yards. The Blue Devils piled up 105 wards from scrimmage to 44 for the Aigerites. The Sault tried nine passes completing three for a total of 27 yards and intercepting three of Munising's attempts.

WIN ON FORFEIT

The Notre Dame Juniors forfeited a football game to the All Star Juniors at Escanaba Saturday. Roy Erickson is coach and manager of the Notre Dame Juniors, and the All Stars have Abe Stein as captain, and Ralph Coplan as manager and coach.

Hickie Examines Possum Stomachs

Preliminary examinations of opossum stomachs collected in the study made by Paul Hickie, mammalogist of the Game Division, Department of Conservation, indicate that the opposum in Michigan eats a great variety of both vegetable and animal matter and that "carrion" forms a substantial part of its diet.

Two hundred oppossum stomachs have been collected to date. They were taken in the following months: November, 78; December, 84; February, two; March, six; April, seven; May, two; June, one.

Frequency of occurences of animal matter in the stomachs collected totalled 86 per cent, according to Hickie. Frequency of occurrences of vegetable matter, 14 per cent. Evidences of the following were found in the first 50 stomachs collected and examined: field mice, woods mice, rabbits, birds, snakes, frogs, grasshoppers, beetles, earthworms, snails, apples, grains, seeds.

The oppossum study, according to the Game Division, is part of a larger program of investigation into the food habits of fur-bearers in Michigan, conducted both by the Department and University of Michigan.

125 Attend 4-H Banquet, Newberry

More than 125 persons sat down to the banquet which closed the annual 4-H club work in Luce county on Friday night. Miss Olga Bird and Clare Rood, U. P. club leaders and Charles Blakeslee, Luce county leader were in charge of the event which was one of the most successful held here for some time. Talks were given by the leaders, directing attention to gains made by the members and clubs, and pointing out new aims.

Three girls led in garden club work for the 4-H club annual award held in Newberry on Friday. Viola Hetrick, first year girl, was reported by Clare Rood, U. P. club leader, to have the outstanding garden with Mabel Lock and Jean Hetrick in second and third place. Boys led in second year garden work with Leonard Wessels, first, Lewis Williams, second, Jack Oberle, third, and Ernest Thackham, fourth.

Boys also led in the potato club work: Frank Sinich, first, Gerald Fox, second, Royal Lackey, third, Pete Bergman, fourth, and Lewis Williams, fifth for second year work. In the first year class Warren Saunders leads with Donald Fyvie, Mabel Locke, Bennie St. John and George Ketvertis in order.

Leon Palmer, George Stephenson and Kenneth Lichow, in order, placed for the first year work in handicraft. In the second year class only George Ketvertis placed. In third year work John Swanson and Earl Russell were first and second. Charles Ketvertis won first in fourth year, and Royal Lackey placed first in the fifth year work. This exhibit, although small, was excellent.

Fourth year: Bernice Russell, Leona Berry.

The clothing exhibit ran all the way from hemmed towels to completed wool suits and was very fine.

First year: Emogene Harter, Barbara James, Rosa Crowell and Ida Taylor.

Second year: Thelma Stephenson and Nellie Trim.

Third year: Ruth Walker, Alice Miller and Anna Lackey.

Fifth year: Mary Lackey.

Miss Bird announced that Alice Miller had the outstanding canning exhibit. These exhibits were unusually interesting. Each girl had made a fruit cupboard, drawn on a large card with the shelves filled to represent each jar actually filled. Dainty curtains hung from the top and one of these had been turned back to show the filled shelves. Meat as well as vegetables and fruits were exhibited.

These turning in completed notebooks on foods were Dorothy Roberts, Florence Stubbs, Catherine Brown, Donna Lichow, Aurel Hoben, Dora Jane Rischart and Helen Bergstrom.

This year more award placing will be made. Cash prizes ranging from $1.50 to 25 cents will be made at a later date, Mr. Blakeslee announced. The work in the county is of untold value to these young people who are not only learning to do work which will assist them all their lives but are early being trained to wish to excell in such work.

MAGDA S. RAINHOLTSON

Services which were attended by a large number of relatives and friends of the family were held Saturday afternoon for Magda S. Rainholtson, Escanaba young woman who died on Wednesday.

The services at which Rev. C. A. Lund of Bethany Lutheran church, of which she was a devout member, officiated, were held at 2 o'clock at the family residence, 207 North Twelfth street, where the body lay surrounded by a profusion of beautiful flowers. Following the rites at the home, services were held in Bethany Lutheran church.

The text of Rev. Mr. Lund's sermon at the church was taken from John, 3-17: "What I do thou knowest not now— but thou shalt know hereafter." The Bethany choir of which Miss Rainholtson was a member, sang two numbers, "God So Loved the World," by John Stainer, and "Thou Wilt Keep Him in Perfect Peace," by C. M. Williams.

Burial was in Lakeview cemetery. Pallbearers were John Peterson, Werner A. Olson, Wallace Olson, Edwin Olson, Conrad Finstrom and Theodore Lindstrom.

Out-of-town people at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. John Wester, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Butler, Norma Butler, Frank Herbert and Roy Wester, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Butler, Mrs. Jennie Hall and Mrs. Judith Strom, all of Isabella, and Miss Elinor Anderson of Ensign.

Slicing of Beets Starts at Factory

Slicing of sugar beets began Monday, October 8, at the Menominee mill of the Superior Sugar Refining company, and the plant is now in full operation. More than 350 men will be employed for the prospective run of from 70 to 80 days. The plant is busy on three shifts of eight hours each daily, and it will run seven days a week until the last beet is converted into sugar.

The company holds contracts this year for deliveries of beets from about 10,000 acres of farm land in northern Michigan and Wisconsin. The yield per acre is estimated to be nearly 50 percent better than that of a year ago.

Scouters Of County Will Confer Monday

Delta County Scouters will hold a special meeting Monday evening, Oct. 15th, at the City Hall at 7:30 p. m. The first part of the meeting will be presided over by Carl J. Sawyer, chairman of the Escanaba District Committee and will be for the purpose of outlining with the District Committeemen the program and plans for winter months. The remainder of the time will be a general Scout Leaders Round-Table on troop problems and program under the Direction of Scout Executive Chas F. Spurr.

Coaches to Talk At Kiwanis Meet

Coach Carl Nordberg of the Escanaba high school and Coach George Carr of St. Joseph's will be the speakers at the regular luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Sherman hotel Monday noon. They will describe interesting incidents of Saturday's football games.

Music will be furnished by the senior high school string quartet under the direction of Frank Karas. The public is invited to attend.

Heavy Traffic On Ferries Recorded

"State ferry receipts at the Straits of Mackinac are showing an increase over last year of about 50 per cent," according to commissioner Van Wagoner of the state highway department, who was one of the speakers at the annual meeting of the East Michigan Tourist association in Bay City Tuesday evening, October 9.

"While this gratifying showing is doubtless the result, to a very considerable degree, of the enlarged state advertising program, there is plenty of room for more publicity about Michigan," said Mr. Van Wagoner. "For example, a recent issue of an eastern magazine on Michigan and its attractions listed only two of the latter,—Father Coughlin's radio station in Royal Oak, and the Kellogg sanitarium in Battle Creek.

"The proposed diagonal extension of highway M-10 from Clare to Frankfort, connecting at the latter point with the Ann Arbor railway ferries for Menominee and Manistique, should prove to be an excellent thing for the western part of the Upper Peninsula," said the commissioner. "It will greatly shorten the distance from that part of the state to the Saginaw valley cities and Lansing and Detroit, and its much needed completion will provide an important new highway link between northwestern upper Michigan and downstate points."

Boys led in second year garden work with Leonard Wessels, first, Lewis Williams, second, Jack Oberle, third, and Ernest Thackham, fourth.

Boys also led in the potato club work: Frank Sinich, first, Gerald Fox, second, Royal Lackey, third, Pete Bergman, fourth, and Lewis Williams, fifth for second year work. In the first year class Warren Saunders leads with Donald Fyvie, Mabel Locke, Bennie St. John and George Ketvertis in order.

Leon Palmer, George Stephenson and Kenneth Lichow, in order, placed for the first year work in handicraft. In the second year class only George Ketvertis placed. In third year work John Swanson and Earl Russell were first and second. Charles Ketvertis won first in fourth year, and Royal Lackey placed first in the fifth year work. This exhibit, although small, was excellent.

Awards for clothing were as follows:

Fourth year: Bernice Russell, Leona Berry.

The clothing exhibit ran all the way from hemmed towels to completed wool suits and was very fine.

First year: Emogene Harter, Barbara James, Rosa Crowell and Ida Taylor.

Third year: Ruth Walker, Alice Miller and Anna Lackey.

Fifth year: Mary Lackey.

Miss Bird announced that Alice Miller had the outstanding canning exhibit. These exhibits were unusually interesting. Each girl had made a fruit cupboard, drawn on a large card with the shelves filled to represent each jar actually filled. Dainty curtains hung from the top and one of these had been turned back to show the filled shelves. Meat as well as vegetables and fruits were exhibited.

These turning in completed notebooks on foods were Dorothy Roberts, Florence Stubbs, Catherine Brown, Donna Lichow, Aurel Hoben, Dora Jane Rischart and Helen Bergstrom.

This year more award placing will be made. Cash prizes ranging from $1.50 to 25 cents will be made at a later date, Mr. Blakeslee announced. The work in the county is of untold value to these young people who are not only [illegible] to do work which will assist them all their lives but are early being trained to wish to excell in such work.

Slicing of Beets Starts at Factory

Slicing of sugar beets began Monday, October 8, at the Menominee mill of the Superior Sugar Refining company, and the plant is now in full operation. More than 350 men will be employed for the prospective run of from 70 to 80 days. The plant is busy on three shifts of eight hours each daily, and it will run seven days a week until the last beet is converted into sugar.

The company holds contracts this year for deliveries of beets from about 10,000 acres of farm land in northern Michigan and Wisconsin. The yield per acre is estimated to be nearly 50 percent better than that of a year ago.

Heavy Traffic On Ferries Recorded

"State ferry receipts at the Straits of Mackinac are showing an increase over last year of about 50 per cent," according to commissioner Van Wagoner of the state highway department, who was one of the speakers at the annual meeting of the East Michigan Tourist association in Bay City Tuesday evening, October 9.

"While this gratifying showing is doubtless the result, to a very considerable degree, of the enlarged state advertising program, there is plenty of room for more publicity about Michigan," said Mr. Van Wagoner. "For example, a recent issue of an eastern magazine on Michigan and its attractions listed only two of the latter,—Father Coughlin's radio station in Royal Oak, and the Kellogg sanitarium in Battle Creek.

"The proposed diagonal extension of highway M-10 from Clare to Frankfort, connecting at the latter point with the Ann Arbor railway ferries for Menominee and Manistique, should prove to be an excellent thing for the western part of the Upper Peninsula," said the commissioner. "It will greatly shorten the distance from that part of the state to the Saginaw valley cities and Lansing and Detroit, and its much needed completion will provide an important new highway link between northwestern upper Michigan and downstate points."

JEAN HOTEL TO BE TORN DOWN

Marks End of Land Mark Associated With Early Days of City

Razing of the Jean Hotel, one of Gladstone's oldest hostelries, will begin Monday, according to Al Reynolds, former owner, who recently disposed of the property to the federal government as the site of a new postoffice building to be erected here.

Reynolds has had several offers for the building and said he would decide to whom it would be sold this week-end. Less than six weeks remains to prepare the site for the government, Reynolds having given bond to have the site ready for contractors within 60 days of notice to quit.

Announcement that the hotel is to be razed will mean the end of an old landmark that is associated with early events in the history of the city.

The Jean Hotel, formely the Gladstone Hotel, was erected in 1888 at Delta and Sixth and was then known as the Hassell hotel. It was operated by Mrs. J. A. Hassell who had sleeping rooms upstairs and a kitchen and dining room downstairs. Two other rooms on the first floor were occupied by a show shop conducted by W. A. Foss and by a bank managed by Fred W. McKinney.

However, it was not Gladstone's first hotel, the Minnewasca which stood on Third street near Delta avenue, originally, having preceded it by several years. Later this hotel was moved to Ninth street but it was destroyed at the time the McWilliams opera house burned down. At that time it was operated by Richard Mason, Sr.

When the old Hassell Hotel was moved to its present site at the corner of Tenth and Delta it was under the management of E. G. Fisher, present manager of the Fisher Hotel. Reynolds took it over in 1930 and has been operating it since.

Names prominent in Gladstone and Delta county history are associated with the old Hassell Inn. The late W. L. Marble stayed there when he first came here to investigate the possibility of future development. R. P. Mason, of Escanaba, the late August Erickson, also of that city, and C. A. Clark were regular boarders.

Tramp Printer Gets Into Jam At Wheaton

Danny O'Flannery, tramp printer, who is no stranger to shops of the Upper Peninsula, got into another jam a short while ago, this time at Wheaton, Ill., a dry town and home of many retired persons of wealth. As is usually the case when Dan gets into trouble, alcohol figured in the case.

The following article appeared in the Wheaton Journal:

"Tramp printers and bayrum, especially when the tramp printer happens to be a pugnacious Irishman, make a combination that means trouble and Harvey Durant dislikes trouble. Just before noon today a Knight of the Road who said that his name was Danny O'Flannery, that he was a printer and that he came from Gladstone, Mich., came into The Journal office spouting defiance at the world in general.

"Just after he left he was picked up by the police and has spent a "loud" afternoon in the city jail. Anyone desiring a complete and extensive course in art of scientific cursing could have been accommodated by visiting police headquarters. After being taken to the station O'Flannery was relieved of a partially filled bay rum bottle but, unfortunately for him, the rest of the bottle's contents had been transferred and the effects of such a liquid refreshment were not happy.

"Before visiting the Journal office in search of a job the Irishman had called on "Dad" Durant, made a general nuisance of himself in the latter's shop and called the proprietor a lot of uncomplimentary names, which the latter gentleman wouldn't stand for. The report is that a right fist shot to the jaw and the tramp printer went away from there rapidly."

Central Standard Time Became Effective at 1:00 A. M. Today

In accordance with a resolution passed by the city council at a special meeting held on Monday, October 1, the city of Manistique reverted to Central Standard Time this morning at one o'clock.

This year some consideration had been given to the idea of remaining on Eastern Standard Time throughout the year, but a storm of protests resulted in reverting to Central Standard Time for the winter months.

Eskymos Lose Tough Battle at Menominee, 12-6

PASSES FIGURE HEAVY IN GAME

Nordmen Threaten Often In Last Half of Scrap

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 13 (Special) — Unable to gain through Escanaba's strong front line, Menominee took to the air in the first two periods today and defeated the orange and black by the score of 12 to 6. The game, which was played at Walton Blesch field here, attracted a crowd of nearly 2,500 persons, several hundred of whom came from Escanaba to see the game.

Soon after the game started, Menominee got posesssion of the ball at midfield and Noppenberg threw a 28 yard pass to Noha, who raced the other 22 yards to a touchdown. The try for goal failed. Midway in the second quarter, Menominee intercepted an Escanaba pass on the visitors 40 yard marker. Escanaba then lost 15 yards for holding and on the next play, Noppenberg heaved a pass to Lemery who was down on the Escanaba 4 yard stripe. Noha took the ball over on the next play. Again the try for goal failed. Escanaba took the offensive in the last two quarters and much of the game was played in Menominee territory.

Towards the middle of the period, Jorns, left handed passer and kicker, threw a long pass that Noha intercepted on his own 25 yard mark. The Menominee back failed to hold the ball and fumbled, the pigskin rolling to the Menominee five yard mark where it was downed by Captain Jensen. Peterson took it over for a touchdown on the next play.

Escanaba came close to scoring again in the third quarter when Jorns, who was substituted for Christensen, uncorked a series of passes that finally put the ball on Menominee's 10 yard line. Jorns carried the ball to the five yard stripe on the next play, but Menominee held and Escanaba tried two passes both of which slipped through the arms of the Escanaba receivers.

Eskymos Threaten Again

Again in the fourth quarter Escanaba worked the ball deep down into Menominee territory, but in the shadow of its goal posts, the Menominee forward wall held and the Maroons won the ball on their own 10 yard line with less than two minutes to play. Noppenberg then punted out of danger as the game ended.

Statistics on the game show the two teams well matched. Escanaba, with the help of three penalties, completed nine first downs, to seven for Menominee, two of which were through penalties. Menominee average 34½ yards to Escanaba's 34 in punting, while the visitors had the edge in yardage gained from passes, netting 102 to 84 for Menominee. Rushing the ball from scrimmage, Menomineee gained 73 yards to 64 for Escanaba and the average thrust at the line gave Menominee 2½ yards to 2½ for the orange and black. Menominee backs were smeared for a loss of 13 yards from scrimmage, while Escanaba suffered a 22 yard loss in this manner. Escanaba attempted 21 passes and completed 10, while Menominee threw 11 passes and completed four. Four passes were intercepted by Menominee and two by Escanaba.

Menominee was penalized five times for 65 yards, while Escanaba suffered a total loss through penalties of 60 yards on six occasions. Menominee fumbled three times and Escanaba once, but the orange and black recovered one of Menominees and one of its own fumbles.

California Lucky In Win Over Stagg

Berkeley, Calif., Oct. 13 (AP)—Amos A. Stagg's college of the Pacific Tigers, a great young team coached by a grand old man, outgamed and out-thought University of California's Bears here today, only to lose a bitterly contested battle 7 to 6.

Only the heart-breaking failure of two Bengal receivers to hang onto touchdown-laden passes kept the crowd from witnessing an upset as great as Nevada's defeat of St. Mary's yesterday.

Smooth and confident, as contrasted with the often-fumbling Bears, the Bengals filled the air with passes, then scored on a brilliant 70 yard run by Halfback Bob Wicker, after the Bear defense had been scattered and disorganized by the aerial barrage.

STANFORD WINS OVER WILDCATS

BY RUSSELL NEWLAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Stanford Stadium, Palo Alto, Calif., Oct. 13 (AP)—Red jersied giants of Stanford upheld the finest tradition of far western football today with a smashing 20 to 0 intersectional victory over Northwestern's Wildcats.

Coach "Tiny" Thornhill's sturdy pigskin warriors rushed over a pair of touchdowns in the second period and turned the engagement into a rout with a third quarter score.

The game was won without the services of the team's premier ball carrier, Fullback Bobby Grayson, out with a bruised hip. "Bones" Hamilton, who swung over from his regular halfback position, filled the shoes of Grayson, and crashed over for the first two touchdowns.

Measure of Revenge

Only twice was Northwestern able even to cross the 50 yard line. Late in the opening period, Coach Dick Hanley's boys held the ball on Stanford's 49 yard line, but the next two plays lost 14 yards.

In the third period, the mid-westerners reached Stanford's 44 yard mark. Only two first downs were chalked up by the invading eleven.

The Indians scored their first touchdown after taking the ball on Northwestern's 30 yard line. Hamilton's pass to Right End Topping netted 17 yards and a first down on Northwestern's 16, whence Hamilton sliced through the line to score standing up.

Northwestern took the next kickoff and punted quickly. The Indians put the ball into play 39 yards from goal, and with reverses working perfectly pounded down the turf, Hamilton going over from the six yard mark. Moscrip toed the oval through the uprights for the extra tally and he did the same after Alustriza had reeled off his long scoring run in the following period.

Navy Has Desperate Tilt With Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 13 (AP)—Maryland's publicized aerial attack, latent for three periods, flared in the final quarter today and almost tossed Navy into the ranks of the defeated gridiron legions.

As it was, an early field goal by Tackle Slade Cutter saved the Sailors and carried them to a 16 to 13 decision.

With a devastating passing barrage, the old liners matched Navy's first half pair of touchdowns but were unable to overcome the additional three points accredited to Cutter's accurate right toe.

IOWA IS NIPPED BY NEBRASKA

Margin of Point After Touchdown Defeats Hawkeyes, 14-13

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 13 (AP)—Nebraska's sophomores unleashed a scoring punch here today which gave the Cornhuskers a 14 to 13 football victory over Iowa and the third consecutive one-point win for the Big Six conference champions against the Hawkeyes.

The galloping Cornhuskers stopped the elusive Ozzie Simmons and plunging Dick Crayne, and forced Iowa to take to the air to stay in the game.

After a scoreless first half, Nebraska took the kickoff in the third quarter and marched to a touchdown, MacDonald's great catch from Henry Bauer capping the drive.

Then a battling Iowa eleven took the kickoff and in seven plays scored when Crayne passed to Bernard Page and the Hawkeye end went over for a touchdown with not a Nebraskan near him. Fisher missed the goal.

The Cornhuskers marched 44 yards in 11 plays to score again early in the fourth quarter and followed it up with the extra point.

BLINDED WITH DART

Iron Mountain—Following reports that a girl had been blinded in one eye with a dart thrown by a boy, Chief of Police William Ferzacca today issued a warning to store owners to stop the sale of both darts and slingshots.

The darts, something of a new novelty for children, are tipped with a pin and, with slingshots, have been used by the children in "gang fights," the chief said.

HILDING OLSON SPEAKS

Iron River—In the belief that there is a definite need for a community center or club, where the young people, particularly, may enjoy supervised entertainment in their leisure hours, a committee of three was named by the Iron River Service club yesterday noon to co-operate with the Iron River Woman's club in making plans for such an institution.

H. C. Olson, of Escanaba, educational director at the civilian conservation camps at Watersmeet and Paint Lake, a guest at yesterday's meeting, spoke briefly on the C.C.C.

Business men of the Iron River district will be asked, Olson said, to appear at the camps in a series of talks in the course in vocational guidance.

Among other projects upon which the selectees are now at work, he said, are the installation of public address systems and of amateur radio sending and receiving sets.

In co-operation with the Iron River school system, a junior college for civilian camp trainees will be started.

Olson predicted that the work being carried on at the camps will result in a material improvement of the forest areas in which the training centers are located, and impetus in the development of the tourist traffic.

Football Favorites Still Bite the Dust

(By The Associated Press)

Shell-shocked leaders of the national football parade suffered a few more heavy casualties yesterday and left the fans wondering just where it all was going to end.

Georgia, Iowa, Ohio State and Villanova, all favorites in their own sections, bit the dust in another series of exciting battles that had punch-drunk spectators looking around for some place to sit down after it was all over.

Panthers Get Revenge

Iowa and Ohio State, two of the Big Ten's best, were beaten out because they failed to kick what proved to be essential points after touchdown. Iowa rallied fiercely in the fourth quarter only to lose a 14-13 verdict to Nebraska's Cornhuskers. Ohio State likewise saw a smashing fourth quarter spurt go to waste as Illinois snared a one-point decision, also by 14-13.

Elsewhere, however, the results pretty closely followed the form sheets. Pitt's Panthers avenged two Rose Bowl trouncings with a 20-6 decision over Southern California while Stanford whipped Northwestern just about as had been expected, 20-0.

Of the other leading intersectional tussles, Temple and Indiana played to a 6-6 tie; Michigan State turned back Carnegie Tech, 13-0; Army waltzed to a 48-0 conquest of Drake; Navy turned back Maryland in a thriller, 16-13; West Virginia squeezed past Washington & Lee, 12-0, and Columbia won easily from Virginia Military, 29-6.

One period of the kind of play that used to mark Knute Rockne's elevens gave Notre Dame a convincing 18-7 victory over Purdue.

The east's old "Big Three" of Yale, Harvard and Princeton all turned in triumphs. Harvard was surprisingly strong in stopping Brown, 13-0; Princeton romped over Williams, 35-6, and Yale topped Penn, 14-6, in a game that was much closer than had been anticipated. Syracuse walloped Cornell easily, 20-7, and West Virginia Wesleyan spilled New York university, 21-3.

In the far west where St. Mary's Gaels had gone down to a stunning beating by Nevada on Friday, Washington scored its first victory over Oregon in eight years, 16-6, while Amos Alonzo Stagg's amazing college of Pacific array, beaten only by a 6-0 score by Southern California, held California's Bears to a 7-6 count.

Rice topped Southern Methodist, 9-0, in the leading Southwest Conference fray while Arkansas earned a 6-0 decision over Baylor. Texas showed real strength in trouncing Oklahoma's Sooners, 19-0; Centenary came fast in the fourth quarter to wallop Texas A. and M., 13-0, while Texas Christian whipped Eulsa in a tense struggle, 14-12.

Aside from Georgia's defeat, the southern program proceeded along orthodox lines with Tulane winning from Florida, 28-12; Tennessee rolling over Mississippi, 27-0; Alabama trouncing Mississippi State, 41-0; Kentucky eking out a 7-0 decision over Clemson, and Duke gaining sweet revenge for its beating a year ago in a 20-0 rout of Georgia Tech's Engineers.

SPARTANS LICK CARNEGIE TECH

Michigan State Displays Lots of Punch in 13-0 Victory

BY SAM McCOOL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 13 (AP)—Michigan State justified its place in the nation's football spotlight today by turning back a stubborn Red and White eleven from Carnegie Tech, 13 to 0.

Fighting to protect a national reputation gained last week at the expense of Michigan, the Spartans played Carnegie off its feet throughout the game, and then breezed through the last period with another three points. While States' offensive was busy squirming and fighting its way through the Carnegie line or filling the air with footballs in the great overhead exhibition, the defense bottled up tiny Steve Terebus, Tech's halfback and big scoring threat.

Carrying the ball on nearly every play, the courageous Carnegie mite was unable to pierce the State line when the Spartan goal was threatened. Late in the third period, he was badly hurt and had to be taken from the field. But even in leaving he made his absence felt. His successor, Bowser, threw a pass which was intercepted and a touchdown was later avoided by the most narrow of margins.

Michigan State, after battling around the Carnegie goal line most of the game, tricked its way to its first score. Elmer Vorderberg, Tech's big fullback, fumbled the ball on his own 15 yard line early in the third period and Carnegie took time out. On the first play a tricky formation using a double and lateral pass took Russ Reynolds over the goal line for State's first score. Jim McCrary, the negro fullback, kicked goal and State was off to a 7 to 0 lead.

No Score First Half

The game opened with State threatening the Carnegie goal line in the first period. A pass from Warmbein to Klewicki put the ball on Tech's 14 yard line but the Tech wall held and McCrary's attempt at a placement failed.

Again in the second quarter State advanced to Carnegie's seven yard line but an attempted pass by Reynolds was frustrated when George Goodrich, Tech's left end, plowed through and tackled Reynolds for an 18 yard loss. Another Spartan try for three points failed. As the third period ended State worked the ball to Tech's two yard line but a pass at the opening of the final period was intercepted to turn back another scoring threat.

him. This time he kicked goal, making the score 13 to 0.

The Maroons scored twice in the fourth with Bartlett carrying the ball over both times. Starting from Michigan's 35-yard line, Bartlett missed a bad pass, from center, picked it up while beset by Michigan tacklers and ran to Michigan's 20-yard line. Then on the next play, he cut through a broken field on a beautiful run to score. Berwanger's toe added another point.

A few seconds later the Maroons were again hammering at Michigan's goal line. Bartlett, given the ball on the ten yard line, fumbled, recovered and then on the same play cut through his left tackle and over for the touchdown. Berwanger ended the scoring with place kick for a point.

ILLINOIS BEATS BUCKEYE TEAM

Ohio State Nipped, 14-13, in Thriller at Champaign

BY WILLIAM WEEKS
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Memorial Stadium, Champaign, Ill., Oct. 13. (AP)—By that slender, but mighty, margin of a try for point after touchdown that connected to one which did not, Illinois conquered Ohio State today 14 to 13, in a wild, breath-taking Western Conference gridiron battle.

And it was a battle, a knockdown and drag-out tussle that had 30,000 spectators, including Red Grange, Illinois' all-time football hero, wild-eyed and panting from beginning to end. The Illini, going into the fray as the underdog, struck swiftly by air to take the lead in the first period. They were never behind, but those Buckeyes were coming strong at the end and as the final period wore on, it appeared to be just a question of whether the finish, or the desperate Buckeyes, would get there first.

With the score 14 to 0 against them as the final period opened, the Buckeyes, running with the ball and throwing it, piled through Illinois for sustained marches that ended in their two touchdowns.

Score Through Air

But, after the first Ohio State touchdown, Captain Regis Monahan's place-kick for the extra point, the all-important point to Ohio State, it developed, skittered to the left of the uprights. It did not make much difference that Monahan connected on his second and last opportunity.

The Illini suspected they would be able to do little with the big, active Ohio State line, and the suspicion was verietid early.

But through the air, although the Buckeyes completed nine passes to eight for Illinois, the victors went to triumph.

Midway of the opening period the Buckeyes held off an Illini attack by intercepting a pass, but after Lindberg had recovered a fumble he cut loose with an arching toss which settled in Beynon's arms back of the last chalk mark.

The second Illinois touchdown was scored on one of Bob Zuppke's new tricks—lateral passes from Lindberg to Frank Froschauer, to Beynon, who fired a forward over the goal line to Gene Dykstra.

Wetzel plowed through the right side of the Illini line for 15 yards and Ohio State's first touchdown as the fourth period got under way. A pass, Pincura to Wendt, on the nine yard line, paved the way for Ohio's last marker. Heekin smashed through for the tally.

Indiana, Temple Play 6-6 Deadlock

Philadelphia, Oct. 13 (AP)—A stubborn, fighting Indiana university football eleven exploded a gridiron bombshell in the faces of 20,000 shocked fans today by smashing through to a 6 to 6 deadlock with Glenn (Pop) Warner's highly-touted Temple university power machine.

Scoring in the second quarter when Wendell Walker swept left end on a 35-yard touchdown sprint, the westerners fought tooth-and-nail through four blistering periods and came out even with their favored opponents.

Bo McMillin's much-publicized "five-man backfield" turned out to be a one-ace outfit in the person of this same Wendell Walker, 192-pounds of ball-carrying dynamite. His scoring dash down the sidelines stunned the spectators into virtual silence.

For a while after he tallied, it looked as though the Temple team, heretofore undefeated and untied in two intersectional starts, might wind up on the short end of the count. But in the third period, Smukler tossed a nicely-timed pass to Watts and the reserve back pounded the 60 yards to the goal line.

Hickie Examines Possum Stomachs

Preliminary examinations of opossum stomachs collected in the study made by Paul Hickie, mammalogist of the Game Division, Department of Conservation, indicate that the opposum in Michigan eats a great variety of both vegetable and animal matter and that "carrion" forms a substantial part of its diet.

Two hundred oppossum stomachs have been collected to date. They were taken in the following months: November, 78; December, 84; February, two; March, six; April, seven; May, two; June, one.

Frequency of occurences of animal matter in the stomachs collected totalled 86 per cent, according to Hickie. Frequency of occurrences of vegetable matter, 14 per cent. Evidences of the following were found in the first 50 stomachs collected and examined: field mice, woods mice, rabbits, birds, snakes, frogs, grasshoppers, beetles, earthworms, snails, apples, grains, seeds.

The oppossum study, according to the Game Division, is part of a larger program of investigation into the food habits of fur-bearers in Michigan, conducted both by the Department and University of Michigan.

125 Attend 4-H Banquet, Newberry

More than 125 persons sat down to the banquet which closed the annual 4-H club work in Luce county on Friday night. Miss Olga Bird and Clare Rood, U. P. club leaders and Charles Blakeslee, Luce county leader were in charge of the event which was one of the most successful held here for some time. Talks were given by the leaders, directing attention to gains made by the members and clubs, and pointing out new aims.

Three girls led in garden club work for the 4-H club annual award held in Newberry on Friday. Viola Hetrick, first year girl, was reported by Clare Rood, U. P. club leader, to have the outstanding garden with Mabel Lock and Jean Hetrick in second and third place. Boys led in second year garden work with Leonard Wessels, first, Lewis Williams, second, Jack Oberle, third, and Ernest Thackham, fourth.

Boys also led in the potato club work: Frank Sinich, first, Gerald Fox, second, Royal Lackey, third, Pete Bergman, fourth, and Lewis Williams, fifth for second year work. In the first year class Warren Saunders leads with Donald Fyvie, Mabel Locke, Bennie St. John and George Ketvertis in order.

Leon Palmer, George Stephenson and Kenneth Lichow, in order, placed for the first year work in handicraft. In the second year class only George Ketvertis placed. In third year work John Swanson and Earl Russell were first and second. Charles Ketvertis won first in fourth year, and Royal Lackey placed first in the fifth year work. This exhibit, although small, was excellent.

Awards for clothing were as follows:

Fourth year: Bernice Russell, Leona Berry.

The clothing exhibit ran all the way from hemmed towels to completed wool suits and was very fine.

First year: Emogene Harter, Barbara James, Rosa Crowell and Ida Taylor.

Second year: Thelma Stephenson and Nellie Trim.

Third year: Ruth Walker, Alice Miller and Anna Lackey.

Fifth year: Mary Lackey.

Miss Bird announced that Alice Miller had the outstanding canning exhibit. These exhibits were unusually interesting. Each girl had made a fruit cupboard, drawn on a large card with the shelves filled to represent each jar actually filled. Dainty curtains hung from the top and one of these had been turned back to show the filled shelves. Meat as well as vegetables and fruits were exhibited.

These turning in completed notebooks on foods were Dorothy Roberts, Florence Stubbs, Catherine Brown, Donna Lichow, Aurel Hoben, Dora Jane Rischart and Helen Bergstrom.

This year more award placing will be made. Cash prizes ranging from $1.50 to 25 cents will be made at a later date, Mr. Blakeslee announced. The work in the county is of untold value to these young people who are not only learning to do work which will assist them all their lives but are early being trained to wish to excell in such work.

MAGDA S. RAINHOLTSON

Services which were attended by a large number of relatives and friends of the family were held Saturday afternoon for Magda S. Rainholtson, Escanaba young woman who died on Wednesday.

The services at which Rev. C. A. Lund of Bethany Lutheran church, of which she was a devout member, officiated, were held at 2 o'clock at the family residence, 207 North Twelfth street, where the body lay surrounded by a profusion of beautiful flowers. Following the rites at the home, services were held in Bethany Lutheran church.

The text of Rev. Mr. Lund's sermon at the church was taken from John, 3-17: "What I do thou knowest not now— but thou shalt know hereafter." The Bethany choir of which Miss Rainholtson was a member, sang two numbers, "God So Loved the World," by John Stainer, and "Thou Wilt Keep Him in Perfect Peace," by C. M. Williams.

Burial was in Lakeview cemetery. Pallbearers were John Peterson, Werner A. Olson, Wallace Olson, Edwin Olson, Conrad Finstrom and Theodore Lindstrom.

Out-of-town people at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. John Wester, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Butler, Norma Butler, Frank Herbert and Roy Wester, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Butler, Mrs. Jennie Hall and Mrs. Judith Strom, all of Isabella, and Miss Elinor Anderson of Ensign.

Slicing of Beets Starts at Factory

Slicing of sugar beets began Monday, October 8, at the Menominee mill of the Superior Sugar Refining company, and the plant is now in full operation. More than 350 men will be employed for the prospective run of from 70 to 80 days. The plant is busy on three shifts of eight hours each daily, and it will run seven days a week until the last beet is converted into sugar.

The company holds contracts this year for deliveries of beets from about 10,000 acres of farm land in northern Michigan and Wisconsin. The yield per acre is estimated to be nearly 50 percent better than that of a year ago.

Scouters Of County Will Confer Monday

Delta County Scouters will hold a special meeting Monday evening, Oct. 15th, at the City Hall at 7:30 p. m. The first part of the meeting will be presided over by Carl J. Sawyer, chairman of the Escanaba District Committee and will be for the purpose of outlining with the District Committeemen the program and plans for winter months. The remainder of the time will be a general Scout Leaders Round-Table on troop problems and program under the Direction of Scout Executive Chas F. Spurr.

Coaches to Talk At Kiwanis Meet

Coach Carl Nordberg of the Escanaba high school and Coach George Carr of St. Joseph's will be the speakers at the regular luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Sherman hotel Monday noon. They will describe interesting incidents of Saturday's football games.

Music will be furnished by the senior high school string quartet under the direction of Frank Karas. The public is invited to attend.

Heavy Traffic On Ferries Recorded

"State ferry receipts at the Straits of Mackinac are showing an increase over last year of about 50 per cent," according to commissioner Van Wagoner of the state highway department, who was one of the speakers at the annual meeting of the East Michigan Tourist association in Bay City Tuesday evening, October 9.

"While this gratifying showing is doubtless the result, to a very considerable degree, of the enlarged state advertising program, there is plenty of room for more publicity about Michigan," said Mr. Van Wagoner. "For example, a recent issue of an eastern magazine on Michigan and its attractions listed only two of the latter,—Father Coughlin's radio station in Royal Oak, and the Kellogg sanitarium in Battle Creek.

"The proposed diagonal extension of highway M-10 from Clare to Frankfort, connecting at the latter point with the Ann Arbor railway ferries for Menominee and Manistique, should prove to be an excellent thing for the western part of the Upper Peninsula," said the commissioner. "It will greatly shorten the distance from that part of the state to the Saginaw valley cities and Lansing and Detroit, and its much needed completion will provide an important new highway link between northwestern upper Michigan and downstate points."
